College Proposes $300 Per Year Room Rent Increase ...

SUNY Plattsburgh's resident students will pay $300 more to live on campus during the next academic year, but more than one-third of the increase will pay for improvements designed to enhance the living and learning environment for students (see related story, below).

Moreover, says William Laundry, director of Campus Life, room costs here are expected to remain among the lowest, if not the lowest, among the 25 campuses in SUNY that operate and maintain residence halls.

According to Laundry, SUNY Central Administration has been asked to sanction a proposal that will raise the room rent for standard double-occupancy accommodations by $150 per semester per student, bringing the academic year costs from the current $2,220 to $2,520 in 1994-95. The recommendation followed widespread consultation with students, he adds, and its approval is a virtual certainty.

Right now SUNY Plattsburgh is the University system's least expensive campus in terms of room rent (which ranges to a high of $2,828, the rate charged at Stony Brook). Even if no other campus raises its rent next year — a highly unlikely circumstance, notes Laundry, who predicts that all 25 will be forced to ask for increases because of spiraling operational costs — Plattsburgh would climb no higher than sixth from the bottom on the room-rent ranking chart.

"There are several reasons why we have been able to offer the lowest room rent in SUNY while maintaining a quality residence hall living environment," says Laundry. "It helps to have our campus situated in a community that provides the second lowest electric rate in the nation, but we've also managed to keep maintenance costs down.

"Damage represents a minimal operational expense here," he continues. "That's a tribute to our students, who traditionally take good care of our facilities, and to the vigilance and communication skills of our residence hall staff."

President Judson Arrives; Calls 'Town Hall' Meeting

Dr. Horace A. Judson has assumed the presidency of SUNY Plattsburgh.

The college's ninth president, formerly provost and vice president for academic affairs at California State University at Stanislaus, arrived on campus Monday evening. He began office hours in the President's Office in Hawkins Hall on Tuesday.

President Judson's schedule for the coming week includes a "Town Hall" type meeting with members of the college community. That session, which will include a brief presentation by Judson and an open discussion and question-answer period, is scheduled for 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. next Tuesday (January 25) in the Angell College Center Warren Ballrooms.

... but Installation of Video and Data Cable Ports to Enhance Residential Environment

The college's request for an increase in residence hall room rent to be effective next fall can be justified for the customary reasons: growing operational expenses brought on by inflation, negotiated salary increases and increasing costs for basic maintenance.

But the increase breakdown shows that less than half of the $300 request will cover these expenses. What's in store with the balance?

"We're moving ahead with a plan to upgrade our residence facilities to bring them into the 21st century in a technological sense," explained William Laundry, director of Campus Life. "By the end of this summer we expect to have video and data cable ports installed in all student rooms, and this project, plus establishment and maintenance of our own satellite-fed campus cable television system, will account for $120 of the increase total.

"Additionally," he said, "we will

Rep. McHugh Visits Alzheimer's Center on Fact-Finding Tour

Congressman John McHugh (R-Pierrepont Manor) visited SUNY Plattsburgh and its Sibley Hall-based Alzheimer's Disease Assistance Center (ADAC) last Friday (January 14) during a fact-finding mission on the health care needs in rural America. ADAC provides outreach activities

McHugh received a thorough orientation to ADAC and its programs from Dr. Taher Zandi, the Center's director, and members of its staff. He caregivers.

Dr. E. Thomas Moran, vice president for academic affairs at SUNY Plattsburgh, reiterated the college's commitment to support ADAC in terms of providing cost-free facilities. "The Center's mission dovetails nicely with the college's avowed obligation to serve the community and its citizens," said Moran.

Besides day care services for dementia patients, Zandi discussed the Center's outreach and education programs as well as its diagnostic services, and he provided answers to McHugh's questions regarding sources of funding (currently, from federal and state agencies and a private philanthropic organization), operating budget (about $350,000 annually) and patient load (nearly 500 active cases). Scanning a wall-mounted map of northeastern New York State that pinpoints towns, villages and hamlets where ADAC's services are now available, McHugh remarked, "The challenges of geography alone are overwhelming."

Asked by McHugh whether the Clinton administration's proposed universal health care plan could impact positively on ADAC, Zandi replied in the negative. "Without being critical of the president," the congressman said, "it is clear that the Clinton health care plan doesn't apply to rural problems; rather, it is structured on a municipal model.

"This urban versus rural bias is difficult to overcome," he said. "In the minds of most politicians, (the State of) New York stops at the Tappan Zee Bridge."

Before leaving campus, Congressman McHugh stopped by the former Sibley Hall classroom where nursing faculty are implementing a project whereby college nursing courses are being broadcast to sites across the North Country via telephone wires and video equipment. The project is being funded by a five-year, $1 million grant from the U.S. Department of Human Services. It will be launched this semester at sites in Glens Falls, Malone and Saranac Lake install basic telephone service in all rooms, an action we have to take to comply with requirements of the Clinton County 911 emergency system. While this will account for the remaining $50 of the total increase, it won't represent a real dollar increase for 90 percent of our students who now pay for telephone service at that rate as a stand-alone charge separate from room rent."

Laundry said that members of the Residence Hall Presidents' Council who participated in discussion sessions on the proposed room rent increase and its rationale expressed enthusiasm about the potential of video and data accessibility. They view it, he said, as a "wonderful service" — one that will make on-campus living "more attractive and convenient," and they are attuned especially to the soaring popularity of the personal computer as a learning tool. "Computers have become the high school graduation present of choice," he said.

"As far as we know," Laundry continued, "the University Center at Binghamton is the only other campus in SUNY whose residence halls are wired for personal computers and cable television reception. When they go on line here, the data ports will allow each resident to plug into the college's VAX time-sharing computer network.

"We are still discussing which channels to place on the video system. We'll probably make available the three major networks (ABC, CBS and NBC) plus CNN and ESPN, and some channels will be reserved exclusively for educational programming. However, we won't offer add-on cost channels, such as HBO or The Movie Channel."

Installation costs are expected to run about $666,000, and College Auxiliary Services has authorized a loan of $150,000 to implement the project. CAS will ultimately assume ownership of the campus cable TV system.

Scholarship Fund Established in Memory of Ingrun Lafleur

A scholarship endowment fund honoring the memory of Dr. Ingrun Lafleur, former associate vice president for academic affairs and associate professor of history, has been established with the Plattsburgh College Foundation.

A member of the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty since 1985, Lafleur died June 7, 1993. She was 52.

The Lafleur endowment was created through the generosity of Dr. Penelope A. Dugan of Willsboro, a former member of the faculty here and a domestic partner of Lafleur, who has pledged $10,000 to the fund over the next five years. Memorial gifts to the Foundation to date in Lafleur's name already total more than $1,000.

The late Ingrun Lafleur

Interest income from the Ingie Lafleur Memorial Endowment Fund will be used to provide scholarships to part-time or full-time adult women students, 19 years of age or older, who meet the college's minimum admissions standards but who might otherwise not be considered for scholarship assistance. According to the agreement with the Foundation, each recipient "shall be a women who has overcome significant difficulties in her personal life and who has the potential to serve as a catalyst for positive change in the lives of others."

Financial need will be a prime consideration. Preference will be given to residents of Essex County, with secondary consideration extended to eligible candidates from Franklin, Warren or Washington counties.

A committee consisting of Patricia Bentley, Lillian Cassidy, Lonnie Fairchild, Naomi McCormick and Jennifer Scanlon will be convened each year to review candidates referred by the college's Financial Aid Office and select the Ingie Lafleur Scholar. The name of the recipient will be announced at the Annual Spring Academic Convocation.

Showcase '94 Information Distributed; Abstracts Due March 1

Planning for Showcase '94 — scheduled this spring on Wednesday, April 6 — is proceeding on schedule, and faculty and staff returning to campus following intercession will find important information about the event waiting for them

"A flyer describing the purpose of Showcase and calling for widespread participation was distributed to all by campus mail early this week," said Dr. Edward Miller, associate professor of chemistry and chair of this year's program organizing committee. "Also, activity abstract forms were attached to every flyer."

Miller pointed out that the abstracts are due March 1, giving the committee less than a week to get them ready for printing. Members of the college community who may misplace the forms or need more of them should contact him (ext. 2117) or Carolyn Belair in the college's Center for Lifelong Learning (ext. 2050).

Meanwhile, facilities and equipment are being booked, posters are being made and some activities have been confirmed. It is a virtual certainty, Miller said, that Showcase '94 will kick-off on Tuesday evening, April 5 with a concert in the Angell Center Warren Ballrooms, repeating a popular debut to Showcase offered for the first time a year ago.

Similarly, it is likely that the second annual induction ceremonies for the college's chapter of Phi Kappa Phi National Honor Society will serve to culminate Showcase '94 at SUNY Plattsburgh.

Award to Lee Supports Outcomes Assessment Project

Dr. Lina Lee, assistant professor of Spanish, has been awarded $1,000 in support of a multifaceted student-outcomes assessment project.

Lee's project has two goals: to select or develop a new placement examination, and to define specific assessment criteria and identify appropriate assessment instruments for use at four critical checkpoints in programs in foreign languages and literature.

The funds will enable Lee to obtain reference materials and software and to attend the meeting of the Northeast Conference on the Teaching of Foreign Languages to be held in April in New York City.

According to Dr. Henry Morlock, professor of psychology and assessment coordinator, the award comes from an award program which provides grants of $500 or $1,000 to cover expenses of student-outcomes assessment projects on campus. Morlock administers the program in consultation with eight colleagues who serve on a college-wide Assessment Advisory Committee.

The deadlines annually for receipt of applications for the awards are April 1 and November 1, and applications should briefly describe the nature of proposed activities, when they will carry out and the value of doing them.

A short project report is due one year after the funds are received.

Dr. W. F. Lawrence, College's First Academic V.P., Dies at 84

Former SUNY Plattsburgh administrator Dr. William F. Lawrence of Gorham, Me. died at his residence on Thursday, January 6, 1994. He was 84.

A native of New York City, Dr. Lawrence received the bachelor's degree from Ursinus College, where he lettered in football, basketball and baseball, in 1933. He earned the master's degree in education and doctoral degree (in 1947) from New York University.

Dr. Lawrence taught, coached and served as an elementary and high school principal in the Somerville, N.J. school system from 1934 to 1945. He held the position of Superintendent of Schools in Somerville from 1945 to 1952, then became Superintendent of Schools in Wantagh, Long Island, a position he held until 1959.

Dr. Lawrence joined the SUNY Plattsburgh administration in 1959 as Director of Education in 1959. He later served as Dean of the College, then became the college's first Vice President for Academic Affairs. He was appointed by the SUNY Board of Trustees to serve as the college's acting president during academic 1970-71. He retired in 1972.

He was acting director of the Miner Institute in Chazy from 1972 to 1974, then moved to Maine, where he became Vice President for Academic Affairs and later President of Nasson College, retiring in 1984. Dr. Lawrence served as the State Education Commissioner of Maine, was elected to the Maine State Legislature from 1984 to 1988 and continued to be active with the Maine State Board of Education until his death.

Dr. Lawrence is survived by his wife, Eleanor (Sheppard) Lawrence of Gorham; a son, William "Skip" Lawrence of Massapequa, N.Y.; a daughter, Susan L. Fleming of Latham, N.Y.; four grandchildren; and one great grandchild. He is remembered by Donald L. Garratt, Executive Assistant to the President at the college, as "a man of great integrity who was dedicated not only to the college, but to the betterment of education. He was a caring man and always showed great concern and support for our students. Locally, he will be mourned by many area teachers. No doubt, many in Maine have also lost a great friend and role model."

Donations in memory of Dr. Lawrence may be made to the donor's educational institution of choice. Messages of condolence may be sent to Mrs. Lawrence in care of Gorham House, Lincoln Column #312, 50 New Portland Road, Gorham, ME 04038

Operation Inform

David Truax, vice chancellor for access services for the State University of New York, addresses guidance counselors attending an "Operation Inform" conference planned and hosted by SUNY Plattsburgh and its Admissions Office staff on January 5. About 30 of 49 counselors from New York and Vermont who signed on for the conference made it to campus, braving a fierce snow storm that closed schools and businesses and made travel a treacherous undertaking throughout the northeast. The day-long program focused on the educational advantages of attending SUNY institutions, including Plattsburgh. Besides guidance counselors, the conference attracted admissions professionals from seven other Universities.

Seniors Given February 1 Deadline for Applications for Phi Kappa Phi Awards

Applications from outstanding SUNY Plattsburgh seniors for Phi Kappa Phi National Honor Society competitive fellowships worth up to $7,000 for first year graduate or professional study are due by February 1.

Fifty of the prestigious fellowships will be awarded nationwide this year along with 30 honorable mention awards valued at $1,000 each. Graduating seniors with superior academic and leadership records should contact the SUNY Plattsburgh Phi Kappa Phi chapter representative, Mark E. Kaiser (160 Redcay or ext. 4206) for additional information and an application.

Collins Earns Another Degree ...with Some Help from 'Fred'

Sibley Child Care Center Has Immediate Openings

The SUNY Plattsburgh Child Care Center has immediate full- and part-time openings for children between the ages of 18 months and 5 years.

The college's students, faculty and staff will be given priority to enroll children. Additionally, center staff report that available openings at the center can now be filled by grandchildren of New York State employees.

The Child Care Center, located in Room 110 of Sibley Hall, is a not-for-profit organization. Persons interested in more information about the center and its programs are urged to contact Sally Girard, assistant director, at ext. 2274.

ulty (and has been, for more than a quarter century) at the institution granting the degree. Moreover, the odds a year ago were stacked heavily against the possibility he would live long enough to earn another scroll signifying academic accomplishment.

"Fred" made it happen.

"That's what I call my new heart — Fred," says the 55-year-old Collins, an associate professor of counseling at the college, in a relaxed, matter-of-fact tone. "I've had Fred since Veterans' Day of '92."

Collins discovered he had a diseased heart about 12 years ago, when he suffered his first heart attack ("That first one should have killed me," he says.). Six more attacks followed. His only salvation: a transplant.

"The transplant operation occurred a year ago this past October at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston," says Collins. "Fred became available after I had been 26 days on a life-support system and, my doctors believe, within three or four days of when I was expected to die."

Collins remembers waking from the operation and seeing his diseased heart in a jar-like container. It was about the size of a softball, he says, and he recalls it looked scarred and dented.

"I found out later that the donor of my new heart was a 13-year-old boy from Vermont who had been killed in an auto accident. His real name remains a mystery to me, but I did learn that his parents are a professional couple who wanted their son to live on in someone else. I talk to Fred occasionally, and I don't feel silly in admitting it."

Collins' recovery is progressing well, although he says he is going through a weaning process from heavy-duty medication. He travels to Boston monthly for a check-up, and so far rejection is zero.

But how does all of this relate to Collins' latest academic success?

Staring death in the face piqued his interest in health-related disciplines, he says, so about three and one-half years ago he started taking graduate courses in health education on a part-time basis. By December he had completed the required 90 hours to qualify for the M.S. in Liberal Studies in that field.

"My own experiences combined with a deep personal concern about effects of substance use and abuse in child and family development represent all the motivation I needed to get started in the program and finish it," he says. "Maybe what I've learned will add a new and important dimension to the college's counseling program."

And, hopefully, with Fred's help, for many years to come ...

(Editor's note: Dr. Collins has been on medical leave from SUNY Plattsburgh for the past two years. He is anxious to return to work, and he awaits the go-ahead from his medical advisors to do so.)

EOP Seeking Summer Peer Tutor/Counselors

The Educational Opportunity Program (EOP) is recruiting summer peer tutors/counselors to work from July 2 through August 5 of this year.

Peer tutor/counselors are paid between $1,200 and $1,250 for the five-week session and receive free room and board. Applications are available in the EOP office in Room 103 of Algonquin Hall.

Candidates' credentials will be reviewed beginning in mid-February.

Vom Saal Ends Plattsburgh Tenure; to Return to Classroom

Dr. Walter vom Saal's half-year term as interim president of SUNY Plattsburgh came to a conclusion earlier this month, and its end marked an end also to his administrative career — at least for the foreseeable future.

The Oneonta Star, in its December 17 edition, reported that vom Saal, vice president for academic affairs at SUNY Oneonta, will step down as vice president to return to teaching, effective July 1 of this year. A tenured professor of psychology at Oneonta, vom Saal will take a study leave during the fall semester of 1994 and begin teaching in that college's Department of Psychology a year from now.

The Star article quotes vom Saal as saying he "greatly enjoyed" the experience as interim president at SUNY Plattsburgh. "During my time there," the article continues, quoting from a vom Saal memo to the Oneonta college community, "I have had the opportunity to think deeply about my personal and professional goals, about future directions for the College at Oneonta, and about what would be best for the college and for myself."

Interim SUNY Plattsburgh President Walter vom Saal (l) accepts framed resolution from College Council Chairperson Robert M. Garrow during winter commencement exercises on December 17. The resolution conveyed the Council's appreciation to Dr. vom Saal for his contributions to the college during its transition to new leadership.

In supporting vom Saal's decision, Oneonta President Alan Donovan cited his colleague's "great diligence, energy and care for (Oneonta's) academic programs," adding, "... we'll certainly miss his services."

Prior to the end of the fall semester and his subsequent departure from campus, vom Saal was recognized for his contributions to SUNY Plattsburgh during its transition to new leadership in citations presented at the December meeting of the Faculty Senate and by the College Council during winter commencement exercises on December 17.

Hockey Cards 2-1 in '94; Cagers' Losing Streaks Continue

The Plattsburgh State men's ice hockey team is 2-1 in the New Year. The Cardinals began the second semester of play with an impressive 9-1 road victory over New England College. Lenny Pereira scored two power play goals and assisted on the game-winner as the Cardinals notched their fourth straight win.

This past weekend the Cards returned home for the first time in a month to face their toughest ECAC weekend of the season. They dropped a hard-fought, 5-4 overtime decision to rival Elmira College on Friday despite an outstanding four-goal performance from forward Chris Tschupp. The following night the Cardinals found themselves involved in another overtime game versus a strong RIT team, but they emerged victorious, 8-7, on a Brian Levesque goal at 3:24 of the extra stanza. The Cards were 10-4-2 overall and 3-1-1 in SUNY Conference play going into Tuesday evening's crucial league game at home against Potsdam State.

The Plattsburgh State men's and women's basketball teams continue to struggle. In their '94 opener on the road, the men got a strong performance from junior Ed Yarnog, who scored 16 points and pulled down eight rebounds, but fell one basket short of upsetting a powerful Stony Brook team, losing 62-59. The slide continued as the Cards were drubbed 100-54 by powerful New York University at NYU and then lost consecutive SUNYAC contests, 78-57 to Buffalo State and 84-76 to Fredonia, also on the road. Plattsburgh is 2-9 on the season and 1-6 against conference teams.

The road-weary women's basketball team also is in the throes of a four-game losing streak. The Cards lost their first game of the second semester 71-60 to a talented Union College team, then endured back-to-back thrashings by Skidmore, 71-44, and Buffalo State, 73-43. They pushed Fredonia to the limits last Saturday, but wound up on the short end of a 49-47 margin. The women Cardinals' overall and conference records entering this week's action were identical to the men's team.

Below: the CBS network show's production crew (with the help of "extras" dressed in '92 vintage Cardinal uniforms) re-creates a scene in which Deloris McNamara, Michael's mother, fights her way through a standing-room-only Stafford Arena crowd to reach her son, who had stopped breathing but was revived via intervention of campus and community medical personnel and training staff from both teams. Fourteen members of the "Rescue 911" production team arrived on campus last Wednesday and continued shooting into the early morning hours on Monday of this week. The segment filmed here is expected to be aired in March (locally, on WCAX-TV, Channel 3 in Burlington).

Proposed '94-95 Budget Includes 5 Percent Hike for SUNY

Governor Cuomo's budget recommendation for the State University of New York and its state-operated campuses for 1994-95 includes a 5.02 percent increase and is being described by University and SUNY Plattsburgh officials as "a good budget."

"We've done well," commented John Homburger, the college's vice president for business and finance. "For the first time in five years, we are not being asked to absorb a cut at the beginning of the budget cycle, nor do we anticipate being required to do so at a later point in the fiscal year."

SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson concurred, calling the proposed increase for state-operated campuses "gratifying." "The governor's budget," he added, "sends a strong, positive signal to supporters of higher education in New York State."

At the same time, however, Judson joined SUNY Central Administration officials in expressing concern that the Executive Budget doesn't adequately address funding requirements of the state-assisted community colleges. "The budget recommendation preserves community college base aid at $1,650 per student and it provides an additional $4.5 million for enrollment growth," Judson noted.

"But," he added, "it fails to recognize the additional funding these campuses need to accommodate the salary and inflationary increases affecting them. We hope the Legislature can find ways to provide the increased support the community colleges desperately need."

If the governor's budget wins the approval of the State Legislature, the college's operating budget in the year beginning July 1 will total $28,999,000, representing an increase of $1,387,200. Most of the increase, or $1,268,300, is marked for negotiated salary increases, but other budget categories show gains.

The latter include temporary service, up $23,600 to $632,200 overall; supplies and expenses, up $16,300 to $1,449,500; contractual services, up

Stoller's Book Examines Aging from Multiple Perspectives

"We (gerontologists) all struggle to help students see that there is a matrix-like array of forces shaping the lives of people as they age and that the matrix itself is a set in a particular historical or social context," writes Jon Hendricks, professor of sociology at Oregon State University in reviewing Worlds of Difference: Inequality and the Aging Experience. "Few books are able to make that point effectively," Hendricks continues. "This book does."

Worlds of Difference, published by Pine Forge Press, was written by Eleanor Palo Stoller, professor of sociology here, coordinator of women's studies at the college and SUNY Distinguished Service Professor, in collaboration with Rose Campbell Gibson, faculty associate at the Institute for Social Research and professor of Social Work at the University of Michigan. It is designed, the authors say, to enhance the inclusiveness of the undergraduate curriculum in social gerontology.

According to Stoller, gerontologists

most often consider inequality within a "multiple jeopardy perspective," which emphasizes the cumulative negative effects of being disadvantaged by race, social class and gender as well as by age. They conceptualize race, class, and gender as social constructions which influence identity formation, opportunity structures, and adaptive resources. They visualize these constructs as interlocking hierarchies that create systems of privilege as well as disadvantage. Their emphasis on the intersection of these multiple systems of inequality is designed to help students understand that older people can experience disadvantage along one dimension but privilege along others.

The Stoller-Gibson book investigates the ways in which people's positions along these multiple hierar-

Black History Month Celebration Features Varied Programs

Presentations, performances, films and videos highlight the agenda for the annual celebration, in February, of Black History Month at SUNY Plattsburgh.

This year's activities get under way next Tuesday (February 2) with a teleconference on "Beyond Racism" scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Cardinal Lounge. Other feature programs throughout February include:

- "On the Radio, Radio, Radio" (WPLT-FM), a special broadcast on "Black Achievers: Prescriptions for Progress" at 7 p.m. on February 2, 9, and 16.

- "Samite of Uganda," a performance workshop on traditional African folk stories, songs and instruments to be held at 8 p.m. on Friday, February 4 in the Angell Center Blue Room;

- "Ashe Caribbean Arts Ensemble," scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on February 8 in Hartman Theatre (a nominal admission fee will be charged);

- A "Down Home BBQ" luncheon in the Centennial Room on Thursday, February 10;

- A Presidents' Speakers Series lecture titled "South African Update" — "a message of peace and hope for South Africa" — by Maki Mandela (see related story, this issue) on Thursday, February 17 in the Angell Center Warren Ballrooms'

- A showing of the film "Cry Freedom," the true story of South African black activist Steve Biko at 8 p.m. on Friday, February 18 in Room 200 of Yokum Hall; and

- "Decide Who You Are," the works of Adrian Piper on Display in the Myers fine Arts Gallery, January 29 to February 24 (reception on Feb. 24 from 4 to 6 p.m., followed by "Xenophobia and the Indexical Present," an audio/video, slide presentation by Piper at 8 p.m. in Room 202 of Yokum Hall.

Black History Month activities and events are sponsored by College Auxiliary Services, the Student Association, the college's Multicultural Affairs Committee, the Visual Artists Series, the Campus Arts Council, AKEBA, the Newman Association, Marriott Food Services and WPLT-FM.

$39,300 to $854,300; and library acquisitions, up $39,500 to $620,700. The college's equipment budget would total $15,900, representing an increase of $200, while its appropriation for utilities remains at the 1993-94 base level, at least for the present time.

Homburger explained that a lump sum appropriation for utility increases will be allocated to each campus pending an analysis of need. The current budget for utilities totals $1,533,700.

Additionally, Homburger said, the Division of the Budget this year recognized and approved a number of "extraordinary items" for varied SUNY campuses. In this category, Plattsburgh is targeted to have $19,700 added to its $30,500 base for landfill fees.

Both Judson and Homburger believe SUNY's ongoing advocacy campaign had a positive impact on the University's relatively good standing in the Executive Budget (according to Homburger, some state agencies face reductions). However, both urged their colleagues and the college's alumni and friends to continue their pro-SUNY efforts.

"This is no time for complacency," Judson said. "The message to the governor and the legislature now should address the vital role SUNY has to play in the New York's economic recovery and its future greatness ... that public higher education in this state is well worth the investment."

chies generate diverse views of social reality. This involves listening to descriptions of aging and old age from multiple perspectives, of "giving voice" to people whose experiences have been overlooked. To achieve this goal, Stoller and Gibson selected readings depicting older people as active creators of culture rather than as merely passive victims.

The book also avoids simple comparisons (women vs men whites vs. African Americans) in which the dominant group is an implicit standard against which others groups are "compared." Instead, the authors explore diversity in the experience of aging along any one dimension. For example, the readings introduce students to older African American women who are wealthy as well as others who are poor.

Finally, Stoller says, Worlds of Difference is guided by a life course perspective. "We want students to understand the historical conditions different categories of older people experienced at particular chronological ages. People who are elderly today lived through the Great Depression of the 1930's, World War II, post-war prosperity and optimism, and the Civil Rights Movement. Elderly African Americans grew up in a legally segregated world which not only limited their economic options but also provided a particular world view and encouraged the development of special adaptive resources."

Stoller describes the book as a "text-reader." Some of the readings are adapted from traditional social science research reports, but they also include poetry, short fiction, and biographical sketches. One of the fiction excerpts ("Between the Funeral") was written by Dr. Ann Tracy, professor of English and Distinguished University Teaching Professor at SUNY Plattsburgh.

The text also includes selections by Alice Walker, Zora Neale Hurston, Maya Angelou, Langston Hughes, Piri Thomas and Studs Terkel.

Speakers' Series to Feature Mandela, Hayslip and Rifkin

An outspoken political activist from South Africa, a survivor of the Vietnam war and a prominent American social critic headline the spring 1994 lineup of presentations in SUNY Plattsburgh's popular Presidents' Speakers Series.

The series this semester will feature Maki Mandela, daughter of South African political party leader Nelson Mandela, who will speak on Thursday, February 17; Vietnamese-American author Le Ly Hayslip, who will visit the campus on Wednesday, March 30; and author Jeremy Rifkin, whose appearance is scheduled for April 19. All presentations are at 8 p.m. in the Angell College Center Angell Ballrooms, and all are free and open to the public.

Mandela, who currently serves as the program director of the African Academy of Science in Nairobi, will give a talk titled "South African Update." The recipient of the Ph.D. from UMASS, Amherst, Mandella, a Fulbright scholar, social worker, political activist and feminist, is noted for speaking out for her homeland and against apartheid, one of the most oppressive and crippling social institutions in the world.

Le Ly Hayslip, born in Vietnam in 1949, endured and survived the pilaging of her country, married an American soldier and moved with him to San Diego in 1970 where she "lived the American Dream." In 1986 she visited Vietnam and found it, 15 years after the war, still ravaged by the fighting. Her story has been chronicled in her best-selling book,

When Heaven and Earth Changed Places, since made into a movie by Oliver Stone.

Rifkin, a frequent guest on television news programs and talk shows and a correspondent to several weekly newspapers and magazines, will explain why he exclaims "Biotechnology? Bah!" in a discussion of the politics and ethics of biotechnology, including genetic engineering, surrogate mothering, food additives, the "Greenhouse Effect," virtual reality, and bionic culture. Rifkin is the author of Biosphere Politics, Beyond Beef, Entropy Into the Greenhouse World, and Time Wars.

The Presidents' Speakers Series is sponsored jointly by the Presidents of the college, the Student Association, and College Auxiliary Services.

Residence Hall Staff Compiles Impressive 3.28 Fall '93 GPA

A Campus Life study of the fall semester '93 academic performance of Plattsburgh's 100-plus residence hall staff shows that staff members collectively achieved an overall semester grade-point average of 3.28.

The GPA indicates a slight improvement in comparison with the fall 1992 average of 3.26. Additionally, 71 members of the current staff earned GPAs higher than 3.0; 34 scored 3.5 or above; and five achieved a perfect 4.0.

The staff members whose GPAs were perfect are residence hall directors Richard Davino of Sea Cliff and Kelly Rose of Fultonville, both graduate students in student affairs counseling, and resident assistants Kari Fleming, a senior psychology major from Rome; Sondra Lowenstein, a junior special education major from Vestal; and Kay McEvoy, a junior English/journalism major from La Forgeville.

Wright, and Alicia Yaeger.

The top residence halls for overall staff GPAs for the fall were deFredenburgh Hall, with a 3.46 average, followed by Macomb Hall with 3.41, Harrington Hall with 3.37, and Mason Hall with 3.35.

Hogle, Hartman Assume New Duties

Two members of the college's Campus Life staff have taken on new assignments.

According to Dr. Eldridge W. Roark, Jr., vice president for student affairs, Cheryl M. Hogle, associate director of Campus Life, will assume added duties as coordinator of new student programs. Besides her current responsibilities for the new student Summer Orientation and Freshman Experience Programs, Hogle will coordinate all transfer student services and programs.

This spring, as part of the Freshman Experience program, Hogle will implement a new component, a "Home Study Course for Parents." The home study course is a quasi correspondence course that will be offered to all parents of accepted freshmen, and it covers the basics of "preparing for and surviving their student's first year of college."

Hogle's former responsibility as coordinator of the Resident Assistant Training Program will be assumed by Bryan Hartman, who serves currently as assistant director of Campus Life for leadership programs and off-campus concerns.

Crane's Latin Band to Perform at Dance

El Pueblo and the college's Multicultural Affairs Committee are co-sponsoring a dance with music by SUNY Potsdam's Crane Latin Band on Friday (January 28) from 8 to 11 p.m. in the Angell Center Warren Ballrooms.

The event will feature Latin American and Caribbean music. Admission is free.

Hockey Cards Continue Hot Home Streak; Cagers Win 2 of 3

The Plattsburgh State ice hockey team continued its strong play on home ice with victories this past week over Potsdam College (7-1) and ECAC

West leader Canisius College (6-5). Forward Jeff Azar has been the Cardinal's hottest player of late, registering a goal and an assist against Potsdam and potting two goals against a resilient Canisius squad.

The Plattsburgh State men's basketball squad ended an otherwise successful week on a disappointing note, losing 60-63 to Oneonta on Saturday after overwhelming St. Lawrence 80-65 and New Paltz 86-68 earlier in the week. Junior center Greg James was impressive in the three-game set, averaging 19 points per game while pulling down 40 rebounds.

The women's basketball team sandwiched a win over New Paltz (59-37) between losses to St. Lawrence (56-51) and Oneonta (56-50). Suzy Paiser, Stephanie Holmes, and Kristy Sprague all turned in strong individual performances in the three-game home stand: Paiser ran the Cardinal offense registering 12 assists in the three games; Holmes dominated the boards in pulling down 30 rebounds during the week; and Sprague poured in a season high 23 points in the loss to Oneonta.

In dual swim meets last week, Cardinal Pete van Brunt won the 200 breast (1:08.98) against Clarkson and captured the 200 IM (2:17.28) and the 100 breast (1:07.47) against St. Michael's. The women's swimming and diving team defeated Clarkson behind the strong efforts of Julie Dandrow. Dandrow took firsts in the 50 free (26.48) and the 100 back (1:12.57) to lead the Cardinals over Clarkson 108-78, and she was first in the 100 free (58:09) and swam a leg on the winning 200 relay team (1:56.87) versus St. Michael's.

Jeremy Burt and Tom Ouellette won individual events for Plattsburgh Saturday in the annual Cardinal Classic indoor track and field meet. Burt defeated 11 runners to win the 1500m in (4:11.4) and Ouellette held off 10 runners to take the 3,000m (9:09.88). Karen Shawdestin and Tami Rollins were top finishers for Plattsburgh in their Cardinal Classic. Shawdestin finished second in the 55m dash (8.28) and Rollins was second in the 20lb. weight throw (26' 3/4").

Gillespie Wins Scholarship from Order of Omega

Mary Ellen Gillespie, a senior speech communication major from Sayville, recently received a $500 scholarship from the Order of Omega, a national honor society for members of fraternities and sororities.

Ms. Gillespie

The scholarship was based on Gillespie's record in service to SUNY Plattsburgh and to the college's Greek community. She is the first Plattsburgh student to receive the award, and one of 30 recipients chosen for the honor nation wide.

Gillespie is currently a member of Alpha Delta Theta sorority and is serving her third term as president of Greek Council. She has also served as Student Association Vice President for Academics, and as a parent orientation leader.

Last May, Gillespie was awarded the Toni C. Bloom Memorial Scholarship for her college achievements. As with the Bloom award, says Gillespie, the Order of Omega scholarship will help to pay for college costs.

Psychology Hosts Confab for Region's Teachers

SUNY Plattsburgh's psychology department will host a day-long conference for Clinton County high school psychology teachers tomorrow (January 27) to discuss and exchange information on new developments in the teaching of psychology.

Most conference presentations will be held in Room 432 of Beaumont Hall, and they will focus on current research in progress by Plattsburgh faculty members Peter Hornby, Cynthia Lightfoot, Naomi McCormick, Henry Morlock, and Jeanne Ryan. Student members of Psi Chi, the national psychology honor society, will give a lunchtime program in the Angell Center Centennial Room on the topic, "Preparing for College: What I Wished My Teachers Had Told Me."

According to workshop coordinator Morlock, the conference gives local teachers the chance to go over current high-interest areas in the psychology field, obtain information on the Advanced Placement examination, and to discuss concerns with faculty and students.

The conference is sponsored by the Collaborative Science Education for the North Country Project, which is funded by the State Education Department with federal funds provided through the Eisenhower Foundation, and which supports the college's annual summertime Explorations in Science program.

Eating Disorders Expert Lectures Here Thursday

Caroline Adams Miller, a nationally recognized expert on eating disorders, will give a public lecture tomorrow (January 27) at 8 p.m. in Warren Ballroom B in the Angell College Center at SUNY Plattsburgh.

Miller is the author of several books and articles about her experiences with eating disorders and her expertise on the topic, and the founder of F.E.E.D. — the Foundation for Education about Eating Disorders. F.E.E.D. is a not-for-profit organization whose mission is to educate people about eating disorders.

She is also co-founder of Renewal, Inc., an organization that has constructed and operated residential treatment centers for people who suffer from eating disorders. She has appeared on several television shows, and she has contributed articles to The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, and other periodicals. Her book, My Name is Caroline, has been excerpted for publication in Family Circle, New Woman, British New Woman, and Washington Magazine.

Private Support in '93 Surpasses $680,000

The Plattsburgh College Foundation raised more than $680,000 in 1993, thanks to diligent efforts on the part of numerous volunteers. Foundation President Clifford Calongne announced the good news during the corporation's annual meeting on Thursday (February 3).

"This is very good news," Calongne said, "since the economy has not rallied a great deal. We are very grateful to the many volunteers who spent a great deal of time on the various campaigns, as well as to the many very generous supporters of the college who participated in the 1993 campaign."

Calongne announced that the total figure for all campaigns — annual giving, endowment giving, gifts to the Centennial Fund in its final year and planned giving, plus the special project to raise money to restore the E. Glenn Giltz Auditorium in Hawkins Hall — amounted to $681,737.99.

Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson said, "It is a pleasure and privilege to be president of an institution which has the widespread support of so many different groups of people — alumni, faculty and staff, business-persons, parents, friends in the community, and even members of area service clubs and organizations. It surely demonstrates the high regard in which the college is held. I am looking forward to getting to know the many Foundation volunteers and benefactors and to thanking them personally."

Don Garrant, executive director of the Foundation, announced the results of the various segments of the campaign, commenting first on the formal completion of the Centennial Campaign. "Five years ago, on the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of this institution," he said, "we set out to raise $500,000 in endowment funds to help provide for the future needs of the college. We set that goal with some trepidation, but were delighted at the very early support. We quickly surpassed our goal with pledges and contributions. Now that campaign has come to a close and we are pleased to announce that our final total is $643,852.08." (A story on the completion of the Centennial Campaign will appear in next week's Weekly.)

Garrant continued, "The annual giving campaign brought in $393,497.56; a total of $89,983.89 was contributed to the college's various endowment funds; planned gifts totaling $107,875 were realized; an additional $36,510 was donated in the first year of the special project to raise funds for the renovation of the E. Glenn Giltz Auditorium, and, finally,

Meron, Burke, Sheen and Harvey Join Foundation's Board

Four new members have joined the Plattsburgh College Foundation's Board of Directors.

The Plattsburgh Alumni Association's Board of Directors has appointed Terry Meron '71 to serve a three-year term as its representative. Elected today to three-year terms as community representatives were Roger Burke and William Shene '64.

Also, President Horace Judson has appointed Carrie Harvey, newly-elected president of the Student Association, to serve on the board, representing the student body. Harvey's term will run concurrently with her tenure as SA president.

Plattsburgh businessperson Meron is president/owner of Meron Construction, Meron Properties, the Comfort Inn, the Court Club, and Maxwell's Restaurant. He received a law degree from the University in Buffalo in 1975. Meron has been a member of the Foundation corporation for several years and has been active with the Business Campaign.

Burke has been associated with the Pepsi-Cola Company for 16 years and has been general manager of Pepsi Cola-Keeseville Bottling Company, a division of Allied Bottlers, for five years. He has been a member of the Foundation corporation for five years and has volunteered with the Business Campaign.

Support from 255 businesses and corporations generated $136,525 for all campaigns. "We are very grateful to members of this constituency for their support," Garrant said, "and we hope it reflects the business community's confidence in a healthy economic future for our region."

Garrant pointed out that contributions to the Cardinal Booster Club surpassed $23,172, and they are counted in gift totals attributed to SUNY Plattsburgh alumni, faculty and staff, friends of the college and to businesses that support the sports organization. He commented also that 1,062 parents of students supported this year's Parents' Fund. "That is a tremendous outpouring of support when you consider that this particular group is already paying tuition and other costs for their sons and daughters to attend SUNY Plattsburgh," he said.

Planned gifts came in the form of several bequests and income from two trusts. The wills of three alumni who died during the past year, Harold Stratton '25, Frances Slater McPherson '22, and Hester Coleman Munson '21, provided bequests for SUNY Plattsburgh. Also, a bequest was received from the estate of the late Albert G. Carriere. Finally, the Lewis A. Robinson Trust and the Elva O.

Guilbault Trust provided a total of $27,375 in student aid funds.

The college's various endowment funds grew by more than $240,000 this year, with several new endowments created. New endowments in 1993 included the Dr. Martin Hasting Scholarship Endowment, the Clinton County Business and Professional Women's Endowment, and one created by members of Omicron Delta Kappa, the national leadership honor society.

Finally, the special project to renovate and restore the E. Glenn Giltz Auditorium gained momentum, as approximately 175 seats have been "sold" for donations of $250 each. That campaign, with a goal of $207,000 will continue through the end of 1995.

Cultural Activities Command Black History Month Spotlight

SUNY Plattsburgh's annual celebration of Black History Month throughout February swings into high gear in the coming week with performances by an acclaimed musician, singer and songwriter and a touring arts ensemble.

"Samite of Uganda" will give a performance workshop on traditional African Folk stories, songs and instruments in a program scheduled for tomorrow (Friday, February 4) at 8 p.m. in the Angell Center Blue Room. The "ASHE Caribbean Arts Ensemble," a troupe of 20-plus "talented dancers, singers and actors" from Jamaica will perform on Tuesday (February 8) at 7:30 p.m. in the Myers Fine Arts Building's Hartman Theatre.

Both activities are open to the campus and community. The Samite of Uganda program is free, but there is a charge of $1 for students, faculty and staff and $2 for the general public for admission to the ASHE group's performance.

Samite Mulondo emigrated to the U.S. in 1987 from his native Uganda, where he had earned acclaim for delivering "his mellifluous vocals in his mother tongue, Luganda," and for "mesmerizing audiences with original compositions played on various flutes (traditional and Western), karimba (finger-piano), marimba (wooden xylophone) and litungu (seven-stringed Uganda instrument). His latest recording, "Pearl of Africa Reborn," features compositions which "retain the essence of African tradition, with lyrics addressing social issues and celebrating common joys."

In a recent review, The New York Times refers to Samite as a "modern day troubadour" whose music rings with "a winning benevolence." "With steady rhythms and melodic lines that sound familiar to Western listeners," states the reviewer, "(Samite's) sons are euphonious enough to verge on new-age music, but they have enough cross-rhythm to hold the ear."

The ASHE Caribbean Arts Ensemble has received rave reviews not only in this country but also in Europe, and the troupe has been booked to participate in folk festivals this year England, Russia, Egypt, Korea and

South Africa. Its show, described as "energetic, unique and colorful," consists of folk songs and dances and is designed to teach audiences about "the beauty of the Caribbean culture."

A critic for The Washington Post calls the troupe "wickedly talented ... seasoned performers (who) positively glow with stage presence." The Jamaica Herald proclaims ASHE to be "absolutely awesome, brilliant, beautiful and extremely creative," and the Miami Herald states that ASHE "comes together in song, dance and drama with a message of hope for young people and adults alike," using "the medium of the performing arts to teach lessons on love, self respect and responsibility."

TIAA-CREF Schedules 'Benefit Information Days'

The college's Personnel Office and the collective bargaining organizations that represent campus employees will co-sponsor concurrent information sessions on benefits and on the TIAA-CREF retirement program on Tuesday and Wednesday, February 8 and 9.

The schedule:

- Benefits Information: 2 to 6 p.m. on Tuesday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Wednesday, both in the Angell Center Warren Ballroom.
- TIAA/CREF Information (individual appointments): 2 to 6 p.m. on Tuesday and 9 a.m. to

2 p.m. on Wednesday in Meeting rooms 2 and 3 in the Angell Center.

Individuals wishing to arrange appointments to discuss their situations one-on-one with a TIAA-CREF representative are urged to call Doris Green at 1-800-842-8412 between 8:15 a.m. and 4 p.m. before Friday, February 4.

spring honored her as the campus chapter's "sophomore leader of the year." She is a resident assistant, a SUNY Student Assembly representative and, as SA president, also serves on the Plattsburgh College Council and the Alumni Association's Board of Directors.

In addition to the four new members, two current board members have been re-appointed. Dr. Nancy Church, associate professor of management and marketing, was re-appointed by President Judson to a fifth one-year term representing faculty and staff, and the College Council re-appointed Beth Johnson as its representative to the Board. Johnson is professor of biology at North Country Community College in Saranac Lake.

Drescher Award Recipients Recognized

The majority of past and recently named recipients of NYS/UUP Dr. Nuala McGann Drescher Affirmative Action Leave Program Awards for research activities gathered last week (along with the program's namesake, a former UUP president, and with the current president of the collective bargaining unit representing the University's faculty and professional staff) for a reception in their honor hosted recently by SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson. McGann awards are made available SUNY-wide to minorities, women, or Vietnam era veterans who are full-time, non-tenure term employees and who have received at least a one-term continuing appointment. In 1993, seven of seven SUNY Plattsburgh applicants won the awards. The group at the reception included (seated, left to right): Linda Kalof (sociology), Faten Moussa (management and marketing), Lynda Ames (psychology), and Maria-Elena Angulo (foreign languages), and (standing, left to right): current UUP President Bill Scheuerman, Jeanne Ryan (psychology), Beth Dixon (philosophy), Diane Fine (art), Cynthia Lightfoot (psychology), Jennifer Scanlon (women's studies), President Judson, and past UUP President Drescher. Past Drescher recipients from this campus who could not attend are Anita Rapone (history) and Bonnie Seidel-Rogol (biology).

Psychology Faculty Host High School Colleagues

Psychology Professor Dr. Henry Morlock (center, background) makes a point during a conference for Clinton County high school psychology teachers held on campus last Thursday under sponsorship of the college-based "Collaborative Science Education for the North Country Project." The conference attracted several area teachers interested in exploring high-interest research areas in the field of psychology with several SUNY Plattsburgh faculty program participants, and it included a session on "Preparing for College: What I Wished My Teachers Had Told Me" presented by current undergraduates who are members of Psi Chi, the national psychology honor society.

Cards' Home Ice Playoff Chances on Thin Ice

The men's ice hockey team's drive for home ice throughout the SUNYAC playoffs ran into a road block when the Cardinals lost 5-2 to Fredonia Friday evening. The Cards rebounded the following night, downing Brockport 8-1 to raise their SUNYAC record to 5-2-1. All-American Lenny Pereira reached the 100-goal milestone with a four goal performance against Brockport. Pereira now has 101 goals in his four year career, placing him third on the all-time Cardinal goal scoring list.

The men's basketball team lost to Albany 62-86, Brockport 73-83, and Geneseo 61-79 during the week to fall to 4-13 overall. The women cagers squeezed a win between two losses, defeating Brockport 55-51 after losing 38-68 to Albany and before losing 36-92 to Geneseo.

Plattsburgh's men's swimming and diving team lost 77-111 this past week at Middlebury College despite another strong performance by Pete van Brunt, who won the 100 freestyle (:56.13) and the 100 breast (1:11.59) events. The women's team lost 81-120 at Middlebury. Senior Jen Gallo won the 100-breast stroke (1:19.07), and Julie Dandrow and Andrea Yeager were the other event winners for the Cardinals, claiming first in the 100 free (59.12) and the 100 back stroke (1:15.14), respectively.

The men's and women's indoor track teams defeated Norwich and Middlebury to claim first place in the Norwich Classic with identical scores of 61 points. Finishing first for the men Cards were Jay Rose (High Jump - 6'2"), Stephen Wefer (1000m - 3:09.2), and Joe Tiffany (Pole Vault - 10'6"). Placing first for the Cardinal women were Tammi Rollins (35 lb. wt., 27' 4 1/2" and Shot Put, 28' 2 1/2") and Jen Wiseman (400m, 63.4s and 200m, 29.2s).

Weekly Delayed This Week

Weekly was published for distribution on Thursday this week to accommodate same-day coverage of the annual meeting of the Plattsburgh College Foundation and the results of the Foundation's development program in 1993. The regular Wednesday publication schedule will resume next week, meaning the deadline for news items for the February 9 edition will be noon on Monday, February 7.

1993 Faculty/Staff Honor Roll of Donors

The Plattsburgh College Foundation's 1993 Faculty/Staff Fund Drive has closed officially, with 265 current and retired faculty and staff having contributed a total of $55,949.44 to the various Foundation campaigns.

Foundation President Clifford P. Calongne expressed appreciation to those who participated. "It is always heartening to see the number of faculty and staff, particularly those who have retired, who generously support the college's mission and its students. Certainly these special members of the SUNY Plattsburgh family recognize the college's needs, and their support sets the example for giving by alumni, parents of students, local businesses and other friends in the community. We are especially pleased at the many faculty and staff who have joined the various leadership giving societies."

Contributions by current and retired faculty and staff, in addition to many unrestricted gifts, were designated for scholarships, for library purchases, for use by various academic departments and programs, for campus beautification, and for faculty and student research and travel. Numerous faculty and staff also designated their gifts for the Centennial Campaign which concluded on December 31, 1993, and to several of the college's new or well-established endowment funds, including the Dr. Martin Hasting Endowment Fund, the Dr. Ingrun Lafleur Memorial Endowment Fund, the Omicron Delta Kappa Endowment Fund, and several others.

The 1994 Faculty/Staff Fund Drive is already underway, the first Foundation fund drive to kick off. Anyone who has not made a contribution or pledge to the 1994 campaign may do so by contacting the Foundation office at 564-2090.

Private Support in '93 Surpasses $680,000

The Plattsburgh College Foundation raised more than $680,000 in 1993, thanks to diligent efforts on the part of numerous volunteers. Foundation President Clifford Calongne announced the good news during the corporation's annual meeting on Thursday (February 3).

"This is very good news," Calongne said, "since the economy has not rallied a great deal. We are very grateful to the many volunteers who spent a great deal of time on the various campaigns, as well as to the many very generous supporters of the college who participated in the 1993 campaign."

Calongne announced that the total figure for all campaigns — annual giving, endowment giving, gifts to the Centennial Fund in its final year and planned giving, plus the special project to raise money to restore the E. Glenn Giltz Auditorium in Hawkins Hall — amounted to $681,737.99.

Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson said, "It is a pleasure and privilege to be president of an institution which has the widespread support of so many different groups of people — alumni, faculty and staff, business-persons, parents, friends in the community, and even members of area service clubs and organizations. It surely demonstrates the high regard in which the college is held. I am looking forward to getting to know the many Foundation volunteers and benefactors and to thanking them personally."

Don Garrant, executive director of the Foundation, announced the results of the various segments of the campaign, commenting first on the formal completion of the Centennial Campaign. "Five years ago, on the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of this institution," he said, "we set out to raise $500,000 in endowment funds to help provide for the future needs of the college. We set that goal with some trepidation, but were delighted at the very early support. We quickly surpassed our goal with pledges and contributions. Now that campaign has come to a close and we are pleased to announce that our final total is $643,852.08." (A story on the completion of the Centennial Campaign will appear in next week's Weekly.)

Garrant continued, "The annual giving campaign brought in $393,497.56; a total of $89,983.89 was contributed to the college's various endowment funds; planned gifts totaling $107,875 were realized; an additional $36,510 was donated in the first year of the special project to raise funds for the renovation of the E. Glenn Giltz Auditorium, and, finally,

Meron, Burke, Sheen and Harvey Join Foundation's Board

Four new members have joined the Plattsburgh College Foundation's Board of Directors.

The Plattsburgh Alumni Association's Board of Directors has appointed Terry Meron '71 to serve a three-year term as its representative. Elected today to three-year terms as community representatives were Roger Burke and William Shene '64.

Also, President Horace Judson has appointed Carrie Harvey, newly-elected president of the Student Association, to serve on the board, representing the student body. Harvey's term will run concurrently with her tenure as SA president.

Plattsburgh businessperson Meron is president/owner of Meron Construction, Meron Properties, the Comfort Inn, the Court Club, and Maxwell's Restaurant. He received a law degree from the University in Buffalo in 1975. Meron has been a member of the Foundation corporation for several years and has been active with the Business Campaign.

Burke has been associated with the Pepsi-Cola Company for 16 years and has been general manager of Pepsi Cola-Keeseville Bottling Company, a division of Allied Bottlers, for five years. He has been a member of the Foundation corporation for five years and has volunteered with the Business Campaign.

Support from 255 businesses and corporations generated $136,525 for all campaigns. "We are very grateful to members of this constituency for their support," Garrant said, "and we hope it reflects the business community's confidence in a healthy economic future for our region."

Garrant pointed out that contributions to the Cardinal Booster Club surpassed $23,172, and they are counted in gift totals attributed to SUNY Plattsburgh alumni, faculty and staff, friends of the college and to businesses that support the sports organization. He commented also that 1,062 parents of students supported this year's Parents' Fund. "That is a tremendous outpouring of support when you consider that this particular group is already paying tuition and other costs for their sons and daughters to attend SUNY Plattsburgh," he said.

Planned gifts came in the form of several bequests and income from two trusts. The wills of three alumni who died during the past year, Harold Stratton '25, Frances Slater McPherson '22, and Hester Coleman Munson '21, provided bequests for SUNY Plattsburgh. Also, a bequest was received from the estate of the late Albert G. Carriere. Finally, the Lewis A. Robinson Trust and the Elva O.

Guilbault Trust provided a total of $27,375 in student aid funds.

The college's various endowment funds grew by more than $240,000 this year, with several new endowments created. New endowments in 1993 included the Dr. Martin Hasting Scholarship Endowment, the Clinton County Business and Professional Women's Endowment, and one created by members of Omicron Delta Kappa, the national leadership honor society.

Finally, the special project to renovate and restore the E. Glenn Giltz Auditorium gained momentum, as approximately 175 seats have been "sold" for donations of $250 each. That campaign, with a goal of $207,000 will continue through the end of 1995.

Cultural Activities Command Black History Month Spotlight

SUNY Plattsburgh's annual celebration of Black History Month throughout February swings into high gear in the coming week with performances by an acclaimed musician, singer and songwriter and a touring arts ensemble.

"Samite of Uganda" will give a performance workshop on traditional African Folk stories, songs and instruments in a program scheduled for tomorrow (Friday, February 4) at 8 p.m. in the Angell Center Blue Room. The "ASHE Caribbean Arts Ensemble," a troupe of 20-plus "talented dancers, singers and actors" from Jamaica will perform on Tuesday (February 8) at 7:30 p.m. in the Myers Fine Arts Building's Hartman Theatre.

Both activities are open to the campus and community. The Samite of Uganda program is free, but there is a charge of $1 for students, faculty and staff and $2 for the general public for admission to the ASHE group's performance.

Samite Mulondo emigrated to the U.S. in 1987 from his native Uganda, where he had earned acclaim for delivering "his mellifluous vocals in his mother tongue, Luganda," and for "mesmerizing audiences with original compositions played on various flutes (traditional and Western), karimba (finger-piano), marimba (wooden xylophone) and litungu (seven-stringed Uganda instrument). His latest recording, "Pearl of Africa Reborn," features compositions which "retain the essence of African tradition, with lyrics addressing social issues and celebrating common joys."

In a recent review, The New York Times refers to Samite as a "modern day troubadour" whose music rings with "a winning benevolence." "With steady rhythms and melodic lines that sound familiar to Western listeners," states the reviewer, "(Samite's) sons are euphonious enough to verge on new-age music, but they have enough cross-rhythm to hold the ear."

The ASHE Caribbean Arts Ensemble has received rave reviews not only in this country but also in Europe, and the troupe has been booked to participate in folk festivals this year England, Russia, Egypt, Korea and

South Africa. Its show, described as "energetic, unique and colorful," consists of folk songs and dances and is designed to teach audiences about "the beauty of the Caribbean culture."

A critic for The Washington Post calls the troupe "wickedly talented ... seasoned performers (who) positively glow with stage presence." The Jamaica Herald proclaims ASHE to be "absolutely awesome, brilliant, beautiful and extremely creative," and the Miami Herald states that ASHE "comes together in song, dance and drama with a message of hope for young people and adults alike," using "the medium of the performing arts to teach lessons on love, self respect and responsibility."

TIAA-CREF Schedules 'Benefit Information Days'

The college's Personnel Office and the collective bargaining organizations that represent campus employees will co-sponsor concurrent information sessions on benefits and on the TIAA-CREF retirement program on Tuesday and Wednesday, February 8 and 9.

The schedule:

- Benefits Information: 2 to 6 p.m. on Tuesday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Wednesday, both in the Angell Center Warren Ballroom.
- TIAA/CREF Information (individual appointments): 2 to 6 p.m. on Tuesday and 9 a.m. to

2 p.m. on Wednesday in Meeting rooms 2 and 3 in the Angell Center.

Individuals wishing to arrange appointments to discuss their situations one-on-one with a TIAA-CREF representative are urged to call Doris Green at 1-800-842-8412 between 8:15 a.m. and 4 p.m. before Friday, February 4.

spring honored her as the campus chapter's "sophomore leader of the year." She is a resident assistant, a SUNY Student Assembly representative and, as SA president, also serves on the Plattsburgh College Council and the Alumni Association's Board of Directors.

In addition to the four new members, two current board members have been re-appointed. Dr. Nancy Church, associate professor of management and marketing, was re-appointed by President Judson to a fifth one-year term representing faculty and staff, and the College Council re-appointed Beth Johnson as its representative to the Board. Johnson is professor of biology at North Country Community College in Saranac Lake.

Board members with continuing appointments include Marie Beemer, Ralph Boardman, Clifford Calongne, Roger Forrence, Elizabeth Kelly, John Longware '56, Patrick Murnane, Celine Paquette '60, Victor T. Podd Sr., Meredith Prime, Andrew Schonbek, and Margot Thomas '71.

Drescher Award Recipients Recognized

The majority of past and recently named recipients of NYS/UUP Dr. Nuala McGann Drescher Affirmative Action Leave Program Awards for research activities gathered last week (along with the program's namesake, a former UUP president, and with the current president of the collective bargaining unit representing the University's faculty and professional staff) for a reception in their honor hosted recently by SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson. McGann awards are made available SUNY-wide to minorities, women, or Vietnam era veterans who are full-time, non-tenure term employees and who have received at least a one-term continuing appointment. In 1993, seven of seven SUNY Plattsburgh applicants won the awards. The group at the reception included (seated, left to right): Linda Kalof (sociology), Faten Moussa (management and marketing), Lynda Ames (psychology), and Maria-Elena Angulo (foreign languages), and (standing, left to right): current UUP President Bill Scheuerman, Jeanne Ryan (psychology), Beth Dixon (philosophy), Diane Fine (art), Cynthia Lightfoot (psychology), Jennifer Scanlon (women's studies), President Judson, and past UUP President Drescher. Past Drescher recipients from this campus who could not attend are Anita Rapone (history) and Bonnie Seidel-Rogol (biology).

Psychology Faculty Host High School Colleagues

Psychology Professor Dr. Henry Morlock (center, background) makes a point during a conference for Clinton County high school psychology teachers held on campus last Thursday under sponsorship of the college-based "Collaborative Science Education for the North Country Project." The conference attracted several area teachers interested in exploring high-interest research areas in the field of psychology with several SUNY Plattsburgh faculty program participants, and it included a session on "Preparing for College: What I Wished My Teachers Had Told Me" presented by current undergraduates who are members of Psi Chi, the national psychology honor society.

Cards' Home Ice Playoff Chances on Thin Ice

The men's ice hockey team's drive for home ice throughout the SUNYAC playoffs ran into a road block when the Cardinals lost 5-2 to Fredonia Friday evening. The Cards rebounded the following night, downing Brockport 8-1 to raise their SUNYAC record to 5-2-1. All-American Lenny Pereira reached the 100-goal milestone with a four goal performance against Brockport. Pereira now has 101 goals in his four year career, placing him third on the all-time Cardinal goal scoring list.

The men's basketball team lost to Albany 62-86, Brockport 73-83, and Geneseo 61-79 during the week to fall to 4-13 overall. The women cagers squeezed a win between two losses, defeating Brockport 55-51 after losing 38-68 to Albany and before losing 36-92 to Geneseo.

Plattsburgh's men's swimming and diving team lost 77-111 this past week at Middlebury College despite another strong performance by Pete van Brunt, who won the 100 freestyle (:56.13) and the 100 breast (1:11.59) events. The women's team lost 81-120 at Middlebury. Senior Jen Gallo won the 100-breast stroke (1:19.07), and Julie Dandrow and Andrea Yeager were the other event winners for the Cardinals, claiming first in the 100 free (59.12) and the 100 back stroke (1:15.14), respectively.

The men's and women's indoor track teams defeated Norwich and Middlebury to claim first place in the Norwich Classic with identical scores of 61 points. Finishing first for the men Cards were Jay Rose (High Jump - 6'2"), Stephen Wefer (1000m - 3:09.2), and Joe Tiffany (Pole Vault - 10'6"). Placing first for the Cardinal women were Tammi Rollins (35 lb. wt., 27' 4 1/2" and Shot Put, 28' 2 1/2") and Jen Wiseman (400m, 63.4s and 200m, 29.2s).

Weekly Delayed This Week

Weekly was published for distribution on Thursday this week to accommodate same-day coverage of the annual meeting of the Plattsburgh College Foundation and the results of the Foundation's development program in 1993. The regular Wednesday publication schedule will resume next week, meaning the deadline for news items for the February 9 edition will be noon on Monday, February 7.

1993 Faculty/Staff Honor Roll of Donors

The Plattsburgh College Foundation's 1993 Faculty/Staff Fund Drive has closed officially, with 265 current and retired faculty and staff having contributed a total of $55,949.44 to the various Foundation campaigns.

Foundation President Clifford P. Calongne expressed appreciation to those who participated. "It is always heartening to see the number of faculty and staff, particularly those who have retired, who generously support the college's mission and its students. Certainly these special members of the SUNY Plattsburgh family recognize the college's needs, and their support sets the example for giving by alumni, parents of students, local businesses and other friends in the community. We are especially pleased at the many faculty and staff who have joined the various leadership giving societies."

Contributions by current and retired faculty and staff, in addition to many unrestricted gifts, were designated for scholarships, for library purchases, for use by various academic departments and programs, for campus beautification, and for faculty and student research and travel. Numerous faculty and staff also designated their gifts for the Centennial Campaign which concluded on December 31, 1993, and to several of the college's new or well-established endowment funds, including the Dr. Martin Hasting Endowment Fund, the Dr. Ingrun Lafleur Memorial Endowment Fund, the Omicron Delta Kappa Endowment Fund, and several others.

The 1994 Faculty/Staff Fund Drive is already underway, the first Foundation fund drive to kick off. Anyone who has not made a contribution or pledge to the 1994 campaign may do so by contacting the Foundation office at 564-2090.

Centennial Campaign Ends Officially with $643,852 in Gifts

The Plattsburgh College Foundation has announced the formal completion of its five-year Centennial Campaign.

Foundation President Clifford Calongne told Foundation members during the organization's annual meeting last week that the campaign raised a total of $643,852.08 with gifts received from 820 alumni, faculty and staff, businesses, organizations and friends in the community.

Don Garrant, executive director of the Foundation, said, "Five years ago, on the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of this institution, we set out to raise $500,000 in endowment funds to help provide for the future needs of the college. We set that goal with some trepidation, but we're delighted at the very early support. We quickly surpassed our goal."

Garrant recalled Founders' Day, June 15, 1989, when the campaign, chaired by Harry E. Mowry, former vice president of the Plattsburgh College Foundation and former member of the Plattsburgh College Council, was announced publicly. On that day, Mowry reported that nearly 70 percent of the goal had already been pledged, and he received a symbolic check in the amount of $10,000 from then-Student Association President Michael Santora.

From his winter home in Florida,

Mowry commented, "It (the Centennial Campaign) was certainly an exciting and rewarding process. This was the Foundation's first mini-capital campaign, through which we raised 'extra' money to provide for special needs and special projects that will arise throughout the college's second hundred years.

"The response from the various constituencies has been extraordinary and demonstrated outstanding support for SUNY Plattsburgh. We're extremely grateful to everyone who participated in the campaign."

Thirty-eight leadership gifts of at least $5,000 were received during the

A.S.A.P. Introduces Innovative 'Saturday Night Live' Series

They're calling it "Saturday Night Live at the Angell Center." The title may be lacking in originality, but the concept is both fresh and a welcome addition (alternative may be a better word) to the weekend social environment at SUNY Plattsburgh.

"Saturday Night Live at the Angell Center" is a new series of programs co-sponsored by Advocates for Substance Abuse and Alcohol Prevention (A.S.A.P.) and Campus Life. Its purpose is to provide more on-campus activities on weekends for students who prefer to avoid the off-campus bar scene.

A.S.A.P. is a group of 21 SUNY Plattsburgh students who are working to provide substance-free activities as part of an alcohol and drug prevention program on the campus and who serve as peer mentors to fellow students. The program, implemented last fall, is supported by a grant from the U.S. government sponsored Fund for the Improvement of Post-Secondary Education.

Dr. Paul Morocco, director of the psychological services center, is the project director, and Dr. Jennifer Hogan, a psychologist in the Center, is the project coordinator.

According to Hogan, the series features live entertainment, refreshments and a billiard tournament every Saturday night. Two free movies are shown — one at 10 p.m. and the other at midnight — and the Angell Center hours have been extended to 2 a.m. to accommodate these activities. The midnight movies, Hogan said, are science fiction films — "exclusive showings of some of the best bad movies ever made," presented in conjunction with "The Illegitimate Son of Science Theater 3000".

"Saturday Night Live at the Angell Center" had its debut last Saturday, highlighted by "You Laugh You Lose," a game show with student participants. This week's (February 12) special is titled "MTV Free Your Mind; a Spoken Word Tour" — musicians talking about contemporary issues — featuring Maggie Estep, Reg E. Ganes and John F. Hall, and programs planned for coming weeks include a student D.J. contest and a performance by comedian Glen Farrington.

"Campus Life and A.S.A.P. have many plans for events for Saturday Night Live at the Angell Center," Hogan said. "However," she added we welcome suggestions from students. Furthermore if any student group or organization would like to plan a Saturday night event, A.S.A.P. and Campus Life will be happy to assist in the planning.

Interested persons can contact Melanie Wyand, director of students activities, at ext. 3824, or Hogan at ext. 2377.

Calongne, who is vice president for operations at Northern Insuring Agency, Inc., is beginning his second full term as Foundation president. He has been active with the organization for the past 11 years, having served previously as its second and first vice president.

In related action, the Foundation board re-elected Elizabeth A. Kelly, president of Holcombe Abstracts, as first vice president; Patrick T. Murnane, president of Murnane Building Contractors, as second vice president; and John R. Homburger, the college's vice president for business affairs, as treasurer. Rose A.

A. Judson reappointed Donald L. Garratt, executive assistant to the president for college relations and development, as the executive director of the Foundation.

In other business, the board reappointed Murnane as chairperson of the Foundation's Annual Giving Committee; Robert T. Booth as chairperson of the Planned Giving Committee; and Roger Forrence as chairperson of the Investment Committee. Calongne, Kelly, Murnane, Forrence and Judson will comprise the Foundation's Executive Committee.

Finally, the board approved a recommendation to establish a gift annuity program designed to provide prospective donors with two life income options when considering a planned gift to SUNY Plattsburgh. Under this program, donors would receive a fixed payment for life, with percentage rate increases based on the age of the donor at the time of the gift. Several newcomers have joined the Foundation Corporation. New community members include Craig Cashman, Bernard Clifton, Clark Currier, Dr. Kjell Dahlen, Constance Fisher, John Martin, John Prim, (George) Gerry Sherwin, Regina Slatkin and James Wyand. Clara Johnson, professor emeritus of nursing, and Dr. James Johnson, professor of psychology, were named faculty members of the Corporation; Diane E. Wright, inventory control clerk in maintenance and operations, will represent staff; and student members include Michael Antonelli, Kim Cline and Carrie Harvey.

Prospective students from the Syracuse area, Trisha Tyminski (l.) and Heather Miles, and Heather's father, Roger Miles, peruse Admissions Office display showing what Plattsburgh graduates are doing in today's world.

simply by viewing a display in the Admissions Office.

Titled "Alumni of Distinction," the display offers very brief profiles of alumni who have done well in various career fields.

Mal Lavery, director of development and alumni affairs, said, "We began this exhibit about two years ago and have found it to be quite appealing to prospective students and their families. It's very visible in the admissions suite and receives a great deal of attention. We plan to change the featured alumni every few months to demonstrate a broad range of the types of careers our graduates enter."

Lavery noted that faculty and staff are welcome to suggest possible candidates for inclusion in the exhibit and may do so by calling the Alumni Office (ext. 2090).

The most recent group of alumni to be featured in the exhibit are:

•Dawn Fratangelo, communication arts '82, nationally known, award-winning news reporter for NBC-TV based in Chicago;

Presidents' Series Event to Feature Maki Mandela on 'South Africa Update'

Maki Mandela, daughter of South African political leader Nelson Mandela, will visit SUNY Plattsburgh on Thursday (February 17) to give a talk titled "South African Update" at 8 p.m. in the Angell College Center Warren Ballroom. Admission to the talk is open to all and free of charge.

Mandela currently serves as the Program Director of the African Academy of Science in Nairobi, Kenya. She earned the Ph.D. at UMASS Amherst, where she was a Fulbright scholar.

During the period Mandela lived in the United States (from 1989 to 1993), she was an active speaker for a wide variety of causes in strife-torn South Africa, including her father's release from prison (achieved in 1990), freedom for blacks, and the role of working women in South Africa, who, she says "represent a true force against oppression" and with whom, she believes, "South Africa's future lies."

"In my country women are inferior by law," says Mandela, who is well known throughout South Africa as a women's studies and sociology scholar. "But," she adds, "I know African men will have to appreciate what women can do to help us all achieve freedom."

Maki Mandela is the first of a trio of speakers coming to the college during the spring semester in the Presidents' Speakers Series, sponsored by the Presidents of the College, the Student Association, and College Auxiliary Services. Her visit coincides also with the college-wide observance in February of Black History Month at SUNY Plattsburgh.

Flynt Honored for Long-term Service to College, Foundation

Olive M. Flynt has ended still another affiliation with her alma mater and with the institution she has served in varied capacities for about four decades.

SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace Judson presents the college's Presidential Award of Honor to Olive M. Flynt while College Foundation President Clifford P. Calongne (right foreground) applauds the gesture.

Flynt resigned recently as secretary to the Board of Directors of the Plattsburgh College Foundation, citing health reasons. She had held the post since the Foundation was created in the mid-1960s.

A 1941 graduate of SUNY Plattsburgh, Flynt joined the college in 1954 as secretary to then-President George W. Angell. She was later promoted to assistant to the president, and her responsibilities included (in addition to the Foundation) service as secretary to the College Council.

Flynt was the college's affirmative action officer from 1975 to 1979. She retired in 1981.

Last Thursday, during the annual meeting of the Foundation, Flynt was recognized publicly by both the college and the Foundation. She received the college's Presidential Award of Honor in appreciation of her "dedication and outstanding performance" as a member and secretary to the Board of Directors of the Foundation "from its creation nearly three decades ago to the present time." The award noted further that three SUNY Plattsburgh presidents (and three who held that position in an acting capacity) and five College Foundation presidents "have relied upon your expertise, and all have benefited from your dependability and your efficiency and effectiveness as a prominent member of the Foundation team."

The Foundation's Distinguished Service Award applauded Flynt for her many contributions to that organization "in an administrative as well as altruistic sense" and for serving the Foundation "honorably and gratuitously from its infancy." With the award came an appointment designating Flynt as a lifetime member of the Board of Directors, with the title "Honorary Director."

Hockey Cards Whip Conference Rivals; Clinch Playoff Spot

The men's ice hockey team clinched at least second place in the SUNYAC regular season with decisive home wins Friday and Saturday over Geneseo (6-1) and Oswego (5-2), assuring the Cardinals of home ice for at least the first round of the SUNYAC playoffs on February 25-26. The Cards have a mathematical chance to finish ahead of first place Fredonia, but the Blue Devils would have to lose its three remaining SUNYAC contests while Plattsburgh is winning its remaining two league games. The Cardinals put on an impressive display of defensive hockey this past weekend, limiting Geneseo and Oswego to 14 and 20 shots, respectively. An SRO crowd of 3,694 — the largest at home since 3,800 witnessed the 1987 NCAA final versus Oswego — packed the Stafford Arena to see the Cardinals subdue arch rival Oswego.

Cardinal forward Lenny Pereira was honored in a pre-game ceremony as the "1993-94 Marriot Fan Favorite" determined by season-long balloting.

The men's basketball team lost a hard-fought defensive battle to Binghamton 58-52 Saturday after falling 93-69 to Cortland the previous night. The Cardinals have dropped their last six games and now stand at 4-15 overall. The Plattsburgh State women's basketball team lost 65-44 to Cortland and 74-36 to Binghamton on a tough SUNYAC road trip this past weekend.

The women's swimming and diving team upset Potsdam 95-89 with a strong team effort this past week at Potsdam. Placing first for the Cardinals were Corrine Mussela in the 50 freestyle (29.69), Andrea Yeager in the 100 freestyle (1:03.03), Julie Dandrow in the 200 free (2:09.97), and Erin McCumber in the 200 backstroke (2:39.05). The men lost to Potsdam, 79-144. Bruce McGlaughlin placed first in the 500 Free (5:32.03).

The women's indoor track team finished first at the St. Lawrence Invitational ahead of St. Lawrence, Hamilton, and Ottawa. Amy Nutt led the Cardinals with firsts in the 400m (1:05.91) and the 55m hurdles (9.76), both SUNYAC qualifying times. Nutt also ran a leg on the winning 1 mile relay team which broke a school record by five seconds with a time of (4:20.83). The men's team placed third at St. Lawrence. Tom Ouellette placed first in the 5000m run in a school record time of 15:29.9 to pace the Cardinals.

SUNY Trustees OK College's Honorary Degree Nominees

Five scholar-educators nominated by SUNY Plattsburgh to receive honorary degrees from the State University of New York will be honored on campus during ceremonies scheduled throughout the remainder of 1994.

At its January meeting, the University's Board of Trustees gave approval to a resolution authorizing the college to confer honorary degrees on behalf of the University on author and film maker Elizabeth W. Fernea (Doctor of Letters); physicist John L. Howarth (Doctor of Science); educator-civic leader Samuel D. Proctor (Doctor of Humane Letters); Nobel Laureate Derek Walcott (Doctor of Letters); and political scientist Milton C. Cummings (Doctor of Letters).

The first to be recognized is Fernea, who will receive her degree during spring academic convocation ceremonies on April 30. Howarth and Proctor will be honored at spring commencement exercises on May 14, Walcott at fall convocation on September 7, and Cummings at winter graduation on December 16.

All five are familiar to members of the SUNY Plattsburgh campus community. Fernea, Howarth, Proctor and Cummings have all served as Distinguished Visiting Professors here, and Walcott visited the campus during the fall of 1992 — within days of being named that year's recipient of the Nobel Prize for literature — to give a reading of his works on the occasion of the college's observance of Black Poetry Day.

Fernea has devoted her career to promoting understanding between Americans and the peoples of the Middle East. Through her books, including guests of the Sheik and A Street in Marrakech, and documentary films, such as Some Women of Marrakech and A Veiled Revolution, she has worked to convince generations of skeptical students of the warmth, wisdom, dignity and basic humanity of ordinary Middle Easterners.

A former president of the Middle East Studies Association of North American, Fernea is currently associated with the English department and the Center for Middle Eastern Studies at the University of Texas at Austin. Her work has been supported by the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Ford Foundation and by grants and fellowships from other institutions.

Howarth came to the U.S. from England, where he earned the Ph.D. from the University of London, in 1958. He worked as a radiological physicist in Albuquerque, N.M., then joined the University of New Mexico where he served as a member of the physics faculty and as director of the institution's honors program. He later served the University of Maryland in similar capacities.

A past president of the National Honors Council, Howarth was a consultant to SUNY Plattsburgh in the college's early efforts to establish an honors program here, and he has returned to campus several times to teach honors seminars and conduct workshops for faculty. He serves presently as special assistant to the president at Mills College in Oakland, Calif.

An ordained Baptist minister, Proctor is retired pastor of New York City's renowned Abyssinian Baptist Church and Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Professor Emeritus in Rutgers University's Graduate School of Education. He is the author of The Young

Faculty Approves Bylaws Revisions

By a margin of 112-7, the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty has voted to approve proposed revision of the Faculty Bylaws. The ballots were tabulated last Thursday.

The revisions cover 13 separate items, but topping the list of changes is one that will extend voting privileges to some part-time faculty holding term appointments, and another that establishes a faculty role in changes in the status of academic programs. They require approval by the president to become effective.

Cost Comparisons Show College Least Expensive

In a comparison of costs to attend any of the State University of New York's 16 four-year, residential colleges and University Centers, SUNY Plattsburgh ranks with the Buffalo campus as the least expensive in the system.

According to figures gleaned from a report compiled by the University's Office of Institutional Research (OIR), costs here and at the College at Buffalo during the 1993-94 academic year total $8,720. Geneseo ($8,849), Potsdam ($8,924) and Brockport trail successively as the least expensive, while Stony Brook ($10,228), Old Westbury ($10,141) and the University Center at Buffalo ($10,009) rank as the three most costly — and the only three over five figures.

Dr. Eldridge W. Roark Jr., vice president for student affairs, culled the information from an OIR report titled "Trends in Tuition and Other Basic Student Charges, 1963-64 to 1993-94." He interpreted the comparison as taking into account standard costs for room and board, where this college, at $3,802, is at the bottom of the expense chart, and fees and other costs, where the college is positioned about in the middle of a column showing campus-by-campus charges in these categories.

Fees include the mandatory activities fee, the athletics fee and health insurance, while "other" encompasses average expenditures for books and supplies, clothing and personal expenses, travel, etc. Total costs in the comparison reflect estimates used to determine student financial aid eligibility on each campus.

Mandela's Appearance Postponed to March 2

A problem related to a travel visa has resulted in a postponement of the campus speaking engagement of Maki Mandela.

The talk by Mandela, who is program director of the African Academy of Science in Nairobi, Kenya and the daughter of South African political leader Nelson Mandela, has been switched from tomorrow (Thursday, February 17) to Wednesday, March 2. The time (8 p.m.), location (Warren Ballroom, Angell College Center) and topic ("South African Update") remain the same.

According to agency sources responsible for the booking, Mandela's visa had been held up by U.S. Immigration authorities, but the situation has been resolved through the intervention of the office of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.).

'Alternative Spring Break' Initiative Attracts 30 Volunteers

For many SUNY Plattsburgh students, Spring Break summons images of escape to a southeastern U.S. environment ... clear blue skies and bright sunshine, warm temperatures and cold beer, sandy beaches and around-the-clock fun and frolic.

For 30 SUNY Plattsburgh students, however, the March 10 to 19 hiatus will mean pounding nails and painting ceilings, scrubbing walls and working with underprivileged youth, sleeping on floors and shopping for and cooking their own meals.

The 30 have signed on to take part in a new program called, appropriately, "Alternative Spring Break." Instead of Fort Lauderdale, Orlando or Daytona Beach, these college men and women will be heading to either flood-stricken west-central Illinois or to an impoverished community in northeastern West Virginia.

"Alternative Spring Break challenges students to participate in an extended volunteer experience," explains Bryan Hartman, assistant director of student activities. Hartman came to SUNY Plattsburgh last August from Mt. St. Mary's College, where he held a similar position and where he first heard about, and gained first-hand experience in, Alternative Spring Break.

"When we started talking about trying the program here, about 60 students expressed an interest," says Hartman. "Following an application process, we ended up with 30 students who are truly committed to it."

Hartman will be part of a group of nineteen who endure a 20-hour van ride to Hull, Illinois to help with disaster relief efforts stemming from the Midwest flood of 1993. The remaining 11 Plattsburgh students will travel to the Appalachia Valley coal mining community of Pursglove, W. Va. to provide assistance mostly on a project known as "Shack Neighborhood House, Inc."

"We'll be with other students," says Hartman, who points out that Alternative Spring Break originated at Vanderbilt University several years ago and has caught on nationally. "Our group (Illinois) will be joining up with Mt. St. Mary's students while those going to West Virginia will be with peers from New York University."

The labor at Hull, which is situated across the Mississippi River from Hannibal, Mo., will involve gutting, repairing and rebuilding homes damaged or destroyed in last year's flooding, as well as yard work and policing land and fields in the region. The projects at Pursglove focus on repair work on the Shack Neighborhood House, home repair for low-income residents and helping out with community youth programs.

Students at both locations will sleep on cots or on floors in sleeping bags in community churches or schools, shower at nearby schools or YMCAs, and shop for and prepare everything they eat. They have been instructed to bring their own indoor-outdoor work clothing and whatever tools they may own or can borrow.

Moreover, says Hartman, the student work crews are expected to pay their own way or raise the cash required to meet expenses. The Plattsburgh 30, he says, have agreed to shoulder the costs of the trip, which includes some building materials as well as travel and food, but they have organized a few fund-raising schemes to help offset them, including a Valentine's Day drive held all last week in the Angell Center lobby.

"These activities, along with ongoing can, bottle and coin drives being conducted throughout campus residence halls have brought in some revenue," he continues, "but we still have to raise $3,000 to cover all expenses." An "Alternative Spring Break Program" account has been set up within Campus Life, Hartman says, and donations can be forwarded to him in Room 110 of the Angell Center.

Piper's Talk Begins Spring Term Series

The initial program for the spring term in SUNY Plattsburgh's Visual Artist Series will be a lecture by Adrian Piper titled "Xenophobia and the Indexical Present." Piper's audio/video/slide presentation will be held on Thursday, February 24 at 8 p.m. in Yokum 202.

A professor of philosophy at Wellesley College, Piper has worked in a wide variety of media as an artist since the 1960's. She uses humor, irony, and confrontation to target racism that affects the relationship between a work of art and its viewers.

"The main concepts I examine are xenophobia, racism, and racial stereotyping," says Piper. "I want to contribute to the creation of a society in which racism and stereotyping no longer exist... a society in which I can navigate with the same ease and security that an upper middle-class white male can in this one."

An exhibition of Piper's work is currently on display in the Myers Fine Arts Gallery, and will continue through February 24. It includes works from the artist's series' Decide Who You Are, which involves photos, texts, and enlarged drawings in different combinations, and which have been shown in several galleries, including the Paula Cooper Gallery, the Grey Art Gallery, and the John Weber Gallery in New York City.

The exhibition and lecture are sponsored, in part, by the Student Association, through the Campus Arts Council.

Hockey Cards Split on the Road; Cagers Win Two of Three

The Plattsburgh State men's ice hockey team defeated Cortland 6-3 and lost to Elmira 4-3 in OT on its latest weekend road trip. Against Cortland, Lenny Pereira exploded for four points (2g, 2a) and goaltender Bill Sammartino continued his impressive SUNYAC play between the pipes for the Cardinals. Pereira presently leads SUNYAC in goal scoring with 13 goals in 11 games, and Sammartino is the conference's leading netminder with a 6-0-0 record, a .911 save percentage, and a 1.77 goals-against average.

The men's basketball team went 2-1 on the week, defeating Clarkson 70-69 and Utica/Rome 71-68 before losing to Oswego, 65-74. Junior center Greg James is establishing himself as one of the premier players in SUNYAC. Over the three-games set, James scored 72 points and pulled in 41 rebounds.

The women's basketball team lost 45-79 at Clarkson and 53-55 at Utica/

Rome before defeating Oswego 80-52 at home. Meegan Wood turned in solid performances against Utica/Rome (14 pts-14 rebs) and Oswego (19 pts-11 rebs) and led the Cardinals with 15 points against Clarkson.

The men's and women's indoor track teams placed third at the St. Lawrence University Invitational behind Rochester and St. Lawrence. For the men, freshman Andy Kirk finished first in the 55m hurdles (8.32), second in the long jump (19' 4 1/2") and third in the high jump (5'8"). Roxanne Ramos led the way for the women with a first place finish in the triple jump (31'9 1/2") and second place finishes in the long jump (14' 10 1/4") and high jump (4'4").

'Polarity Therapist' Axt to Present Workshop Here

Dr. Andrea Axt, a Montreal-based "polarity therapist," will give a short presentation and conduct a day-long workshop on her "healing art" specialty this weekend at SUNY Plattsburgh's Angell Center. The program is being sponsored by the college's Women's Studies Forum and the Union for Concerned Students.

The free presentation will take place from 7p.m. to 8p.m. on Friday (Feb. 18), and the hands-on workshop will be held from 9 a.m. to 5p.m. the following day. The cost for the workshop is $80, with a lower fee for students and senior citizens.

Polarity therapy reputedly integrates principles of ancient and modern therapies to restore the energy balance of the body. Its aim is to locate and free blocked energy, thereby relieving physical and emotional pain and increasing vitality. Workshop participants will be taught to perform a series of gentle manipulations which aim to stimulate the flow of life energy.

Axt has practiced Polarity and Cranial Sacral Therapy since 1978. She has taught polarity therapy in the U.S.A., Canada, Australia, Switzerland, Poland and Hungary.

For further information and/or registration for the workshop, call Plattsburgh based polarity practitioner Jen Barrett at 561-3251.

Winkel Bequest & Trust Create Endowment Valued at $600,000

The Plattsburgh College Foundation has received a bequest of $136,000 from the estate of the late George Winkel.

The bequest, combined with the Charitable Remainder Unitrust (now valued at $462,157) which Mr. Winkel and his late wife, Nina, created with the Foundation in December of 1986, creates the "Winkel Endowment Fund," which today totals nearly $600,000.

According to Don Garrant, executive director of the Foundation and trustee of the Winkel Trust, sixty percent of the income from the investment of the Winkel endowment will be used primarily to maintain and promote the Winkel collection, housed mostly in a Sculpture Court in the Myers Fine Arts Building named for the donors, and secondarily to maintain the college's permanent collection. The expenditure of funds will be the responsibility of the Gallery Director (Edward Brohel) through a budget developed in consultation with the Gallery Collections Committee and the college administration.

The remaining 40 percent of the income from the investment of the Winkel endowment will be divided for allocation to the visual arts (25 percent) and to the humanities (15 percent). Funds for the visual arts may be used for student scholarships, faculty development and projects and/or academic program enrichment. Decisions on scholarships and proposals will be made by a faculty committee comprised of three visual arts faculty elected by the visual arts faculty and the Gallery

SA OKs 'Custodial Staff Appreciation Day'

The SUNY Plattsburgh Student Association (SA) has proclaimed next Tuesday (March 2) as "Custodial Staff Appreciation Day" at the college.

In a resolution passed unanimously on February 14, the Student Senate voted to "express the (SA's) appreciation of the college custodial staff" in this manner. The resolution notes that campus facilities "are in exceptional condition," relates their exceptional condition "directly ... to the efforts of the college's custodial staff," and points out that the current time of year "is particularly stressful for the staff due to the sand created by snow removal efforts."

In formally establishing Tuesday as Custodial Staff Appreciation Day, the Senate calls on all campus organizations "to participate in (the recognition effort) by planning activities for custodial staff members in the respective areas."

Amen.

President's Breakfast Series Begins Thursday

The first in a series of "Breakfast with the President" meetings will be held at 7:30 a.m. next Thursday (March 3) at the 134 Court Street home of President Horace A. Judson.

The series, first proposed by President Judson during his "Town Meeting" presentation given shortly after spring semester classes began in January (and shortly after Judson assumed office as SUNY Plattsburgh's ninth president), will allow faculty, staff and students to discuss campus issues, share ideas and ask questions of

Art Museum to Play Host to 'Cartoon Cavalcade' Exhibition

Comic art will be in the spotlight in the Myers Fine Arts Gallery over the next month while the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum plays host to an exhibition of cartoons and caricatures beginning on Sunday (February 27) and continuing through April 7. An opening reception for the exhibition, titled "Cartoon Cavalcade, Syd Couchey, Garry Trudeau and Friends," will be held in the Myers Gallery from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

The exhibition will include caricatures and cartoons by Couchey, five of Trudeau's original Doonsbury cartoons, and a selection of works by other noted cartoonists ("friends") and from the Syracuse University collection. Couchey, of Essex (by way of New York City), is sharing his collection of cartoonists' works.

The artists and their creations include Al Capp, Lil Abner; M.S. Weiss, Mickey Finn; Reg Smythe, Andy Capp; Gene Hazelton, Flintstones, and others.

The exhibition will span a variety of forms, with caricatures, daily and Sunday comic strip art originals, single panel gags, magazine illustrations and comic book pages all included.

It will also offer a bit of cartoon history.

It will feature the Yellow Kid, the original color comic series, which appeared in Joseph Pulitzer's New York World in 1896 and depicted the tug-of-war between Pulitzer and William Randolph Hearst (New York Morning Journal) over the services of Yellow Kid artist Richard Outcault. The rivalry spawned the phrase "yellow journalism."

The Syracuse University portion of the exhibition will include works by Mort Walker (Beetle Bailey); Charles Flanders (The Lone Ranger); George Wunder, (Terry and the Pirates); and cartoons by Breger, Berstein, and Dunn. The Syracuse collection was established 30 years ago and now includes hundreds of original inked drawings. It is being made available for use by researchers, and is on loan for the Myers exhibition with the assistance of Carolyn Davis of that University's Bird Library.

Decisions on scholarships and proposals will be made by a faculty committee comprised of one faculty member from each humanities discipline, to be elected by the entire faculty from that discipline, and the Gallery Director.

Under provisions of the trust, the College Foundation will have the responsibility for monitoring the expenditure of all funds.

George and Nina Winkel fled their native Germany in 1942, settled in New York City, where George became an executive vice president of an international food importing company and Nina established a lasting affiliation with The Sculpture Center, and moved to Keene Valley in Essex County, which became their permanent home, in the early 1960s. In the meantime, Nina Winkel had won five gold medals for her work, including the coveted E. Watrous Gold Medal (three times) and the Samuel F. B. Morse Medal, and she had been named an Academician of the National Academy of Design and a Fellow of the National Sculpture Society, which conferred upon her its Louis Bennett Prize.

The Winkels began their affiliation with SUNY Plattsburgh around 1980, soon thereafter selecting the college as the repository of many of Nina Winkel's works. In 1984, the State University of New York conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Fine Arts upon Nina Winkel; in May of 1987 the college presented its Distinguished Service Award to the Winkels; and the following October the Winkel Sculpture Court, the largest space in the U.S. devoted to the work of one woman, was opened and dedicated in their honor.

Nina Winkel died on May 24, 1990 in Elizabethtown from complications stemming from injuries sustained in an auto accident which occurred five months earlier. She was 85. George Winkel died July 20 of last year in Rouses Point. He was 83.

the president. Breakfast with the President sessions are scheduled on Tuesdays and Thursdays through the end of March, but they will continue until all teaching faculty and professional staff have had the opportunity to participate.

Thursday's first meeting will be for a mix of 10 faculty and staff representing varied academic programs and campus offices, and that will be the pattern for all succeeding sessions. The second meeting, scheduled for Tuesday, March 8, will be for students.

Those invited are being selected randomly from the diverse areas that comprise the college community, while (rather than student leaders exclusively) the students who will be asked to attend will come from a cross-section of the undergraduate population.

A member of the college's administrative staff will join Judson and the group of 10 invited to each breakfast.

FRX Program Introduces 'Home Study Course' for Parents

Plattsburgh's Freshman Experience (FRX) program, which for six years has been successful in helping new students adjust to college life, is being expanded to include parents of students as well.

Beginning this spring, parents of incoming freshman are being offered the opportunity to take a "Parent Home Study Course." The course is contained in a manual of practical information and exercises mailed to parents of accepted students, and its purpose is to help them provide support and guidance to their children.

This component of FRX is being developed jointly by the program's co-directors: Cheryl M. Hogle, associate director of Campus Life, and Dr. Lawrence Shaffer, professor of psychology. SUNY Plattsburgh, they say, is one of only a few colleges in the country to offer this type of service.

The home study course contains readings and exercises — the latter consisting of a series of questions focusing on parents' perceptions and expectations on a range of academic, social and personal topics followed by a speculative interpretation of the results — designed to foster parent-student discussion of some key issues that typically confront first-time undergraduates. The subject matter covers matters known to be of paramount importance to parents, including the transition from high school to college, roles and responsibilities in respect to academic advising, barriers to academic achievement, the challenges of residence hall life, alcohol and substance abuse, on-campus support services, and issues related to cultural diversity.

By involving parents in preparing to address these issues, Hogle says, the course aims to help them provide support to their son or daughter when they confront them in college. "We see the family as a critical source of support for new students, and inviting parents to become active members of the campus community facilitates that," says Hogle. "The more parents know about student life, the more helpful they can be."

Ideally, Hogle continues, parents will work through the exercises with their students, completing the course before coming to Plattsburgh for summer orientation. The introduction to the course encourages parents to jot down questions and list topics they want to explore more fully at orientation, and a separate section provides a means to evaluate it.

Hogle recently assumed the role as coordinator of new student programs in the Office of Campus Life, in part, she says, to spend more time developing the home study course to complement her responsibilities as coordinator of the summer orientation and freshman experience programs.

Visit by Prospective Business Majors Begins Spring Initiative

Between 25 and 40 high school seniors who intend to major in a business discipline or in economics will visit the college Sunday and Monday (February 27-28) to participate in an information program titled "Exploring Business and Economics Opportunities, 1994."

The program will kick-off spring semester activities in a year-round series of Admissions Office-sponsored, on-campus initiatives designed to enhance student recruitment efforts. According to Admissions Director Richard Higgins, the visiting prospective students come from all parts of New York State, and all have been offered admission.

Higgins said the program is designed to acquaint the students with the college's programs in accounting, management, marketing, economics and international business, and to introduce them to faculty in the School of Business and Economics. They will also sample residence hall living, attend classes in the major of choice and take part in a career workshop.

Rosemary Cespedes, admissions advisor, and Lise Heroux, assistant professor of management and marketing, are the program's co-coordinators.

Sunday's events will begin at 3:15 p.m. in Room 106 of Hawkins Hall with welcoming remarks from SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson. Following a tour of the campus and dinner in a campus dining hall, the visiting students will attend a question and answer session with members of the business and economics faculty then sit-in on a student panel discussion focusing on internships, cooperative education, study abroad and clubs and organizations.

Monday's programming will focus on the career workshop and participation in class meetings. Separate schedules have been arranged for parents who accompany their children to campus, including presentations on admissions, financial aid and campus life.

Next on the Admissions Office's agenda of special programs for accepted students is "Scholar's Weekend," scheduled for March 6 and 7. The visitors then will be prospective freshmen having "outstanding academic records" (averages of 90 and above and strong SAT scores), and the program will be similar except that the students will attend classes and meet with faculty in the varied programs that interest them.

Admissions Counselor Jacqueline Girard is coordinating this event.

Health Services, Marriott Offer Fitness Day Event

SUNY Plattsburgh's Student Health Center and Marriott Food Services will co-sponsor a Nutrition and Fitness Day on Tuesday (March 1) on the ground floor level of the Angell College Center.

The theme of the event is "Nutrition Fuels Fitness." Presentations, give-aways and blood pressure checks will be offered.

Audubon Quartet, Sondheim Musical Scheduled for Hartman

The internationally renowned Audubon String Quartet will perform on Monday (March 7) at 8 p.m. in the Hartman Theater in the Myers Fine Arts Building. Tickets are $7 for general admission, $4 for faculty, staff and senior citizens, and $1 for students, and they will be available at the Angell College Center Desk beginning Friday (February 25).

The Audubon Quartet is the resident ensemble of Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Since its founding in 1974, the quartet has won several major international competitions, and performed in some of the world's greatest concert halls. The group is known for its imaginative programs, and excels in the music of Brahms, Beethoven, Dvorak, Mozart and Schumann. It has also premiered works by Ezra Laderman and Peter Schickele.

'Into the Woods'

There will be five performances of the Tony award-winning musical Into the Woods on campus next week, presented by the SUNY Plattsburgh music and theater departments and featuring a full orchestra and an all-student cast.

The venue is the Hartman Theater, and performances will take place from Wednesday, March 2 through Saturday, March 5 at 7.30 p.m., with a matinee on Sunday, March 6 at 2 p.m. Tickets, now available at the Angell College Center Desk, are $9 for general admission, $6 for faculty, staff and senior citizens, and $4 for members of the Student Association.

The musical, written by Stephen Sondheim and James Lapine, is a fresh, funny and entertaining spectacle about some well-known fairy-tale characters, and their adventures into the woods. There is an unexpected turn of events in the second half, when the characters try to get out of the woods. Altogether it is a mystical, magical, storybook recreation.

SUNYAC. The Cardinals got three-goal effort from John Wells, his first career hat trick, to top the Bears. Plattsburgh now enters the four-team SUNYAC tournament as the #2 seed and will host the #3 seed Oswego Great Lakers this weekend (Feb. 25-26) in a 2 game plus mini game series (#1 Fredonia hosts #4 Potsdam in the other semifinal series). Game time is 7:00 pm both nights.

The men's basketball team closed out its season, going 1-1 on the week, defeating rival Potsdam 87-79, before losing to Castleton 71-84. Junior center Greg James scored a career high 31 points on 13 of 16 shooting to lead the Cardinals to a convincing 87-79 home win over Potsdam. The Cardinal women's basketball team finished the season on a positive note, defeating Castleton 65-60 after losing by a 70-63 margin to a strong Potsdam team. Senior Kristy Sprague made the best of her last game as a Cardinal, scoring a career high 25 points on 11 of 17 shooting against Castleton.

The Plattsburgh State men's indoor track team placed 5th at the 14th annual SUNYAC Indoor Track and Field Championship held at Fredonia and won by Fredonia with a meet point record 249 points. Plattsburgh's Tom Ouellette was crowned SUNYAC Champion in the 5000 meters after running the race in a school record time of 15:27.9. The women's team finished last in a seven-team field at Fredonia. Plattsburgh's Jen Wiseman was crowned SUNYAC champion in the 800 meter run, running the race in 2:25.42.

Musical Group 'Happenstance' to Perform Benefit

"Happenstance" will perform a mix of folk music and contemporary songs in the Centennial Room at 8 p.m. on Friday (February 25).

The group consists of Rachelle Armstrong, Carla List, (associate librarian at Feinberg library), Lynn Wheeler, and Hap Wheeler (manager of the computer network at SUNY Plattsburgh). The women sing together, often in three part harmony, in the style of "The Chenille Sisters."

Hap Wheeler sometimes contributes vocally, but is relied upon mostly for his instrumental artistry, playing guitar, banjo, mandolin, and banjo-mandolin. He has also written some of the music which the group presents.

Happenstance performs an eclectic collection of songs about current situations and relationships, often creating their own arrangements and adding harmony to songs by modern social-commentary songwriters such as Christine Lavin and Ann Reed. They perform in a variety of styles including some a cappella arrangements.

The group has performed at the Concerts on the Bluff series at Clinton Community College, at the Palmer Street Coffeehouse, for Music at Dusk at the Kent Delord House, and for the Women's Studies Forum at SUNY Plattsburgh.

Campus Delegation of 20 Descends on Albany for 'SUNY Day'

A group of SUNY Plattsburgh faculty, staff, students, and administrators returned to campus late yesterday following a successful, day-long, University-wide "SUNY Day" lobbying campaign in Albany.

SUNY Day is an annual event, and, as usual, the Plattsburgh delegation — numbering 20 this year — was by far the largest representing any single campus in the University system. Besides the on-campus constituencies that made the trip to the State Capitol, the Plattsburgh advocacy team included members of the College Council and alumni.

President Horace A. Judson reported that the effort focused on encouraging legislative support for approval of the Executive Budget proposed for the University and this campus ($29 million) for fiscal 1994-95. It also emphasized support for capital budget expenditures requested for Plattsburgh totaling $3.35 million and for SUNY-wide program needs, including $4 million required to restore 100 faculty positions which, in turn, would allow for restoration of 800 class sections.

Don Garrant, executive assistant to the president, who helped organize the college's SUNY Day activities, said that every person contacted by a member of the Plattsburgh advocacy team, whether legislator, legislative aide, or staff member, was handed a copy of a booklet that outlines the critical needs of SUNY and this campus in particular. "The material," he said "summarizes our budget reductions and position losses in a historical context, and presents some factual information that portrays our institution in a positive light.

"For example," he continued, "the booklet outlines the college's economic impact in the North Country and some of the research projects that benefit the region. It demonstrates where our students come from geographically and where our alumni live and work, and it points out how we're helping ourselves financially by raising funds in the private sector."

The schedule of activities included meetings with the college's North Country representatives in the State Legislature — Senator Ronald B. Stafford and Assemblymen Chris Ortloff and James King — and with Senator Kenneth LaValle and Assemblyman Edward Sullivan, the chairpersons of the Higher Education Committees in

SUNY Trustees Appoint Burke Interim Chancellor as Search Begins to Find Successor to Johnstone

The Board of Trustees of the State University of New York has named former SUNY Plattsburgh President Dr. Joseph C. Burke as interim chancellor of the University system.

The appointment of Burke, who currently serves as SUNY Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, was effective yesterday (March 1). It was made with the understanding that he would not be a candidate for Chancellor.

In a separate action, Trustees Chairman Frederic V. Salerno named an 18-member committee to conduct a nationwide search for a successor to SUNY Chancellor D. Bruce Johnstone.

Johnstone announced February 7 that, after more than five years in that position, he would step down for health reasons.

In announcing Burke's appointment, Salerno said, "The SUNY system, its faculty, staff and students, and the people of New York, are quite fortunate to have Joe Burke as one of SUNY's greatest resources, ready, willing and able

Council Meets Thursday

The SUNY Plattsburgh College Council will hold its next meeting at 3:30 p.m. on Thursday, March 10 in the Sibley Hall Cafetorium.

Besides routine reports from the Council chairperson, the president of the college, the president of the Student Association, the presiding officer of the faculty and Council liaisons to varied programs and offices, the agenda will feature presentations on two, newly initiated academic activities that offer technological instruction on campus and at remote North Country sites.

Council meetings are open to the public.

'Studies in the Humanities' Symposium Here this Weekend

Scholars and artists from the United States, Canada and Germany, will converge on the Plattsburgh campus this Friday and Saturday (March 4-5) for the fourth annual interdisciplinary symposium in the "Plattsburgh Studies in the Humanities" series. The topic of this year's symposium is Fin-de-Siècle — Comparisons and Perspectives.

The symposium will take place from 1.45 p.m. to 5.30 p.m. on Friday and from 9.45 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. on Saturday in the Cardinal Lounge of the Angell College Center. The symposium is free and open to the public.

The presenters will share their reflections on the "End of the Century," both the nineteenth and the twentieth. Plattsburgh faculty who will participate include Dr. Dennis Costanzo (art history), Dr. James Lindgren (history), Dr. Donald Maier (philosophy), and Dr. Erin C. Mitchell (English).

Speakers from further afield include a German film-maker, a writer, a physicist, a chemist, specialists in English and foreign literature, the humanities, music and history. The presenters include faculty members from a number of SUNY campuses, from McGill, Harvard, Adelphi University, San Diego State University, and the University of Siegen in Germany. As part of the program there will be a performance of Schönberg's Cabaret Songs with piano and soprano by two members of the Crane School of Music at SUNY Potsdam (on Friday from 4.30 to 5.15 p.m.).

The organizers of the symposium, Dr. Jürgen Kleist, associate professor in foreign languages and literature, and Dr. Bruce A. Butterfield, professor of the English, have to date published (with Peter Lang publishing Inc.) the proceedings of symposia held in 1991 (Mythology: From Ancient to Modern) and 1992 (Breakdowns: The Destiny of the Twentieth Century). A third volume, relating to the 1993 symposium (Re-naming the Landscape) will be published this December.

No Weekly During Break
Weekly will not be published during spring break.

The next issue will be published for distribution on March 23. The deadline for submission of news items for that edition will be noon on Monday, March 21.

Have an enjoyable and safe spring break '94!

to step in at this pivotal period of transition. This decision to name Joe to this interim position was an easy choice for the Trustees to make."

Last September the Trustees named him Officer-in-Charge with the responsibilities of Chancellor during Dr. Johnstone's absence due to illness. Burke served in that capacity until January 1994 when Dr. Johnstone returned to his duties.

Burke was SUNY Plattsburgh president from 1974 until he joined SUNY Central in 1985 as acting Provost. He was later named SUNY Provost and eventually given the title of Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs.

As Provost, Burke has had general supervisory responsibilities over academic programs, research, libraries, health sciences and hospital and other academic-related activities in the SUNY system. He coordinated preparation of an all-funds approach to sponsored research and programs; coordinated the preparation and implementation of a five-year plan to enhance graduate studies and research on SUNY's doctoral campuses; and developed a system assessment program that evaluates the knowledge and skills acquired by SUNY graduates and a new program of Performance Indicators to assess the performance of the system and its campuses.

Search Committee Drawn from All Constituencies

The committee that will select the next chancellor of the SUNY system will consist of members of the University's Board of Trustees, four campus presidents, a member of the SUNY Central administration and representatives of the major University-wide constituencies.

Board Chairperson Frederic V. Salerno will serve as its chair.

The other Trustees are Richard A. Berman, New York City; Roderick G. W. Chu, New York City; Arnold B. Gardner, Buffalo; John L.S. Holloman, Jr., East Elmhurst; Nancy H. Nielsen, Orchard Park, and Rosemary C. Solomone, Brooklyn Heights. The SUNY presidents are Sean Fanelli, Nassau Community College; Carol Harter, College at Geneseo; John Marburger, III, University at Stony Brook, and Frederick Woodward, Agricultural and Technical Col-

Nursing Education Via TV a Boon to R.N.s in Remote Areas

Nursing education at SUNY Plattsburgh has entered the electronic era, and the instructional innovation made possible by the new technology — and by the adaptability of faculty — is shaking down as a win-win situation.

With first-year funding in a five-year, $1 million grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, the college's nursing faculty has implemented a project whereby upper level courses are being televised three nights each week to students residing in rural North Country communities.

"We're using fiber optic telephone wires, video cameras and television receivers to bring nursing education to registered nurses who desperately want to achieve a bachelor's degree and the nursing. "But these are people who live many miles away, in Glens Falls, Malone and Saranac Lake ... people who cannot come to campus because of job obligations, family responsibilities or simply because they won't put up with the drudgery and hazards associated with travel."

Morton, one of three nursing faculty challenged this semester to pioneer the high-tech instructional project (the others are Alice Champagne and Lynn Nichols, both also associate professors), teaches "Theoretical Foundations of Nursing" every Monday evening to 21 students spread across the three North Country sites. She admits to feeling awkward at first — speaking to a camera and staring into a television monitor portable working with the technology, and the exchanges with our students are becoming progressively more animated and productive."

Morton describes the system as "voice activated." A camera mounted on an oversized monitor about ten feet away from and directly in front of the instructor projects the instructor's image simultaneously on similar equipment at the sites in Glens Falls, Malone and Saranac Lake. The instructor manipulates a key pad to activate the system and control volume.

If the instructor moves about the room, the camera follows the sound of the instructor's voice carried via microphone that can be moved from place to place. A second, desk-mounted camera device permits the instructor to focus on and switch to teaching aids, for example outlines of topics to be covered during that particular class meeting.

Similarly, each student station at the remote classroom locations is equipped with a microphone. That, says Morton, allows the instructor to call on any student at any site — and vice versa, should a student wish to ask a question or make a point. The camera automatically zooms to an individual student when that student begins to speak.

"We have sight and we have sound," says Morton, noting that these are elements familiar to every classroom setting, "but we don't have 'touch,' meaning the closeness with students that prevails under traditional teaching circumstances is missing." But Morton has instituted the next best thing to personal contact: two hours of "telephone office hours" per week, a service her students are using with increasing frequency.

Speaking also, she feels, for her nursing colleagues, Morton says a key to managing the project is the working relationship the instructors in Plattsburgh maintain with adjunct faculty who staff the classrooms at each of the learning sites. They are the ones, she says, who must be there to turn on the lights and the equipment, answer students' questions, keep track of attendance, and administer tests.

Folk Singer, Songwriter Reed in Concert Here on Saturday

In celebration of National Women's History month, the Center for Women's Concerns, the Student Association, the Office of Campus Life, and the Marriott Corporation at SUNY Plattsburgh are presenting folk singer/songwriter Ann Reed in concert on Saturday, March 5 at 8 p.m. in the Angell College Center Blue Room.

Reed's solo career began in 1980 with the release of her first recording, Carpediem, and she has since produced seven more recordings: Room & Board, Just Can't Stop, Talk to Me, Back and Forth, Road of the Heart, By Request, and Hole in the Day. Her latest release, Strings Attached, is a collaboration with Phyllis Goldin that features songs and instrumental guitar and piano pieces.

Reed has performed at more than 700 concerts, coffeehouses, colleges, music festivals and radio and television shows throughout the U.S. and Canada, and her awards include Minnesota's "Artist of the Year" for 1990-91, the Minnesota Music Academy's "Female Songwriter of the Year" for 1993, songwriting awards from Billboard Magazine, NARAS and NAIRD, and in 1991 she was dubbed "A Woman Who Made a Difference." She was recently asked to participate as a spokesperson for ACTION, the federal agency that oversees the VISTA program.

Tickets to Reed's concert are on sale at the College Center desk. Prices are: general public adults $3.00; students under 16 $1.50; and SUNY Plattsburgh faculty and staff $1.00. Admission is free for SA members.

Workshop to Focus on 'How to Learn a Foreign Language'

Dr. Lina Lee, assistant professor of Spanish, will conduct a workshop titled "How to Study a Foreign Language," on Saturday, March 5 from 9:00 a.m. to noon in Room 101 of Champlain Valley Hall.

The workshop is designed to provide students with useful language-learning strategies that will improve their language skills and make them more autonomous language learners. It will focus on learning strategies for vocabulary building, listening, reading, speaking, writing, and test-taking.

The workshop is for students of FRN/SPN 112 and 150, but all those interested in language learning are welcome. Admission is free. For more information, contact Dr. Lee or Mrs. Bonnie Burdo at ext. 2829.

New Discussion Series to Examine 'Assessing Student Learning Outcomes'

"Assessing Student Learning Outcomes" is the title of a discussion series that will be initiated on campus next Tuesday (March 8). The hour-long program will debut at 12:15 on Tuesday in the Angell College Center Cardinal Lounge.

The series is designed "to facilitate development and implementation of student outcomes assessment," and it will feature short presentations by faculty and staff of work completed and in progress. The goal is to stimulate thinking and to circulate ideas over a broad range of issues relevant to gauging student learning.

Dr. E. Thomas Moran, vice president for academic affairs, will lead off the series on Tuesday with a discussion of basic principles of outcomes assessment, followed by commentary by participants. Those planning to attend are encouraged to bring lunch (and to RSVP at ext. 2195 to facilitate the order of beverages, which will be provided free). The next program is being planned for early April.

Plattsburgh SUNY Day Delegates See 22 Legislators

the Senate and Assembly, respectively. The seven students who made the trip, as well as the alumni participants, kept appointments with legislators from their home districts. By the end of the day, Plattsburgh people had visited with 22 legislators.

Meanwhile, President Judson made his first visit to the seat of state government on behalf of SUNY Plattsburgh, and it included tours of the Senate and Assembly chambers led by alumni who hold top-level posts in the State Legislature — John McArdle '77, who is press secretary to Senate Majority Leader Ralph Marino, and Karen McCann '75, who serves as director of legislative relations in the Assembly. Later in the day, Judson met individually with Senator Marino and with Lt. Gov. Stanley Lundine.

The students who participated in SUNY Day included Shannon Diubaldo of the Bronx; David Hayes of Spring Valley; April LaDuke of Schenectady; Greg Moran of Troy; Dominic Niciforo of Albany; Michael Torkarz of Queensbury; and Greg Wegner of Bay Shore. Louis Testa '76 and Michael Rapley '93 spoke for the college's alumni, while Arnold Amell '53 represented both the alumni and College Council constituencies.

Brown's Photos to Be Shown at Chicago Botanic Gardens

A one-person exhibition of photographs by College Photographer Robin Brown will open on Thursday, of the opening.

Titled "The Sustaining Landscape," the exhibition, which will be shown in Chicago through April, and which coincides with the Society for Photographic Education national conference in that city, consists of 40 black and white photographs. According to Brown, its theme focuses on "the positive interaction of man in the landscape."

In an essay on the exhibition, art historian Carole Anne Slatkin writes, "This clear-eyed view (of "tranquil scenes" in Brown's work) gravitates to quiet rhythms, forms, and tonalities in landscapes that juxtapose man-made textures with natural ones, and suggest rather than directly illustrate the human presence." Slatkin continues, "... many of her pictures contain a suggestion of reverie—not in the form of nostalgia for the past, but rather as a meditation on those still existing scenes that, because they reflect the increasingly rare moments of harmony between man and nature, re-discover for us a sense of place for both our physical and our spiritual selves."

After it leaves Chicago, the exhibition will be transported to Paul Smith's College where it will be on display from May 13 through July 8 at that institution's Visitor's Interpretive Center. Besides serving as college photographer, Brown teaches photography here.

Robin Brown's "Harvested Fields," photographed in 1987 in the Azores, is part of the exhibition to be displayed at the Chicago Botanic Garden.

Visual Artist Series Guest Dawson to Demonstrate Art of Portrait Painting During Day-long Session

The final guest in this year's Visual Artists Series at SUNY Plattsburgh is Danni Dawson, a prominent portrait and still life painter from Washington D.C.

The featured presentation by Dawson, who will visit the campus the week following spring break, will be unusual: she will spend the day on Tuesday, March 22, painting a portrait. The college and community are invited to come watch her work (in Myers Fine Arts, room 306, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.), and they are encouraged to ask questions and discuss her working methods and concerns as she paints.

Also on Tuesday, she will give an informal slide presentation of her work that, she says, "is very much intended to be a dialogue with the audience." That event, too, is open to all, and it is scheduled at 8 p.m. in Myers 306.

Among her numerous commissions are portraits painted of Dr. Phillip Abelson, editor of Science Magazine, three presidents of Georgetown University, the singer Kris Kristofferson, and Patrick Hayes, who was instrumental in the founding of the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and whose portrait required an act of Congress to hang in the Center.

Dawson, who holds the MFA from George Washington University, has won awards from the National Academy of Design, Allied Artists, and Audubon Artists for her portrait, figure and still life paintings. She has been featured in numerous magazine articles and has appeared on television and radio, and she has taught at various institutions, including the Torpedo Factory, home of the Northern Virginia Art League, where she currently teaches portrait and figure painting.

Presentations in the Visual Artists Series are sponsored by the Art Resources Association and the Campus Arts Council.

Pick Up Financial Aid Forms

Suzanne Sokolowski, Financial Aid Director, is advising students who intend to apply for financial aid for this summer that they must complete registration cards which are now available in the Financial Aid Office, 406 Kehoe Building.

Besides the card, students must also have filed a 1994-95 Free Application for Federal Student Aid with the federal processor. Additionally, they must also file a separate TAP application to receive a state grant for summer, fall, or spring.

Fall Registration Begins Soon

Before they leave campus for spring break, students should be aware that the course selection/registration period for the Fall 1994 semester begins on Monday, March 21 (the day classes resume) and ends on Friday, April 1.

Students are advised to plan their schedule, contact advisors, take proficiency exams, and discuss any changes of major program of study prior to March 21. Questions about registration can be directed to Evelyn Skopp, assistant registrar, Kehoe 312 (extension 2095).

Hockey Cards Survive Oswego; Head for Finals at Fredonia

In an overtime "mini-game" thriller on Saturday, the Plattsburgh State hockey team defeated Oswego 1-0 in sudden death on a power play goal by defenseman D.J. MacPhail to send the Cardinals to SUNYAC Ice Hockey Finals at Fredonia this weekend. Fredonia advanced to the final round with a two game sweep of Potsdam by scores of 8-3 and 7-1.

Plattsburgh dominated game 1 on Friday night, scoring a convincing 7-1 win over the Great Lakers. Co-captains Lenny Pereira and Chris Fess led the Cardinals with 4 points (0-4=4) and 3 points (2-1=3), respectively. The following night, it was the Lakers' turn to dominate, thanks to a valiant effort by goaltender Jeff Solan. After a 3-3 first period, Solan was unbeatable, stopping all 35 shots he faced in the 2nd and 3rd periods, as the Lakers cruised to a 7-3 victory to force the 15-minute mini-game play-off. In the mini-game, the Cardinals outshot the Lakers 20-5, but Solan was equal to the task. Both teams had excellent chances to score in the mini, but the outcome boiled down to sudden death overtime. Cheered on by a frantic home crowd of 2,598, the Cardinals continued to apply pressure on the Oswego defense with an aggressive forecheck. The hard work paid off as Brian Levesque was pulled down at the Laker blue line to create Plattsburgh's power play opportunity. Following a time out, Plattsburgh gained the zone and quickly set up the winning goal on MacPhail's low blast to the near post with 3:06 remaining in the overtime.

The women's indoor track team finished 11th of 17 teams at the New York State Women's Collegiate Athletic Association (NYSWCAA) Championship this past weekend. Plattsburgh's Jen Wiseman was crowned state champion in the 800 meter run, finishing the race in a personal best 2:21.22. Wiseman, this year's SUNYAC champion in the 800, finished two seconds ahead of her nearest competitor. She also anchored Plattsburgh's 4X400 meter relay which placed fifth in a school record time of 4:19.46.

In swimming and diving, the men's team placed 9th at the SUNYAC Swimming and Diving Championships. Cardinal diver Bill Wrinkle scored all 20 points for Plattsburgh with fifth place finishes in 1 and 3 meter diving.

West Virginia/Illinois 'Or Bust'

Undaunted by last Wednesday's snowstorm, some of the more than 30 students who will forego the sun and sand of Florida over the coming two weeks to volunteer their services in helping to rebuild a flood-stricken area in western Illinois or an impoverished West Virginia community load a truck with bottles and cans collected on campus and destined for a local redemption area. The bottle and can drive is one of several fund-raisers employed by the students to help offset their expenses while on "Alternative Spring Break" from March 10 to 19. (see the February 16 issue of "Weekly") Shown are (counter-clockwise, from the left foreground): Bryan Hartman, Mary Green, Myoko "Micky" Costello, Nancy Benowitz, Jamie Colburn, Shawn Rocco, Rich Davino, Mary Murphy, Kathleen Leary and Missi Jenkins.

Name Fall All-Academic Team

Five male and five female student-athletes have been named to the fall 1993 edition of the SUNY Plattsburgh All-Academic Team. Student-athletes who achieve a semester GPA of 3.0 or greater are eligible for All Academic honors, and the male and female student athletes with the top five GPA's earn the award.

Members of the fall '93 All-Academic Team, their year in school, hometowns, sports, majors and GPAs are:

Women: Tammi Jupin, senior, Auburn, tennis, biology, 4.000; Patricia Tansey, junior, Ossining, volleyball, elementary education, 3.940; Ann Diehl, senior, Kingston, tennis, elementary education, 3.860; Livia Barnes, freshman, New Hartford, cross country, Spanish, 3.824; Laura Rudy, freshman, Katonah, tennis, environmental science, 3.660.

Men: George Brown, junior, Peru, cross country, computer science, 3.800; Gregory Veitch, junior, Saratoga, basketball, criminal justice, 3.740; Scott Simon, freshman, Henderson, hockey, physics, 3.660; Graig Furlong, sophomore, Albany, basketball, biochemistry, 3.425; James Koniuto, junior, Binghamton, soccer, environmental science, 3.286.

Plan Approved to Establish Fitness Center in Memorial Hall

In partnership with College Auxiliary Services (CAS) and the Student Association (SA), the college is planning to establish a first-rate membership fitness center in Memorial Hall. The center is scheduled tentatively to open next fall.

According to Peter Luguri, assistant vice president for student affairs and director of athletics in the college's Department of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreational Sports (PEARS), CAS has approved a loan of $150,000 to equip and renovate Memorial Hall's current dance studio and recreation room facilities.

Both areas are located on the lower level of the building.

Meanwhile, the SA has agreed to allocate $40,000 per semester during 1994-95 to help repay the loan and to help offset operational costs. In return, the first year membership fee for students will be reduced.

Luguri said that two consultants who studied the feasibility of a fitness center for this campus concurred that strong support exists not only among students but also faculty and staff, and that the center has potential as a recruiting tool among prospective students. The center will be administered by PEARS in collaboration with an advisory committee composed of students, faculty and staff with representation from both CAS and the SA.

What is now the dance studio will be renovated and equipped with cardiovascular equipment, including stairmasters, treadmills and stationary bicycles; with 14 separate "selectorized" resistive weight training machines, stations and devices; and with a full range of free weights. The current recreation room will become an aerobics facility which, besides basic aerobic sessions, will support step aerobics, body sculpturing, line dancing and similar activities.

Johnson Foundation Grant Provides $100,000 to ADAC

The Notheastern New York Alzheimer's Disease Assistance Center (ADAC) at SUNY Plattsburgh has received a grant of $100,000 ($50,000 for each of the next two years) from the prestigious Robert Wood Johnson Foundation to significantly expand its respite services for caregivers of dementia sufferers.

This is the first time since its establishment in 1986 that ADAC has received such substantial funding from a private foundation. "We are delighted with this new support and the extent to which it will enable us to extend our respite services," says Dr. Taher Zandi, professor of psychology at the college and the director of ADAC.

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation is the nation's largest health care philanthropy. It was founded by the late Robert Wood Johnson, who developed the family-owned health and medical care business, Johnson & Johnson, into a worldwide company. He funded the foundation, which he kept independent of Johnson & Johnson, with $1.2 billion of his personal fortune.

The Foundation currently ranks among the seven largest private foundations in the U.S. Its grant to ADAC has been awarded under a foundation program called "Partners in Caregiving: The Dementia Services Program".

According to Zandi, the grant application process required ADAC to identify sources of "matching gifts." The program, he reports, has received

CAS Gives Nod to Board Plan Increase for '94-95

SUNY Plattsburgh's resident students will pay $32 more per semester for their meals effective the beginning of the 1994-95 academic year.

The increase was approved unanimously by the Executive Committee of College Auxiliary Services (CAS) at the committee's meeting on February 24th. It represents the first hike in the board plan since academic 1990-91.

The increase, however, will be offset by the inclusion of a $50 meal plan credit. The credit will allow students expanded use of the Sundowner, Snack Bar, Hawkins Hall cafeteria, Cardinal Carts, the Centennial Room, and the Cardinal Delivery Service.

"The new wrinkle in the plan will give students much more flexibility," said Stanley Supinski, CAS executive director. Added Cheryl Hogle, CAS president, "We are hopeful it will eliminate a nagging problem for students who sometimes run short when

STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK

Fifth Annual Conference Highlights AIDS Awareness Week

SUNY Plattsburgh's fifth conference on HIV/AIDS will take place this Friday, March 25, from 8.45 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. in the Angell College Center. The theme of this year's conference is "The Second Wave: A Time to Refocus," and it will culminate a week-long series of on-campus events marking "AIDS Awareness Week" at the college.

Organizers intend the conference to send a positive message, namely that education and intervention offer the best hope of protection from HIV disease. They also hope it will provide participants with the kind of knowledge they need to make a difference in efforts to bring a halt to the ongoing epidemic of HIV/AIDS.

The conference will explore current changes in epidemiology (such as the rising number of HIV/AIDS cases amongst women and children), the relationship between sexually transmitted diseases and HIV, and between TB and HIV/AIDS, psychosocial issues, HIV education, and intervention techniques. Speakers are drawn from all over New York State.

Additionally, the event will feature a panel of five women, all but one of whom are mothers and all of whom have been diagnosed as HIV positive. The panelists will address the human aspect of HIV by focusing on their own experiences.

Other AIDS Awareness Week activities include screenings of PBS's "Silverlake Life: the View from Here," which documents the battle of a gay couple against AIDS and which will be shown on Wednesday, March 23 at 8 p.m. in Yokum 208, and Thursday, March 24 at 12 noon in the College Center Meeting room #8.

There will also be a screening of the video "People Like Us," in which several young people tell their own stories of living with HIV and AIDS. This program, scheduled for 8 p.m. on Thursday in Yokum 208, will be followed by a panel discussion involving local people with AIDS.

additional support from the SUNY Plattsburgh College Foundation and from Clinton County, which have provided $6,500 and $6,000, respectively.

Zandi explains the importance of respite for caregivers by pointing to national statistics and case studies which document the high risk of stress-related ailments among those who care for people suffering from dementia. He says that providing respite for caregivers can serve to increase their sense of well-being while simultaneously reducing the likelihood of premature institutionalization of the dementia sufferer.

The new funding will be used in part to expand ADAC's existing day care program for cognitively impaired adults, started in 1990, from four hours three days a week, to ten hours five days a week. This addresses the needs of working caregivers.

Jennifer Graban, who directs the day care program at ADAC, says that apart from providing respite for caregivers, the program provides meaningful activity and socialization for dementia sufferers, thereby assisting each individual to function at the highest possible level of independence. She comments that the programs are individualized, to cater for different levels of impairment, and the different interests of the participants.

"Our aim is to provide them with stimulating, enjoyable and productive activity," she says. She points out that while it is the grants received by the center that make the day care program possible, it is necessary to charge a fee for the program to cover the costs.

"The day care program benefits not only dementia sufferers and caregivers, but also provides a rich training center for SUNY Plattsburgh students," adds Zandi. "We usually have from ten to 15 student interns from a variety of programs working at the center. These interns gain hands-on experience in working with cognitively impaired adults," he explains.

The new funds will also be used to start a two-day-per-week day care program this spring for Native Americans residing on the Mohawk Reservation at Hogansburg. This satellite program will be the first of a number of such programs which are planned throughout the six-county area which ADAC serves.

Future plans which will also benefit from the new funding include providing transportation to and from ADAC, and a home respite program.

using the meal plan cash equivalency in locations other than dining halls."

CAS will be contributing $140,000 in reserve funds to lessen the impact of the increase. By Hogle's estimate, auxiliary services has spent about $250,000 of its reserves over a four year span to absorb cost increases as a means to keep prices stable.

Even with the changes, Supinski and Hogle have found that Plattsburgh's board fees are still among the lowest in SUNY. They point out that the new price of $828 for the top meal plan is nearly $150/semester lower than the average cost of board currently in effect at 11 comparable SUNY schools.

Also, Supinski and Hogle agree that the comparatively low board costs are an advantage inherent in contracting food service to private companies such as Marriott, whose size alone enables it to provide lower costs than could be offered via self-operation. The college is now in the third year of a five-year contract with Marriott.

Hogle credits her associates for keeping costs in line at SUNY Plattsburgh. "It comes from good management at CAS," she said, "and from being very careful with dollars."

New Sibley Facility: Training Ground for Tomorrow's Teacher

College Relations Intern

Last spring, the college received welcome news that $150,000 had been added to the 1093-94 budget to pay for installation of an advanced technology-multimedia classroom in Sibley Hall. That classroom became operational in January, and the benefits to the college are already becoming crystal clear.

Funding for the classroom was secured through the efforts of State Senator Ronald B. Stafford (R-Plattsburgh) as a Legislative grant. It was sought to enhance instruction, particularly in teacher education programs.

"Until now, it was very difficult to show or incorporate technology in a teaching situation," says Lynne Schrum, an assistant professor whose specialty is curriculum and educational technology. "We had to either wheel equipment around to classrooms or not use it at all. The lab makes it much easier and more efficient for all instructors."

Located in room 308 in Sibley, the lab is equipped with an impressive array of technology. Its features include 22 student computer stations, which are Macintosh Quadra 660s with floppy disk, CD-ROM drives and enhanced sound and graphics. A separate instructor station projects (in color) the instructor's computer screen onto a projection pad, and the push of a button on a remote mouse allows the projection of one of the room's four laser disc players. A color scanner transfers printed images from paper to the computer screen, while a color printer performs the opposite function.

In addition, three dot matrix printers and loads of educational software are stored in the main computer server, on CDs, or on laserdiscs. Some of the software was made available through a grant from the Microsoft Corporation, which Schrum received last fall. All of the stations are networked together with the instructor station, and the entire room is connected through an Ethernet hub to the Internet system. Schrum believes the facility is among the most advanced laboratories of its kind in operation in educational departments in the SUNY system.

"All of these tools are designed to make teaching that much easier," said Schrum. "With this equipment, our students will be ready for teaching into the 21st century."

The classroom brings Plattsburgh's education offerings to the cutting edge of modern technology, but its benefits to the college are not limited to any single academic unit. Any member of the faculty from any department may use the room, providing they arrange for an available time slot and an entry code to gain access.

Use of the laboratory by individual students has been restricted to this point to classroom time, due to limited availability of supervision for the lab. However, that situation could change soon. "We have just received funding to pay and train student lab assistants," says Schrum, "and that will open up lab hours for student use."

Current restrictions do not limit the availability of the lab for classes, though, and instructors stand to benefit greatly from the tools provided in Sibley 308. Schrum plans to offer workshops for education faculty and others who want help learning how to use the equipment.

"I encourage everyone to make themselves familiar with the laboratory and the equipment inside," says Schrum. "It's a wonderful way to explore the possibilities available on campus to enhance teaching."

Forensic Team Second to Ohio U. in 'Tune-up' for National Tourney

SUNY Plattsburgh's public speaking team finished second behind Ohio University at a "warm-up tournament" for the 1994 nationals held recently at Suffolk University in Boston.

The field of 20 teams in the competition also included Harvard University, Otterbein College and Washington and Lee, which finished third, fourth and fifth, respectively.

Other competing institutions included Queens College, Ithaca College, Old Dominion University, Emerson College and the University of Southern Maine.

In addition to the overall second place finish, four SUNY Plattsburgh competitors reached the final rounds in four events. Meg Gossin, a senior communication major and team captain, took first in Prose Interpretation, fourth in Rhetorical Criticism, fifth in Poetry Interpretation, and placed fifth among the "Pentathlon" contestants (those competing in five or more events).

Peter Campisi, also a senior communication major, took second in both Prose Interpretation and Poetry Interpretation. Dan Morse, a senior sociology major, took sixth in both Rhetorical Criticism and Persuasive Speaking. Helga Gladik, a sophomore communication major, placed fourth in Persuasive Speaking.

The team is now preparing for the National Championships, to be held at Western Kentucky University April 12-18. As a tune-up for the nationals, the college's forensic squad will present a program at SUNY Plattsburgh's "Showcase" celebration on April 6.

Lynne Schrum (standing, upper left) checks the progress of students working at their individual computer stations in the college's new high-tech classroom in Sibley Hall.

Nichols College's Nominee for 'Nurse of Distinction' Award

Lynne W. Nichols, associate professor of nursing, has been selected as SUNY Plattsburgh's nominee as a 1994 New York State Legislature "Nurse of Distinction."

Nichols is among 394 nurses statewide to receive the designation, which is based on "significant contributions" to the profession. She will be honored at a reception for all nominees at a conference of Nurses of Distinction to be held in Albany toward the end of April.

Nichols was selected as Plattsburgh's nominee in recognition of her efforts in designing a series of pharmacology courses for nursing students that relate to the clinical coursework the students take throughout the nursing education program. Additionally, the honor acknowledges her scholarship as co-author of Clinical Pharmacology and Nursing Management, a text published by J.B. Lippincott, now in its fourth edition.

Nursing's Lynn Nichols

A member of the Plattsburgh faculty since 1970, Nichols teaches pharmacology, including a section offered simultaneously, from nursing's telecommunications studio in Sibley hall, to RN students in Glens Falls, Malone and Saranac Lake, and medical-surgical nursing. Besides pharmacology, she has been involved in developing courses in health assessment and research in nursing.

Nichols has developed test materials in the area of health restoration for the Regents College Examination Committee, and she has served as a member of the planning committee for the cancer nursing teaching program sponsored in Plattsburgh by the Fitzpatrick Cancer Center at CVPH. She is a member of Sigma Theta Tau (Gamma Delta chapter), Phi Kappa Phi, the New York State Nurses Association and the Oncology Nursing Society.

Now in its sixth year, the Nurse of Distinction program was created to honor registered professional nurses in New York State as a means to encourage statewide recognition of the achievements of professional nurses, to underscore the diversity of nursing as a career, and to stimulate community awareness of the significant contributions nurses make to the state's health care system.

Making the rounds in Albany

'SUNY Day' in Albany earlier this month provided the opportunity for SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson and 19 other delegates from the college to meet face-to-face with ranking members of the Legislative and Executive branches of state government and to discuss with them the case for adequate budget support for the University and the college. Above (left photo, l-r): President Judson is greeted warmly by Senate Majority Leader Ralph Marino (R-Muttontown) and the North Country's Sen. Ronald B. Stafford (R-Plattsburgh). Above (right photo): Joined by College Council Chairperson Robert M. Garrow (r), Judson presents a copy of a booklet summarizing the college's needs and strengths to Lt. Gov. Stanley Lundine. FOCUS VIETNAM

Three Whose Lives Were Touched by the Horrors of the Vietnam War to Visit, Give Public Presentations

By coincidence rather than design, the coming week is taking shape as "Focus Vietnam" week at SUNY Plattsburgh.

Public programs planned separately will feature a survivor of the Vietnam war whose story has been made into a major motion picture as well as two others — a novelist-poet and a visual artist — whose work has been inspired by experiences in Vietnam and by those who lived through the horrors of the war.

A Presidents' Speakers Series lecture by Le Ly Hayslip, author of When Heaven and Earth Changed Places and chairperson of the East Meets West Foundation, headlines the week's Focus Vietnam activities. Hayslip, whose life in Vietnam is chronicled in the recently released Oliver Stone Film, Heaven and Earth, will discuss "My Story of Vietnam" at 8 p.m. next Wednesday (March 30) in the Angell College Center Warren Ballrooms.

Special showings of Heaven and Earth have been scheduled at the college at 7:30 p.m. on Monday (March 28) in room 208 of Yokum Hall and at 4 p.m. on Tuesday (March 29) in Warren Ballroom B of the Angell Center. The showings, too, are open to the public.

The related Focus Vietnam events include:

- Readings by John Balaban, currently professor and chairperson of the creative writing program at the University of Miami, who served as an instructor in International Volunteer Services at the University of Can Tho in South Vietnam during 1967 and 68, and the author of Remembering Heaven's Face: A Moral Witness in Vietnam, his most recent book. Balaban will read from his poetry and from Remembering Heaven's Face on Monday (March 28) at 8 p.m. in the Champlain Valley Hall (CVH) Commons.

- Three presentations, illustrated by slides, by Kate Collie, a studio artist whose work has been exhibited in galleries throughout the U.S. and Canada as well as in New Zealand and, currently, Vietnam. Collie will discuss "Vietnam: Echoes and New Notes" at 1:15 p.m. on Tuesday (March 29) in the CVH Commons; "Soldier's Heart: A Collaboration" at 8:15 p.m. on Tuesday, also in the CVH Commons; and "Art and Social Responsibility" at 8 p.m. on Thursday (March 31) in the Angell Center Cardinal Lounge.

Background information related to the Focus Vietnam program visitors follows:

Reviews of Le Ly Hayslip's best-selling When Heaven and Earth Changed Places describe the book as "a poignant memoir (which) serves as a metaphor for the heart-break of an entire country that was riddled with contradiction and wracked with misery." The book recounts how Hayslip became a victim of all sides in the conflict: "She experienced the terrifying violence of the French and American armies; served as a lookout and messenger for the Viet Cong; endured arrest and torture by the Saigon government policy; then was sentenced to death by the Viet Cong, who accused her of becoming a government informer. The two guerrillas assigned to carry out the execution raped her instead, then released her. By Vietnamese tradition, she was ruined: no girl (she had not yet reached her 15th birthday) so dishonored could expect to marry or have a family."

Le Ly eventually met and married an American civilian and emigrated with him to San Diego in 1970. In 1987 she founded the East Meets West Foundation, a non-profit organization created to help rebuild war-ravaged areas in Vietnam and support the construction of hospitals schools and orphanages there.

Besides teaching in South Vietnam, Balaban served there as a field representative for the "Committee of Responsibility to Save War-Injured Children." The author of nine books of poetry and prose, his first book of poetry, After our War, won the Lamont Selection of the Academy of American Poets award, while his latest poetry collection, Words for My Daughter, was a National Poetry Series selection.

A Woodrow Wilson Fellow, Balaban's honors include two Fulbright Awards, NEA Fellowships, NEH Younger Humanist and Media awards, a translation prize from the Columbia University Translation center, and a nomination for the National Book Award for poetry. Prior to joining Miami, he taught for 22 years at Pennsylvania State University.

Each of Collie's three presentation's connect strongly to Focus Vietnam themes. The first ("Vietnam: Echoes and New Notes) focuses on "As Seen by Both Sides," an exchange exhibition of art works by 20 American and 20 Vietnamese artists that examines the war and that, following a three-year tour in the U.S., is now on a seven-city tour in Vietnam.

Collie's "Soldier's Heart" discussion will examine work she completed in collaboration with a Vietnam veteran who returned home from the war to a deeply troubled life, endured an acute case of post-traumatic stress disorder, attempted suicide and eventually recovered through art therapy. In her final presentation, Collie will talk about her own experiences over the past decade "as she has deepened her own sense of the compatibility of art with social responsibility."

Hawaii's Kuroda Here as Distinguished Visiting Professor

Dr. Yasumasa Kuroda, professor of political science at the University of Hawaii and an internationally renowned authority on Japan's international relations policies and positions, will be on campus as Distinguished Visiting Professor in the political science department for four days starting this Friday (March 25).

While in the North Country, Kuroda will join several SUNY Plattsburgh students who will take part in a Japan Seminar at the University of Montreal scheduled for Friday. He will be the featured speaker at the 21st annual Asian Symposium at the college to be held on Monday (March 28) from 3 to 5.30 p.m. in the Cardinal Lounge. His symposium topic will be "Mother-Cultural Constraints in International Communications: The Case of the U.S.-Japan Relationships."

Kuroda's other public presentations will include a talk on Japan-Middle East relations at a Tuesday Reflections program at 4.15 p.m. on Tuesday (March 29) in the Cardinal Lounge, and a discussion of "Japan's Cultural and Historical Constraints and its Relationship with the World" on Wednesday (March 30) from 5 to 7.30 p.m. in Hawkins Hall room 137.

A native of Japan, Kuroda first came to the United States to undertake doctoral and post-doctoral studies. He has authored and co-authored more than 100 scholarly articles, six monographs, and four books, and his articles and reviews have appeared in English, Hebrew, and Italian as well as Japanese.

Kuroda has been active as consultant or expert witness for government agencies, attorneys and corporations. He has received several research grants from the Toyota Foundation to study "the mother tongue as constraint in international understanding." In 1992 he held a two month visiting fellowship to Truman Research Institute for the Advancement of Peace in Jerusalem at the Hebrew University in Israel.

Wiseman Earns All-America Status; Hockey Cards Honored

SUNY Plattsburgh has another All-America in women's track.

Jennifer Wiseman, a junior business management major from Malone, turned in a personal best time of 2:18.43 in the 800 meters to tie for fifth in the NCAA Division III indoor track and field championships held at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh earlier this month. The top eight finishers in and field All America in each of the past four years.

Meanwhile ...

The 1993/94 Plattsburgh State hockey Cardinals landed four players on the State University of New York Athletic Conference (SUNYAC) All-Conference Team. Senior forward Lenny Pereira (Mississauga, Ont.) and freshman defenseman D.J. MacPhail (Abington, Plattsburgh's top scoring defenseman with six goals and 15 assists for 21 points. He ran the power play from the point, scoring five power play goals, including the conference playoff series-winning goal over Oswego. In conference play MacPhail registered points on 2 goals and 5 assists. He joined Pereira on the 1993/94 SUNYAC All-Tournament Team.

Pereira, last season's SUNYAC Player of the Year, finished sixth among the SUNYAC scoring leaders with 14 goals and 10 assists for 24 points in 12 games. Overall, Pereira led the team with 30 goals and 24 assists for 54 points. He finished his Cardinal career with 105 goals and 129 assists for 234 points, third on the all-time list.

MacPhail finished the season as Fess, a first-team selection last season, finished ninth among the SUNYAC scoring leaders with six goals and 12 assists for 18 points in 11 games. Overall, He was Plattsburgh's second leading scorer this season with 21 goals and 27 assists for 48 points. His 27 assists were a team best and he led the team with five game winning goals. Fess ends his Cardinal career with 87 goals and 82 assists for 179 points.

Moore, last season's SUNYAC tournament MVP, finished the season as Plattsburgh's fourth leading scorer with 11 goals and 20 assists for 31 points.

CSENC to Host Saturday's 2nd North Country Science Fair

The Collaborative Science Education for the North Country (CSENC) program will play host to the second annual North Country Science Fair on Saturday (March 26) in the Angell College Center at SUNY Plattsburgh.

The event will attract more than 100 participants—7th and 8th grade students from throughout the region—who will exhibit 65 science projects they initiated and carried out individually or collaboratively during the 1993-94 academic year. The fair will be open for public viewing from 1 to 3:30 p.m. on Saturday.

A year ago, 54 students representing seven area schools presented more than 30 projects ranging from environmental science to plant biochemistry to the chemistry of chewing gum. The projects are evaluated by a panel of scientists from the region. Schools whose students will take part in this Saturday's North Country Science Fair include Ausable Valley Central, Beekmantown Central, Chazy Central, Northern Adirondack Central, Peru Central, Plattsburgh High, and St John's.

The Science Fair is a State Education Department-funded program designed to promote secondary level science education opportunities in the northeast region of New York State. It is perceived as an alternative method for encouraging interest in science among primary and secondary school students, including those who do not respond to traditional science teaching methods.

Besides the SED, financial support for the fair is provided by Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories, SUNY Plattsburgh, the SUNY Plattsburgh Sigma Xi Club, and the Northern New York section of the American Chemical Society.

The organizing committee consists of Dorothy Latta of Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories; William Smith, David Beebie, and Shirley Butler, teachers in the Peru, Beekmantown and Plattsburgh high school systems; and SUNY Plattsburgh faculty Dr. Kenneth Adams, professor in the Center for Earth and Environmental Science and CSENC project director, Dr. Roger Sandwick, associate professor of chemistry, and Karen Larkin, lecturer in the Center for Educational Studies and Services.

In addition to the Science Fair, CSENC offers a two week summer camp for 9-12th grade students titled "Explorations in Science" and consisting of a series of workshops at which college scientists and area science teachers collaborate to develop effective teaching strategies. It also plans and conducts public seminars on issues in science.

L-R: SUNY Plattsburgh's Dr. Richard Beach, professor of geography and director of the Center for the Study of Canada, Art Museum Director Edward Brohel and Aprill LaDuke, the Student Association's vice president for the arts, admire Kelly Plaik Qimiupik's "Bird Spirit," an Inuit sculpture and what is hoped to be the first of many works that will comprise a Canadian art component in the college's permanent art collection. The piece was acquired with funds provided by the SA and College Auxiliary Services allocated specifically to purchase for the collection tribal art created by native peoples of the Canadian Arctic.

Besides the equipment and costs associated with renovation, the startup allocations from CAS and the SA also cover projected expenses that come with staffing the facility as well as overhead and maintenance costs. Staffing will consist of a manager trained as a fitness expert and qualified students who will be retained on a temporary service payroll.

Membership, at least initially, will be limited to students, faculty and staff, and the proposed fee schedule for 1994-95 will require $25 per semester from students and $75 per semester from faculty and staff. The consultants' feasibility study predicts a first-year membership of 1,600 students and 50 faculty.

The center will be open daily while the college is in session—primarily from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. weekdays and afternoons to 10 p.m. on weekends—seven days per week.

Dr. Stuart J. Baum, Distinguished Teaching Professor of chemistry, co-presented a paper (with Dr. Kenneth Hughes of the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh) titled "Chemistry Methods Via the Operation Chemistry Model: The Wisconsin and New York Experiences" at the American Chemical Society Meeting held recently in San Diego. Baum's presentation described the "Summer Workshop for Teachers" and "Science Van Outreach Program" projects he directs here ...

Spirituals, a suite of seven etchings by Diane Fine, assistant professor of art, is now on view at the New York Public Library as part of an exhibition titled "Contemporary Prints and Illustrated Books: Recent Acquisitions" ... Dr. Mary L. Roark, professor in the Center for Human Resources' counseling program, is the author of "Conceptualizing Campus Violence: Definitions, Underlying Factors, and Effects," an article which appeared in the fall 1993 issue of the Journal of

College Student Psychotherapy

... A review of the book Full of Hope and Promise: The Canadas in 1841 by Dr. Thomas Rumney, professor in the Center for Earth and Environmental Science, appears in a recent issue of The American Review of Canadian Studies ... Four members of the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty and staff gave presentations at a Conference on Computing in the Disciplines on the theme "Creating the Virtual SUNY Campus" held recently under joint sponsorship of Hudson Valley Community College and SUNY Albany and held at HVCC. Scott Smith, lecturer in computer science, discussed "Internet & E-mail Assignments and Projects ... Pedagogical Designs and Practical Experiences," Lynne R. Schrum, assistant professor in the Center for Educational Studies and Services, talked about "Issues in Online Courses: Planning, Implementing and Succeeding—Lesson from the Field;" and Dr. William Graziadei, professor of biology, and Diana Akey, manager of Telecommunications, co-presented a session titled "VICE in REST: (Tele)Computing and PictureTel in Teaching/Learning" ... Color photographs by Roger Arrandale Williams, professor of art, are showcased in the most recent issue of The Conservationist (subtitled New York's Environmental Magazine), published by the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation. His "A Winter Sunrise on the Saranac River" graces the magazine's cover, and five others showing "the Adirondack region of upstate New York" comprise a four-page spread headlined "The New York Terrain."

Foundation Gets Pepsi Award

For the second consecutive year, the Plattsburgh College Foundation is among 250 non-profit organizations across the country to receive a $1,000 grant from the Pepsi-Cola Company's John Reese Awards program. Roger Burke, general manager of the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company of Keeseville and a newly-elected member of the Foundation's Board of Directors, presented the check to Foundation President Clifford Calongne at a recent Foundation meeting. The Reese awards, he explained, are given on behalf of the parent Pepsi Cola Co. because of the "time and service the Keeseville operation gives to the community." Recipients are chosen from among nominations made by managers of the many Pepsi franchises. The Keeseville Pepsi operation has been a leading contributor to the Foundation's annual Business Campaign for many years. The company annually supports the Cardinal Classic basketball and hockey tournaments and recently provided a new score clock in the Stafford Ice Arena.

Opinion Survey Gauges Students' Satisfaction

A random sample of students found an opinion survey awaiting them when they returned to their campus or community places of residence following spring break.

The survey, being administered here by the college's Office of Analysis and Assessment as part of a SUNY-wide project, is designed to assess (using a five-point scale) student satisfaction with SUNY Plattsburgh's academic environment, college services and facilities and college outcomes. Besides the standard survey form, students are being urged to respond to 30 questions that are campus-specific.

According to Gordon DeVries, information services manager in the analysis and assessment office, the survey presents an opportunity for students to express their opinions about their college experiences to both the SUNY Plattsburgh and University administrations.

Showcase '94 Headed for Success

Across-the-board academic excellence at SUNY Plattsburgh will be demonstrated and celebrated around campus next Wednesday (April 6) during the college's sixth annual "day of enrichment" titled, appropriately, "Showcase '94."

This year's Showcase will feature 187 presentations, seminars, displays, symposia, and performances designed to highlight the scholarly and creative efforts of the entire college community, especially students, and to foster the exchange and development of ideas. The presentations — a record number this year — will be spread all over the campus throughout the day, with featured events and displays held largely in the Angell Center but also in Yokum, Hudson, Sibley, Myers, and Ward halls.

"Showcase will culminate several months of hard work by a lot of people," commented Dr. Edward Miller, associate professor of chemistry and chairperson of the event. "We believe it's not only bigger in terms of presentations and participation, but also better in terms of overall quality and sophistication. That's not to take away from any previous Showcase; rather, it's an observation based on a conviction that events like this improve over time as they grow and interest levels increase."

The activities actually kick off on Tuesday night with the 18th Annual Jazz Festival Concert performed by the faculty and students of the Jazz Ensemble. The Ensemble's public concert, which begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Angell Center Blue Room, will feature percussionist Jamey Haddad as guest artist.

Showcase displays will be in place at 8 a.m. Wednesday and run throughout the course of the day. Classes,

Phaneuf Named Younger Scholar, Receives Research Grant

Darren L. Phaneuf, a junior history major from Champlain, has been named the recipient of a grant as a 1994 Younger Scholar in nationwide competition sponsored by the Na-

Phaneuf will conduct a study titled "Community at War: Plattsburgh, New York and the American Civil War." His project mentor is Dr. Altina Waller, SUNY Distinguished Teaching Professor of History.

The Younger Scholar program, Waller explained, funds projects in the humanities submitted by the nation's high school as well as college students. The awards are intended to provide summertime research opportunities

NEH received proposals from 920 applicants — 537 college and 383 high school students, respectively — and funded 152 (16 percent).

"A breakdown shows that NEH received proposals from 118 New Yorkers, and supported 24," Waller said. "However," she added, "only two of the 24 were awarded to students at the college level. One supports Darren and the other was given to a student at SUNY's Buffalo campus."

Phaneuf's study, which he has mapped over a nine-week period beginning June 1, will attempt to provide "a social/cultural explanation for why 500 men from Plattsburgh fought during the Civil War and why some did not enlist to fight." He will use the 1860 federal census to gain information about the young men who lived in Plattsburgh at the time, classifying them by age, economic

A student team consisting of Liza Bauer, Greg Weeks and Christie Corlogos won a Grand Prize in the video documentary category. Their documentary focused on the Miner clinics, studio and lab activities have been suspended for the day and evening, and "re-directed" to allow maximum exposure to the day's events for students, faculty, and staff.

Institute in Chazy, and is titled "Biography of William H. Miner."

Additionally, Brain Dornburgh received an "Honorable Mention" citation in the PSA/Promo/Commercial category for a public service announcement he created on the topic of Tourettes Syndrome.

Twelve students from the SUNY Plattsburgh AERho chapter participated in the convention activities.

Established in 1989, Showcase has grown steadily each year to become the college's premier celebration of academic and artistic talent. This year's events will feature a diverse array of pursuits in virtually every academic discipline, and they include:

- "The Digital Rest Area at SUNY Plattsburgh on the Information Superhighway," a symposium sponsored by professor William Graziadei that will feature 14 presentations demonstrating the world of interactive communication on computer networks, including Internet exploration, electronic mail, Gopher and Mosaic servers, library searching, and interactive educational software;

- A Sigma Xi symposium featuring thirty-seven presentations on undergraduate research in biology, chemistry, earth and environmental science, physics, mathematics, and psychology, as well as an induction ceremony for new members, including a local teacher who will be named Sigma Xi "Teacher of the Year;"

- A symposium on Feminist Psychology, with 16 separate discussions of current issues and research in feminist history, psychology, sociology, education, and medicine;

- A "Perspectives in Nursing and Health Care" symposium covering a variety of topics in health care research, management, and local issues;

- A Marketing/Management symposium featuring student research in business ethics, marketing and retail strategies on a local, national, and international scale;

A program guide to Showcase events and locations and a booklet of abstracts describing each presentation, including presenter, title, sponsor, and time, have been printed and distributed campus wide.

status, ethnicity, literacy, marital status, number of children, and occupations of their fathers.

From there, Phaneuf will develop a profile of those between the ages of 16 and 40 who served or did not serve in the war, a profile he feels will help to determine whether economic hardship, ethnicity or family status played a part in the decisions of young men to fight or not. He will then conduct a follow-up study of 1870 census data to explore "the consequences of war decisions."

A 1991 graduate of Northeastern Clinton Central School, Phaneuf is a College Foundation Presidential Scholar, an Honors Program student and a resident assistant in Banks Hall. He plans to pursue a master's degree in education, hoping eventually to teach history at the high school level.

Phaneuf is the third from SUNY Plattsburgh to be awarded a Younger Scholar grant. The college's previous Younger Scholars, Judiann Chartier '89 and Susan Ouellette '90, received the honor in the same year — 1988 — and Ouellette's mentor at the time was Professor Waller.

136 to Join Phi Kappa Phi in Showcase Induction Ceremony

A slate of officers will be installed and 136 members of the campus community will be inducted into the SUNY Plattsburgh chapter of the national Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi during the college's celebration of Showcase '94 next Wednesday. The chapter was formally established at the college last spring.

The initiation ceremony will take place at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday in the Warren Ballrooms of Angell College Center. A reception will follow the ceremony. All are welcome to attend both the ceremony and the reception.

President Horace A. Judson will be the featured speaker at this year's installation event, and his topic will be "Building an Academic Community." The Plattsburgh chapter's new slate of officers consists of Mark Kaiser (accounting), president; Joyce Lucia-Kolb (computer science student), vice president; and Dr. Roger Sandwick (chemistry), president-elect. Continuing their roles as chapter officers are Elizabeth Bogucki (computing center), secretary; Dr. Rachel Pollow (nursing), treasurer; and Dr. Carrie Harris (human resources), public relations officer. Kaiser succeeds Dr. Mary Roark (human resources) as chapter president.

Phi Kappa Phi has nearly 250 chapters in 49 states, the District of Columbia, the Philippines and Puerto Rico, and its purpose is to recognize and encourage superior scholarship in all disciplines. Membership is open to seniors and graduate students who are in the upper ten percent of their class and their major academically; to second semester juniors in the upper five percent of their class and their major; and to faculty, staff and alumni "who have achieved distinction."

Admission to Phi Kappa Phi is by invitation and requires nomination and approval by a chapter in accordance with bylaws of both the chapter and the national society. Besides superior scholarship, good character is a criterion for membership. Those to be inducted to the society on April 6 are:

Faculty: Dr. Horace Judson, Dr. Ruth Kline, and Lynn Schlesinger.

NEH Summer Stipend Supports Batigelli's Research for Book on Literary Life of Margaret Cavendish

Dr. Anna Batigelli, associate professor of English, has been awarded a National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) summer stipend, tenable for two months, to pursue work on a book titled A Strange Enchantment: Margaret Cavendish and the Material World.

In the book, Batigelli will examine the literary life of Margaret Cavendish, Duchess of Newcastle, who lived from 1623 to 1673. Cavendish was a royalist who lived in exile during the interregnum, (between the reigns of Charles I and Charles II), and whose writing career produced 14 books, including volumes of poetry, fiction, plays, letters and natural philosophy.

Batigelli will focus on Cavendish's physical and spiritual experience of exile, arguing that Cavendish used her position as exile as a philosophical stance through which she defamiliarized the material world in order to see it anew. Batigelli will suggest that even though Cavendish exploited her stance as exile, her work should be read within the philosophical context of the ongoing debate over the respective merits of empiricism and rationalism, since she was intensely engaged with the philosophical work of her contemporaries, in particular that of her friends Rene Descartes and Thomas

Dr. Anna Batigelli

Hobbes.

Batigelli joined the Plattsburgh faculty in fall 1987. Her articles and reviews have been published in a wide variety of journals. In addition to the NEH summer stipend, Batigelli has been awarded a one-month fellowship to spend June at the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington D.C.

20th Annual Career Night Program Scheduled for Thursday

The college's 20th annual Career Night will be held next Thursday (April 7) from 7p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the Angell Center Warren Ballrooms.

Employer representatives from a wide variety of occupations will participate in a "Career Fair" setting. This year, the Summer Job and Cooperative Education Fair (SJCEF) is being incorporated into Career Night, instead of being a separate event, as in past years.

Career Night, which is open to all SUNY Plattsburgh students, is coordinated by the Career/Life Planning Center (C/LPC). Carolyn M. Delcore, assistant director of Career/Life Planning and coordinator of the Career Night program, says that the event is one of the largest of its kind in New York State. She comments that it provides students with an excellent opportunity to expand their career horizons and gain a better perspective on their future.

"In fluctuating economic times like these, it is more important than ever for students to obtain accurate information about the realities in the world of work," Delcore says. Commenting on the incorporation of the SJCEF into Career Night, she adds that she and her colleagues are hopeful that the new format will enhance employer exposure and help students to view all work experiences in terms of their career goals.

On Friday (April 8), some of the participating organizations will be conducting interviews for current vacancies. Students who are interested in interviews must schedule appointments in C/LPC, Kehoe 606, by April 4, and provide a copy of their résumé for each employer's file.

C/LPC and the Office of Alumni Affairs will co-host a reception and dinner in the Cardinal Lounge in the Centennial Room before the Thursday evening program to honor the visiting employers, some of whom are alumni returning to offer advice and help to current students.

Kudos to ...

Greg James

who received honorable mention recognition on the 1993/94 SUNYAC Men's Basketball All-Conference Team. James finished conference play ranked fourth in scoring (19.7), third in rebounding

(9.5), and sixth in field goal percentage (.533). His average ranking is fourth in those three statistical categories, higher than any other player in the conference. Despite missing seven games in the first quarter, James led the Cardinals this season in points scored (294 or 17.3 game), and rebounds (177 or 10.4/game).

'Volunteerism' Defined

ABOVE: SUNY Plattsburgh students who gave up the warm sunshine and sandy beaches of the South to take an "Alternative Spring Break" in Hull, Ill., where they performed countless hours working with relief crews involved in gutting, repairing, and rebuilding homes and public buildings damaged or destroyed in last year's flood disaster, take a break with friends and co-workers from Mt. Saint Mary's College amidst a pile of 478 bags of corn stalks and debris cleared over several days from the property of a Hull resident. The weary but high-spirited rakers are (front, l-r:) Miki Costello, Jennifer Legge, Rhonda Senn of Mt. St. Mary's and Stephanie Graseck. (Christopher Daugherty (l) of Mt. Three Alumni Among 25 to be Honored in Albany by EOP

SUNYPlattsburgh will be well-represented at the upcoming awards program highlighting the 22nd annual Institute of Academic and Vocational Approaches to Educational Opportunities.

The Institute begins Sunday and continues through Wednesday of next week (April 10-13) at the Marriott Hotel in Albany under sponsorship of the University's Office of Special Programs. Its theme is "25 Years in the Pursuit of Excellence Forging a Climate for Change: Setting a New Agenda."

"What makes the event very special for us," says Marlene Fields, director of the college's Educational Opportunity Program, "is that three of our EOP alumni have been singled out for recognition during a 25th anniversary program celebrating individual triumphs in academics, careers and personal development. They will be among 25 chosen to be honored as Distinguished EOP Alumni from 90

Programs and 10 Educational Opportunity Centers (EOC) statewide. Since the program's inception, more than 26,000 students have received degrees from the University with special assistance provided by EOP, while 60,000 have graduated through the University's EOCs.

To be Visiting Scholar at UNC

Waller Receives $30,000 NEH Award for Book Project

Dr. Altina Waller, SUNY Distinguished Teaching Professor and chairperson of the college's History Department, has received a $30,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) in support of a project titled "From Community Conflict to Feuding Mountaineers: The Origins and Uses of Feud Mythology in American Culture, 1860 - 1920."

The project will be the basis for a book Waller intends to write. She will spend the 1994-95 academic year as a visiting scholar at the

Altina Waller

"In American culture today," Waller explains, "at a time of heightened sensitivities to slights aimed at women and minorities, the stereotype of feuding hillbillies lives on and makes the people who inhabit the southern Appalachians subject to popular jokes and ridicule. My research will attempt to link the realities of violent conflicts in mountain communities with the way they were interpreted in the press and popular literature."

Waller's study will ask, "Why did middle-class America, in the face of much evidence to the contrary, insist on stereotyping Appalachians as genetically or culturally prone to irrational, family violence?" She contends that the feud stereotype was first "invented" by the press, then embellished by popular best-selling novelists to serve the needs of those seeking to modernize Appalachia economically and to exploit the region's rich timber and coal resources.

"At the same time," she adds, "it (the feud stereotype) had strong ap- (Continued on next page)

Cross-Border Project Plans Summer Programs for Faculty

The Cross-Border Studies Project is organizing three-week summer immersion programs in French and Spanish for faculty and staff.

Four sessions will be offered, with instruction at the novice and intermediate levels in each language. The Spanish sessions are tentatively scheduled for May 23 to June 10. The French sessions are to be held from May 16 to June 3 and June 6 to June 24. All will be held on campus.

The Cross-Border studies project, funded by a grant from the U. S. Department of Education, is directed by Dr. Sylvie Debevec Henning, professor in the department of foreign languages and literature. One aspect of the project is faculty development among non-foreign language specialists, aimed at fostering "in-depth appreciation of the non-English cross-border cultures of North America" in the college's programs.

The intermediate-level summer immersion sessions are for those with the equivalent of two years or more of high school study in the language. Their primary function is to hone the language skills of those faculty and staff who will be conducting course development research in Mexico or Quebec later in the summer as part of the Cross-Border Studies Project.

However there are some places available for faculty and staff who would like to improve their foreign language skills in order to internationalize their own courses, programs or research.

The novice-level sessions are for those with little or no prior knowledge of the language. They are open to all interested faculty and staff. However enrollment will be limited, since instruction will be intensive and highly individualized.

For more information contact Dr. Henning (ext. 3832 or 2829), Mr. Oscar Flores (ext. 3835), or Ms. Andrea Beaderstadt (ext. 2419).

of Washington, D.C., also a member of the Class of '74, who recently accepted an appointment as senior research associate with the Urban Institute in Washington. Clute and Maher have indicated they will attend the April 13 awards ceremony.

Clute, who received the B.S. in general studies from the college and holds a Certificate in Financial Planning (1987) from the College for Financial Planning in Denver, Colo., is a registered investment advisor, stock broker and independent insurance broker. She is a founder of the Champlain Valley Business and Professional Women's Club's Perpetual Scholarship Fund, which benefits students here and at Clinton Community College, and she has served CCC as a part-time faculty member for the past six years.

Clute is listed in Who's Who of American Women.

Maher, who holds the B.S. in sociology and the M.S. Ed. in counseling (1976) from Plattsburgh and the Ed.D. (1987) from Fordham, is a member of the college's Sports Hall of Fame (he starred in basketball and baseball during his undergraduate career) and he served a term as a distinguished visiting alumnus in residence. He has conducted several workshops and seminars on topics ranging from school violence, creative discipline and student enrichment to leadership training and character development, and he has written two books and many articles on these themes and others related to prominent educational issues.

Maher's honors include a National Citizenship Freedom Award (1986) and the Jaycee's Outstanding Young Man of America Award (1982), and a year ago he received a Distinguished EOP Alumnus Award from the Tri-State

Consortium for his work in public schools.

Majors, who received the B.A. in psychology from Plattsburgh and the Ph.D. (1987) from the University of Illinois, is recognized nationally as an authority on the status and concerns of black males in America. He is the co-author of Cool Pose: The Dilemmas of Black Manhood in America, a book nominated for several literary awards, including the Pulitzer Prize; the founder of the Journal of African-American Males Studies; and chairperson of the National Council of African-American Men.

Prior to assuming his current position, Majors, who has held postdoctoral fellowships at the University of Kansas and at Harvard, was an assistant professor of psychology at the University of Wisconsin at Eau Claire. He returned to his alma mater last spring as a distinguished visiting alumnus in residence.

peal to middle-class Americans suffering from profound anxieties about their own families."

Waller brings considerable experience to the project. Her first book, Reverend Beecher and Mrs. Tilton: Sex and Class in Victorian America (1982), explored the social construction of middle-class values surrounding family and sexuality in the mid 19th century, while her second, Feud: Hatfields, McCoys, and Social Change in Appalachia 1860-1900 (1988), analyzed the social transformation of an Appalachian community.

A member of the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty since 1983, Waller was promoted to the University's highest rank last spring. The previous year, she was named a recipient of the SUNY Chancellor's Award for Excellence in Teaching.

While Waller is on leave from the college, Dr. Anita Rapone, associate professor, will assume the role as history department chairperson.

Rapone will be coming off an academic year leave in Mexico where she is now teaching college-level courses in U.S. history under a Fulbright Senior Scholar Award from the Council for International Exchange of Scholars.

Tallada Chosen to Attend '94 'Women as Leaders Seminar'

SUNY Plattsburgh's Angela Tallada, a junior international business major from Morrisonville, has been selected to attend the prestigious 1994 "Women as Leaders Seminar" to be held from May 16 to 28 at the Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars.

tural tours with nationally prominent women leaders. As part of the seminar's "Mentor for a Day" program, Tallada will get to spend a full work day alongside one of the participants, who are yet to be named. Last year's seminar participants included U.S. Senator Carol Moseley-Braun, Washington Post publisher Katherine Graham, and Dr. Bernadine Healy, director of the National Institutes of Health.

The Plattsburgh student was one of 200 students chosen from a field of more than 800 applicants nationwide. Besides a strong academic record, including a minimum 3.0 G.P.A., the nominees were required to complete an application that included four essays. They had to obtain written endorsements from three faculty and from the college president, and they had to provide evidence of proven leadership experience.

Tallada was nominated for the seminar by Dr. Nancy Church, associate professor of management and marketing. "Angela easily met the seminar criteria," said Church, who based the recommendation on her nominee's "quality performance in classes, her public speaking ability, her participation in outside programs" and other measures of performance.

Tallada is a 1991 graduate of Saranac High School, where she was voted "Student of the Year" and "Army Reserve Scholar/Athlete of the Year." At Plattsburgh, in addition to being a Presidential Scholar and a member of Phi Eta Sigma, the national honor society for freshmen, Tallada is co-president of the Honors Student Association and secretary of the International Business Club.

She has been active in the Marketing Club, the Honors Program, and she has studied abroad in Australia.

The two-week seminar is designed to examine a variety of women's leadership issues through lectures, small group discussions, mentor opportunities and cul-

Some of the cast of "Moonchildren," Michael Weller's "fiercely honest, terribly funny, occasionally raunchy, and ultimately heartbreaking look at the lives of college students in the 1960s — lives not very different from those of students today" — which opens tonight at 8 in Hartman Theatre with performances tomorrow, Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday at 2 p.m. (tickets are available at the Angell Center desk). Left to right: Adam Grabinski, Shannon DiUbaldo, Eric Schorr, Tawn Edwards, Mike Ardieta, Nan Murat and Chris Zoll. The cast includes five others; Dr. John Shout, professor of English, directs.

Office of Campus Life has announced the names of 16 students selected as 1994 Summer Orientation leaders. All are seniors.

This year's student orientation staff will be coordinated by Daniel Bennett, a senior Latin American studies major. His colleagues and their major fields of study are: Larry Ellis, psychology; Andre Cleghorn, mass communication; Shannon DiUbaldo, mass communication; Laurie McDonnell, speech and hearing handicapped education; Jay Kesslen, economics; Jamin Alabiso, accounting; Robert Arsenault, nursing; Aimee Lim, psychology; Kim Golden, psychology; and Kathie Tallman, mass communication.

The parent orientation staff, coordinated by Edward Engelbride, assistant director of special programs in the Office of Campus Life, will include Mary Ellen Gillespie, speech communication; Jeff Gerstein, mass communication; Bridget Hallock, psychology; Michael Reynolds, criminal justice; and Matthew Ryan, mass communication.

The summer orientation program for students and their families is now in its 28th year. A year ago, 2,374 students and parents came to campus for orientation.

Pereira Named to Titan All-America Team for Second Time

SUNY Plattsburgh's Lenny Pereira, a senior center from Mississauga, Ont., has been named to the 1993/94 College Division (Division II-III) Titan All-America Hockey Team for the second year in a row.

The team is chosen by members of the American Hockey Coaches Association (AHCA) and honors outstanding Division II-III hockey players from across the United States. Pereira becomes Plattsburgh's 12th ice hockey

All-America, joining former Cardinals Joey Ferras and Doug Kimura as two-time members of ice hockey's elite team.

Lenny Pereira

During Pereira's career at Plattsburgh, the Cardinals compiled an impressive 95-24-7 record while winning one NCAA championship, one ECAC crown and two SUNY conference titles. Pereira led the team in scoring for the past three seasons and finished his career with 105 goals and 129 assists for 234 points.

The 105 goals rank him third on the Cardinal all-time list.

This past season, team co-captain Pereira led the Cardinals in goals (30), power play goals (10), shorthanded goals (2), hat tricks (3), and points (30 goals, 24 assists, 54 points). This Saturday (April 9), he will showcase his talents in the second Shrine East-West College Hockey Classic all-star game scheduled for the University of Maine's Alfond Arena.

Pereira is one of six division II-III performers named to the 21 player roster. The remaining 15 are from Division I schools.

Booster Club to Institute New Award Honoring Top Seniors

On the recommendation of the coaching and administrative staff in the Department of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreational Sports, the Board of Directors of the Cardinal Booster Club has approved a proposal to expand the awards component of the organization's annual end-of-the-year recognition program for student-athletes.

Effective this spring, the Club will institute a "Senior Achievement Award" to a male and female student-athlete to complement its "Athlete of the Year Award," which likewise honors Cardinal performers of both sexes. In past years, only the latter award was given—and seniors had the inside track since they received preference under loosely defined, tie-breaking criteria.

The Senior Achievement Award will be based on career athletic accomplishments while the Athlete of the Year Award, as its name implies, will honor the athletes whose performances in their sports in that given academic year clearly outshine their peers. It is conceivable that a single athlete or athletes could walk away with both awards.

In considering the new structure, said Peter Luguri, director of athletics, the Booster Club board saw the need to guarantee fairness and to lighten the burden on the Awards Committee. "The committee in the past has had to grapple with the question of career achievements of nominees about to graduate versus the brilliant, single-season performance of a student with plenty of eligibility remaining," said Luguri, "and the scales until now have been tipped to favor the former.

"There have been some close calls," he continued, "but it has been my experience that all Cardinal athletes of the year in past years earned and deserved the recognition. This initiative effectively eliminates the possibility that superior athletic performance in a given year will take a back seat to seniority, although choosing among candidates will continue to be difficult.

"I salute the Booster Club directors for seeing the merits of the initiative and voting its approval."

This year's Booster Club-sponsored picnic and recognition program for Cardinal athletes in all intercollegiate sports is scheduled for May 4, and will be held at the college's Educational Conference Center at Valcour.

Plattsburgh Students Attend 38th ODK Convention

Nine students were chosen to represent SUNY Plattsburgh at the 38th Biennial Convention of Omicron Delta Kappa, the national leadership honor society, held recently in Lexington, Ky.

The theme of the convention, "Leadership in a Global Society," reflected the responsibilities of the 12,000 undergraduate and graduate students nationwide who are members of ODK and whose contributions to their campuses were honored at the convention.

The Plattsburgh students who attended the convention were Margaret Bates, Jamison Colburn, Jay Kesslen, Steven Matthews, James McNamara, Kelly Rose, Jill Shea, Edward Smith III, and Angela Tallada.

Omicron Delta Kappa was founded in 1914 to honor college students who have excelled academically and shown leadership on their campuses. More than 150,000 students have been initiated to ODK.

Oberman Wins ACRL's '94 Bibliographic Instruction Award

Cerise Oberman, SUNY Plattsburgh's director of libraries, is the 1994 winner of the Association of College and Research Libraries' (ACRL) Miriam Dudley Bibliographic Instruction Librarian Award.

The award honors the woman whose pioneering efforts in the field of bibliographic instruction (BI) led to the formation of ACRL's Bibliographic Instruction Section. It recognizes an individual librarian who has made an "especially significant contribution to the advancement of bibliographic instruction in a college research institution."

Sharon Mader, chair of the award committee, said of Oberman, "Cerise has made exceptional and lasting contributions to BI and librarianship through her publications, research, presentations, teaching, mentoring, and leadership in national organizations. The influence of her presence has permeated our profession since the early days of her career. She has been a mentor for many and a model for all in bibliographic instruction."

Besides Plattsburgh, which she has served in her current role since the summer of 1988, Oberman's professional positions include public services planning officer and head of reference and research services at the University of Minnesota, as well as head of the Reference Department and assistant reference librarian at the College of Charleston.

According to the awards nomination material, Oberman "has led the way in the use of concept-based education, guided design, active learning, and question analysis, and her book Theories for Bibliographic Education: Designs for Teaching (New York: Bowker, 1982) is considered a seminal work in the field. In the 1970s she spearheaded the Southeastern Conference on Approaches to Bibliographic Instruction, and most recently was the organizing force behind the groundbreaking "Russian-American Seminar on Critical Thinking and Libraries" held in Moscow in 1992.

The award consists of a $1000 prize and a plaque. It will be presented to Oberman on June 27 during the American Library Association's annual conference in Miami.

Schlesinger Receives '94 'Emerging Scholar' Recognition from SDS

Lynn Schlesinger, a lecturer in the sociology department, has been awarded the 1994 Emerging Scholar Award of the Society for Disability Studies (SDS).

Based in the U.S., SDS has an international membership, and aims to promote interdisciplinary research on humanistic and social scientific aspects of disability and chronic illness. The Emerging Scholar

Last Wednesday's "Showcase '94" attracted curious and enthusiastic crowds to its record 187 presentations, seminars, displays, symposia and performances celebrating academic excellence at SUNY Plattsburgh, but none was better-attended than "The Digital REST Area at SUNY Plattsburgh on the Information Superhighway," which turned a corner of the Angell Center Blue Room into a beehive of activity. Here, Dr. William Graziadei (right, foreground), professor of biology, explains the potential of a software program known as "Mosaic" to a captivated visitor. Mosaic allows users to present text, graphics, photographs (in full color) and sound — cost-free — world-wide via Internet, and this campus, thanks to Graziadei's research and expertise, is among the first in SUNY to make inroads on the system. At the far end of the table Senior Programmer Analyst John Bradley demonstrates "Sledding the (Inter)Net" to Barbara Hebert, personnel associate at the college. Child, Substance Abuse Expert Videka-Sherman Here as DVP

Dr. Lynn Videka-Sherman, dean of the School of Social Welfare in SUNY Albany's Rockefeller College for Public Affairs and Policy and a leading authority nationally on the topics of child abuse and substance abuse, has begun a term as Distinguished Visiting Professor at the college.

Videka-Sherman, whose educational background and career interests span both nursing and social work, will meet with students and faculty in classes and informally throughout her stay on campus. The highlights of her visit will be a public lecture titled "Family-based Interventions and Child Abuse," scheduled for 7 p.m. on Wednesday (April 20) in the Angell Center Cardinal Lounge, and a presentation for students, faculty and area social services providers titled "Community-based Support

Videka-Sherman

Systems," which will follow a 5 p.m. dinner program on Thursday (April 21) in the Angell Center Centennial Room. Tickets for the dinner are $11, and reservations may be made by calling ext. 4181.

At 1:15 p.m. on Tuesday (April 19) in room 117 of Ward Hall, Videka-Sherman will discuss "Applications of Meta-analysis in Research" for an audience of faculty and students, and on Friday (April 22) from noon to 1:15 p.m. in room 106 of Ward, she will speak to students who are planning to enter careers in social services fields or to begin graduate studies in social work.

Videka-Sherman's research focuses on child abuse and substance abuse prevention as well as on bereavement and the family. She is the co-author of two books, Working With Pregnant and Parenting Teenage Clients (Family Service America, 1991) and Advances in Clinical Social Work Research (National Association of Social Workers, 1990), and the author of numerous articles and book chapters.

Prior to joining SUNY Albany, Videka-Sherman was Edith Abbot Teaching Fellow in the School of Social Service Administration at the University of Chicago. She has been the principal investigator on research projects on child abuse and substance abuse topics funded totally at more than $300,000 by federal agencies and private foundations.

SUNY Plattsburgh students who participated in last month's SUNY Day lobby activities in Albany were treated to an insider's tour of the New York State Assembly Chamber by an alumna who is well-acquainted with that branch of the Legislature and how it works. L-R: Karen McCann '75, director of legislative relations in the Assembly, guides students Michael Tokarz, Greg Moran, Greg Wegner, Nick Nuciforo and David Hayes through the historic Assembly Chamber.

Award recognizes significant contributions to disability studies by a graduate student, new faculty member or new researcher, and carries with it a monetary award, a citation, and the opportunity to present the work at the SDS annual meeting.

Schlesinger's award submission was the manuscript, "Pain, Pain Management, and Invisibility." One of the (anonymous) referees noted that Schlesinger's manuscript focused on "an intriguing topic for study." Another commented, "This is an outstanding piece of qualitative scholarship. It provides substantial new data and insights that address the questions of how women live with pain outside clinical settings, how they perceive others' reactions to their pain and how they define successful coping," and, "On all points, this is an exceptionally strong piece of work."

Lynn Schlesinger

Schlesinger's manuscript is based on some of her research for the Ph.D. degree through Brandeis University (to be awarded in May of this year). In this part of the research, she interviewed 28 women between the ages of 20 and 50 who live with recurrent pain (such as back or muscle pain arising from injury or illness). "The focus of the manuscript is the invisibility of pain, and the implications for pain management and disclosure," says Schlesinger.

"The advantages and disadvantages of invisibility were real, sometimes relatively controllable and sometimes unpredictable. While invisibility sometimes helped the person to lead as normal life as possible, in other instances it might be perceived as invalidating by self and others, limiting available help and complicating social interactions."

Schlesinger has a personal as well as academic interest in this topic, since she has Fibromyalgia, a muscle disorder of as yet undetermined origin, and which manifests itself in chronic muscle pain. Schlesinger's award winning manuscript was published in 1993 as a chapter in the book Research in the Sociology of Health Care (Volume 10).

Controversial Social Critic Rifkin Lectures Here on Tuesday

Jeremy Rifkin, the controversial social critic and political activist who has achieved notoriety for "waging a one-man war against the onrush of biotechnology," will lecture next Tuesday (April 19) to wind up the popular "Presidents' Speakers Series" of presentations for academic 1993-94.

Rifkin, known widely for his attacks on the policies and ethics of biotechnology, including genetic engineering, surrogate mothering, food additives, the Greenhouse Effect, and what he refers to as "bionic culture," will speak at 8 p.m. on Tuesday in the Angell College Center Warren Ballrooms, and his topic will be "Biotechnology, Bah!" Programs in the series, sponsored by the presidents of the college, the Student Association and College Auxiliary Services, are open to all.

A frequent guest on television talk shows, Rifkin is known on the campus lecture circuit (according to a cover story in The New York Times Magazine) for "his natural ease and charm (and) his ability to glide from an analysis of ancient and medieval cosmologies to shameless schtick." The titles and themes of his most recent books present some clues as to why he has been denounced and labeled a "demagogue," "fear monger" and "nut" by scientists, corporate executives and Washington bureaucrats alike. They include:

- Beyond Beef: The Rise and Fall of the Cattle Culture "combines reliable research with logical conclusions (to offer) enough economic, medical, environmental and ethical arguments to persuade any open-minded person to pass by the meat (en) counter" (Washington Post Book World).

- Into the Greenhouse World in which "Rifkin is profoundly correct when he writes that we must abandon pride for humility and use no more than our fair share of the world's remaining energy" (The New York Times Book Review).

- Biosphere Politics "offers a history, science, and economics lesson in an immensely provocative examination of the state of things and how we got there" (Booklist — The American Library Association).

'Showcase' Spotlight on Sigma Xi

"Showcase '94" was a banner day for the college chapter of Sigma Xi, the honor research society, which featured 37 presentations on undergraduate research in science disciplines and inducted new members, including (above) outstanding students in psychology and (below) the North Country's "science teacher of the year." Above (l-r) faculty sponsor Dr. Jeanne Ryan, assistant professor of psychology, with top student researchers Zhenique Isrealian, Joshua Duntley, David Wagoner and Candace Kodra. Below: Dr. Edward Miller (l), associate professor of chemistry and president of the college's Sigma Xi Club (and, coincidentally, chairperson of this year's Showcase event), presents the teacher of the year award to John Haubner (r), elementary school science coordinator for the city of Plattsburgh and assistant principal of Stafford Middle School, as Dr. J. Stallard Waterhouse (c, background), professor of biology here and Sigma Xi officer for about 30 years, looks on. Haubner's credits also include service as co-director, with Dr. Stuart Baum, SUNY Distinguished Teaching Professor of chemistry, of a State Education Department-funded summer institute designed to provide confidence-building, scientific training to regional teachers from small, rural schools in a region encompassing Clinton, Essex, Warren and Washington counties.

College Council Chairperson Robert M. Garrow will be the official SUNY Plattsburgh representative at this Saturday's (April 16) ceremony in Lynchburg, Va. where Dr. Charles O. Arts & Crafts Fairs, Campus Fixtures Since the Early 70s, Continue Appeal to Vendors and Shopping Public Alike

The creative handiwork of North Country artisans will be offered for sale at the college this weekend at the spring Arts and Crafts Fair at the SUNY Plattsburgh Field House. The event, sponsored by the Campus Life office, is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday (April 16).

Nearly 200 vendors from New York, Vermont, and nearby states have made arrangements to display their wares in the Field House gym. Together with the fall version of the fair, which is a two-day event, the craftwork sale draws nearly 15,000 people annually.

Saturday's show was put together by Scott Johnson and Melanie Wyand in the Campus Life office, who spend months making reservations, mailing information, preparing advertising, and coordinating the fair. Johnson, who has been involved with the fairs since 1983, says, "It's really an ongoing project. As soon as this fair is over, we start getting ready for the fall fair."

The original Arts and Crafts Fair at Plattsburgh was staged in the early 1970's, when it was held at MacDonough Hall. It was moved to the then newly-built Angell College Center in 1974, and its continued growth prompted relocation to the Field House in 1988.

Johnson points to the reasonable cost, good organization, and services provided by the college as reasons for the fair's continued growth and success. "The vendors pay $35 for the service we provide, which is very reasonable," said Johnson, "especially when places like malls often charge over $100 just to set up a table."

Johnson says that the college provides not only the space in the convenient Field House facilities, but electricity for each vendor, student porters, show advertisement, complimentary tea and coffee, and available Marriott food service during the show. The proceeds from the fair are donated to the college, to be used for various services, programming, and equipment.

Admission to the show is $1; children 12 and under and SA members are admitted free.

Talk by MSU Economist to Probe Cost Structure of Academic Libraries

Dr. George Chressanthos, associate professor of economics at Mississippi State University, will give a public presentation titled "The Cost Structure of Academic Libraries" at 3:30 p.m. on Monday (April 18) in the Angell Center Cardinal Lounge.

Chressanthos, who is currently serving as visiting research associate in SUNY Albany's School of Information Science and Policy, is the co-author (with his wife, June, a librarian at Mississippi State) of several articles related to the economics of libraries and the pricing of professional journals. The articles have been published in leading journals in the economics and library fields.

Chressanthos' visit to the college is being sponsored jointly by the Department of Economics and Feinberg Library.

College a $130 Million Asset to Clinton County

SUNY Plattsburgh is a major community resource, providing employment opportunities for nearly 1,300

That information highlights a report titled "SUNY Plattsburgh: A Major Community Resource," presented this morning (Wednesday, April 20) by college President Horace A. Judson to the Board of Directors of the local Chamber of Commerce and released publicly later in the day at a meeting of regional news media. The published report, a collaborative effort of SUNY Plattsburgh's Offices of Analysis and Assessment and College Relations and Development, has been mailed to an estimated 900 Chamber member-businesses located throughout Clinton County.

As the featured guest at the Chamber directors' monthly meeting at the organization's West Bay Plaza headquarters, President Judson pointed out time and 438 part-time employees. Moreover, he said, spending by the college and its people in the past year supported roughly 800 additional jobs in the region.

"We believe it is important to point out from time to time that SUNY Plattsburgh is an important regional resource for reasons other than the obvious, meaning, of course, its academic mission," commented Judson. "The college is a tremendous asset economically, and we believe it should be recognized also for its impressive cultural, research and public service impact on the North Country (see related story).

"During 1993," Judson said, "the college contributed to a direct economic impact in the county totaling $62,010,747. Its combined direct and indirect economic impact, using a conservative economic multiplier indicating that every dollar spent by the college and its people generates an additional $2.10 in spending, amounted to $130,222,569."

Saturday's Open House Expected to Draw 1,000 to Campus

More than 1,000 visitors — accepted students and members of their families — are expected on campus on Saturday (April 23) as participants in spring Open House.

According to Richard Higgins, director of admissions, the annual event is designed especially for freshman and transfer applicants accepted for admission for the fall '94 semester. It is an opportunity for prospective students, he said, to see the campus, meet with faculty and current students, and obtain answers to questions that may help them decide if SUNY Plattsburgh is the right college for them.

The day's activities get under way at 9:30 a.m. in the Angell College Center Warren Ballrooms with welcoming remarks from SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson, Student Association President Carrie Harvey and Higgins. The visitors will meet with faculty and students in specific academic departments beginning at 10 a.m., then take walking tours of the campus with students as their guides.

Following brunch in campus dining halls, Open House guests will have the option of attending one or more of four workshop sessions. The workshops focus on what students and their parents can expect to hap-

Villarosa Keynotes 1st Ever Gay/Lesbian Awareness Week

Next week (April 25-30) will mark the first-ever "Gay and Lesbian Awareness Week" at SUNY Plattsburgh, an activity to be sponsored by the Lesbian Gay Bisexual Alliance (LGBA).

A highlight of the week will be a keynote address by Linda Villarosa, senior editor of Essence magazine, who will speak on "Lesbian and Gay Issues in the 1990's." Villarosa's talk, which is free of charge and open to the campus and community, is scheduled for 8 p.m. on Monday in the Angell Center's Warren Ballrooms.

Events are scheduled for each day of the week, and they include campus showings of the movies Salmonberries, The Lost Language of Cranes, and Philadelphia, each of which deals with gay issues; a special edition of WPLT's public affairs call-in show Campus Talk, with the topic "Lesbians, Gays, and Bisexuals on Campus;" and the annual Walk-a-thon for the AIDS Council of Northeast New York, which will be held at Plattsburgh High School from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, April 30.

Members of LGBA will staff informational tables in the College Center from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday through Friday, where schedules of events and their times and locations will be available. The LGBA also invites the public to view displays at the College Store, the Counseling Center and Feinberg Library, and to attend next Wednesday's weekly LGBA meeting at noon in the Angell Center Amnesty Room.

pen (when housing contracts will arrive, when orientation visits may be scheduled, etc.) through opening day on August 29, on current students' perceptions of life at SUNY Plattsburgh, on college costs and payments, and on information specific to transfer students.

The admissions and financial aid offices will be open from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. to provide general information to Open House visitors, and the bursar's and housing offices will be open during those hours to accept deposits.

Alumni Families Invited to Open House Saturday Coffee Hour Activity

Students invited to Open House this year were asked if any of their family members are Plattsburgh alumni.

As of Monday, nearly three dozen had responded in the affirmative. Those families have been invited to attend a special coffee hour hosted by the Alumni Office and scheduled for 8:30 a.m. on Saturday morning.

Mal Lavery, Director of Development and Alumni Affairs, said, "We're pleased to see that so many prospective students have an alumnus in the family, whether it be a parent, cousin, aunt or uncle. This coffee hour will give us a chance to greet these families and, we hope, will add one more positive experience to consider when they make their decision to attend SUNY Plattsburgh."

on the college's 1993 total payroll of $30,779,443, spending by students totaling $19,188,298, institutional purchases of goods locally totaling $6,696,174, and $1,767,857 in spending by College Auxiliary Services, the Research Foundation and food service operations. Also part of the equation is spending in area motels, stores and restaurants by visitors to the college ($3,173,220), and benefits paid to veterans attending the college ($405,755).

The impact report shows that average expenditures by employees and each of its 6,197 students in 1993 totaled $18,440 and $3,096, respectively. It also provides a breakdown on leading expenditure items, with housing ($15,012,385), food ($7,025,889), entertainment/recreation ($5,409,474), transportation ($4,376,023), clothing ($2,895,783) and professional services ($1,841,102) heading the list.

Publication Focuses Also on College's Service, Research and Cultural Impact

The newly issued publication "SUNY Plattsburgh: A Major Community Resource" measures a great deal more than the college's economic impact on the North Country.

Separate sections of the six-page folder focus on the institution's public service, research and cultural contributions to the region, and document them with facts and figures collected during 1993. Some (abbreviated) highlights follow:

- Public service ... the Alzheimer's Disease Assistance Center provided diagnostic, referral, treatment and day care services to more than 850 clients and caregivers; the Speech and Hearing Clinic conducted hearing, speech and language evaluations for 481 clients and provided speech therapy to 248 others; the Psychological Services Clinic provided 637 contact hours of minimal or low-cost services to 88 area children and adolescents and their families; the Reading Clinic offered diagnostic and tutoring services to about 100 area school children; and the Technical Assistance Center responded to more than 850 requests for help and specialized services.

- Research ... more than one-third of roughly $3 million in research dollars from federal, state and private sources directly benefit the North Country and its residents, and the projects include "Telenursing Education in Rural New York State," $409,620; "Alzheimer's Disease Assistance Center (ADAC) Rural Health Outreach Demonstration Project," $193,000; "Upward Bound Program," $430,120; "Toxic Contaminants in Lake Champlain Sediments," $55,000; "Collaborative Science Education for the North Country," $40,150; and "Clinton County Social Services Employee Training Project," $39,02.

- Arts & entertainment ... the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum attracted more than 34,500 visitors and conducted 4,050 special tours of its gallery facilities; music concerts played to audiences totaling 6,750 persons and theatre productions drew upwards of 6,000 patrons; spring and fall arts and crafts fairs attracted more than 10,000 shoppers to campus; and more than 25,000 spectators came to Stafford Arena to see the Plattsburgh State Cardinal hockey team in action.

Researcher Hathaway '75 to Visit as Distinguished Alumna

Elizabeth Kim Hathaway, senior researcher with the Cultural Identity Project of the Royal Commission on Aboriginal People in Ottawa, Ont., will be on campus from Thursday through Saturday (April 28-30) as a Distinguished Visiting Alumna.

A 1975 graduate of the college's program in child and family service, Hathaway's research interests focus on Aboriginal women and on issues related to education, health and healing, community development and addictions of Aboriginal peoples. While on campus, Hathaway will meet with classes in sociology, women's studies, counseling, Canadian studies, dine with members of the Native American Club and with students in the college's Educational Opportunity Program, give a presentation at a Women's Study Forum, and participate in E.O.P.'s 25th anniversary celebration.

The Distinguished Visiting Alumni program was inaugurated in 1990 during the college's 100th anniversary celebration, and has become an annual spring semester activity. It is planned and coordinated by a committee of faculty, staff and students in cooperation with the college's Office of Alumni Affairs.

Besides Ottawa, Hathaway, an

Akwesasne Mohawk, has served Native American people in St. Regis, Que. in varied capacities since graduating from Plattsburgh, including as a counselor and home-school coordinator for the Native American Education Program and program coordinator and clinical counselor for the St. Regis Mohawk Health Services. Since 1989, she has served as a community therapist, operating her own business in conjunction with the Akwesasne Community Peacemaking Process, and during 1991-92 she was a consultant on Aboriginal Student Needs Assessment for the Faculty of Law at the University of Ottawa.

Hathaway, who holds the master's in education from St. Lawrence University (1984), gives seminars on cultural identity, study skills, teen self-esteem, parenting skills, alcohol and drug prevention and similar topics, and she conducts workshops on team-building and cross-cultural awareness. She is the author of several articles and reports, including the recent Cultural Identity Project, drafted for the Royal Commission on Aboriginal Peoples.

Screen and Stage Star Anthony Zerbe in One-Man Show as e.e. cummings

Stage and screen actor Anthony Zerbe will perform his nationally acclaimed one-man production, "It's All Done with Mirrors ... the writings of e.e. cummings" on Monday (April 25) at 8 p.m. in the Hartman Theater, Myers Fine Arts building. Tickets, at $6 for the general public, $3 for faculty, staff and senior citizens, and $1 for Student Association members, are available at the Angell Center Desk.

Zerbe is recognized as one of the country's most accomplished and versatile actors, and has extensive credits in television, film and theater. He stars as Teaspoon Hunter in the guest star in numerous TV series, and his major films include Turning Point, Farewell My Lovely, Papillon, The Omega Man, Cool Hand Luke, Hear No Evil, See No Evil, and License to Kill.

Anthony Zerbe

He has appeared on stage on Broadway, Off Broadway, and at resident theaters in other major centers, as well as artistic residencies at the Stratford Festival Theater in Ontario, Canada.

The American poet "e.e. cummings" is known for his ingenious fracturing of punctuation and syntax, and he has been called "the poet of youth," "the poet of the importance of being rather than doing, the poet of spring" and "a poet whose fervent and passionate hatred of war flows endlessly through his work."

Dressed casually and using only a chair for a prop, Zerbe (according to a Los Angeles Times review) "delivers cummings' prose and poetry in a pell-mell of image, rhythm and idea."

Monday's performance is sponsored by the Theater Department, College Auxiliary Services, and the Student Association.

Students sign a bed sheet mounted to a wall in the lobby of the Angell College Center on Friday indicating their pledge to be alcohol and substance free over the past weekend in a campaign sponsored by Campus Life, the Greek Council, the Multicultural Affairs Committee, Advocates for Substance and Alcohol Prevention (ASAP) and the Snapple Beverage Company, which provided free samples of its products to signees along with lapel buttons with the slogan "I'm free this weekend." According to Dr. Jennifer Hogan of Psychological Services, who coordinates ASAP (a component of the college's FIPSE-funded alcohol and drug prevention program), 300 SUNY Plattsburgh students signed the sheet and a pledge card during the 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. sign-up period on Friday.

ODK to Induct 28 as Circle Members in Saturday Ceremony

The SUNY Plattsburgh Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa (ODK), the national leadership honor society, will induct 28 individuals to membership in ceremonies scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, April 23, at the John XXIII Newman Center.

This spring's inductees include three graduate students, 11 seniors, 10 juniors, two alumni, and one person who will be admitted to honoris cause membership. The event will bring the total number of members inducted to the Plattsburgh Circle of ODK, since it was granted a charter in 1981, to 871 students, faculty, staff, alumni and community leaders.

The Hon. Penelope Clute, district attorney for Clinton County, is the honoris cause inductee. Clute, who served as a member of the SUNY Plattsburgh College Council prior to her election as district attorney, will be the featured speaker at the ceremony.

The 1994 alumni inductees are both members of the college's administrative staff. They are Peter P. Luguri (B.A., 1973; M.A., 1979), assistant vice president for student affairs and director of athletics, and Melanie W. Wyand (B.A., 1980; M.A., 1983), assistant director of student activities.

Graduate students—John P. Kennehan, community counseling, Plattsburgh; Kevin M. McDonald, school counseling, Chateaugay; and Ronald W. Skwieralski, community/agency counseling, East Rochester.

Seniors—Julie M. Bampton, nursing, Peru; Kimberly Boston, special education, Brooklyn; Lori L. Plank Collazo, hearing and speech science, Plattsburgh; Todd Huber, anthropology, Gansevoort; Aimee Lim, psychology, Queensbury; Melissa Maki, psychology, Newfield; Robert P. Mark, psychology and philosophy, Saratoga Springs; and Susan Nicol, psychology, Merrick.

Juniors—Heather Bowman, environmental science, Dansville; Melissa Cardini, accounting, Gansevoort; Kimberly A. Cline, psychology, Morrisonville; Michael F. Debyah, accounting, North

Bangor; Kimberly A. Golden, psychology, Plattsburgh; Anita T. Wallace, secondard education English; Elijah Wells, mass communication, Brooklyn; Mark C. White, geography, Victor, and Kevin Wright, business management, North Pathogue.

Super Smart Systems Author Droge Lectures Here Twice Next Week

Dr. Edward F. Droge, Jr., author of the book SuperSmart Systems, will be on campus on Wednesday and Thursday (April 27-28) to discuss methods of improving reading speed, writing, math and memory.

Droge will give a public presentation titled "How to Reach Amazing Levels in Reading, Writing, Math and Memory" at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday in Yokum 205. He will speak to the campus community on "The Best Kept Secret about Teaching and Learning Writing" at 12:15 p.m. on Thursday in the Angell Center Conference Room.

The Harvard-educated Droge has written and lectured extensively on how to improve basic learning skills—at all age levels. He gives presentations both at educational institutions and for corporations in the private sector. His Supersmart Systems is subtitled 5 Simple, No-Nonsense Steps to Superiority in Reading Speed, Writing, Math and Memory. It has been hailed by reviewers as "... easy and fun read" and as a book "every student should explore."

In addition to his formal presentations, Droge will be available during the morning hours on Thursday for individual meetings with faculty and staff. Those interested should contact Dr. Kenneth Adams (ext. 3041) to schedule an appointment.

Droge's visit is co-sponsored by a Title II grant from the New York State Department of Education and College Auxiliary Services.

Three members of the SUNY Plattsburgh college community shared the spotlight at the 38th national biennial convention of Omicron Delta Kappa, the national leadership honor society, held recently in Lexington, Ky. Cheryl Hogle (l), assistant director of Campus Life, was elected to a two-year term as national vice president for extension, giving her a seat on the nine-member Executive Committee of the General Council of the society and responsibility for coordinating all of the society's expansion activities. Hogle served a six-year term previously as ODK's Province I faculty secretary. Jay Kesslen (c), a senior economics major, was elected to a one-year term as student director of Province I (which includes New England, New York and Pennsylvania). Dr. Eldridge W. Roark Jr. (r), vice president for student affairs at the college and two-term national president of the society, presided at the convention. Roark, who served previously as national vice president of ODK for six years and Province I faculty director for two, received a Meritorious Service Award from the society during the convention's closing banquet. ODK nationally has chartered circles on 226 college and university campuses in 37 states and boasts a membership of 164,000.

Assessment Series' Features Miller

The ongoing Assessment Discussion Series continues on Tuesday (April 26) at 12:15 p.m. in the Angell Center Cardinal Lounge with a presentation by Dr. Edward Miller, associate professor of chemistry, titled "Planning a Comprehensive Student Outcomes Assessment." Miller will describe the Chemistry Department's assessment plan, which includes a portfolio and an examination, how the plan was developed and how the department anticipates using the information.

The emphasis in the series is on discussion and intellectual stimulation. Participants' opinions and comments are welcome. Bring a lunch; beverages will be provided.

THIS WEEK ON CAMPUS is compiled by the Office of Campus Life and edited and published by the Office of College Relations and Development. Items to be listed in this bulletin must be received in the Office of Campus Life no later than noon on Thursday of the week prior to publication.

Ajello, '72 Grad, to Receive Distinguished Alumnus Award

Dr. Clayton A. Ajello, Deputy Director of JHPIEGO, program for international education in reproductive health at The Johns Hopkins University, will receive the Distinguished Alumnus Award during annual spring commencement exercises at the college on Saturday, May 14.

The award is presented by the college and the Board of Directors of the Plattsburgh Alumni Association. It honors graduates of the college for their achievements, their humanitarian efforts and/or their contributions to the college.

A 1972 graduate of the college, Ajello has been affiliated with JHPIEGO since 1985. He works to define, develop and disseminate its programming approaches in reproductive health in numerous countries in Asia, Europe and the Near East.

During his early years with JHPIEGO, he developed the program's overall policy to guide reproductive health programming activities of four international training centers and dozens of national training programs aimed at creating institutionalized national training capacity in reproductive health.

He planned and managed key operational research studies in the field, designed a framework for educational programs with senior government officials and top national medical and nursing leaders, developed and managed an annual budget exceeding $2 million, and raised supplemental funds to increase his office budget.

Earlier in his career, Ajello was a founder and senior associate for Epivat Associates, a firm that provided technical and policy consulting services internationally on issues of health and population. He also served as a research associate for The World Bank (in its Department of Health, Population and Nutrition), and worked as an associate in research at Yale University School of Medicine.

Ajello is a frequent reviewer for selected issues of Population Reports, a Johns Hopkins publication, is co-author of Technical and Managerial Guidelines for IUD Services (a book in press). He has published several journal articles on family planning, maternal mortality, and other health issues, and he has given several presentations at scholarly meetings and seminars.

Ajello earned a bachelor of arts degree in biology at SUNY Plattsburgh. He holds the Master of Public Health degree from Yale University School of Medicine — Epidemiology (1975) and the Doctor of Public Health degree from The Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health — International Health (1983). He is the recipient of the Edward Teller Achievement Award and the Yale School of Medicine Medical Research Award.

Presentation of Phi Eta Sigma Award, Honorary Degree Highlight Saturday's Spring Convocation

College President Horace A. Judson will preside at the 11th Annual Spring Academic Convocation scheduled for 11 a.m. on Saturday (April 30) in the Angell Center Warren Ballrooms.

The convocation event, created to celebrate student academic achievement, is expected to include the presentation of more than 200 awards to individuals representing nearly every major field of study at the college.

Also, in what has become a highlight of Convocation, the recipient of the Phi Eta Sigma Distinguished Faculty Award will be announced. Established in spring 1983, the national honor society for freshmen bestows this award annually on one member of the Plattsburgh teaching faculty.

As a special part of this year's program, author and film maker Elizabeth Fernea will receive the State University's honorary degree of Doctor of Letters. Fernea has devoted her career to promoting understanding between Americans and the peoples of the Middle East. Through her books, including Guests of the Sheik and A Street in Marrakech, and documentary films, such as Some Women of Marrakech and A Veiled Revolution, she has worked to convince generations of skeptical students of the warmth, wisdom, dignity and basic humanity of ordinary Middle Easterners.

Music at the Convocation will be provided by the SUNY Plattsburgh Brass Quintet under the direction of Dr. Marshall Onofrio, and pianist Jun Matsuo, a graduating senior, will give

The Spring Academic Convocation is open to the entire campus community.

'Rescue 911' Segment Airs Tuesday at 8 p.m.

"Rescue 911," a top-rated television show watched by millions of viewers worldwide, will air a segment filmed in January at SUNY Plattsburgh's Stafford Ice Arena at 8 p.m. on Tuesday (May 3) on CBS-affiliate WCAX-TV in Burlington.

The segment focuses on a hockey injury suffered by Elmira College's Michael McNamara in March of 1992 during the NCAA quarterfinal playoff series between Elmira and the Plattsburgh Cardinals. McNamara was checked at center ice, fell, striking his head, went into convulsions and stopped breathing. His pulse was revived by the quick action of athletic trainers and medical personnel on the scene, including SUNY Plattsburgh physician's assistant Anna Dangelo, who administered CPR, but he remained in a coma for more than four days before regaining consciousness.

Tuesday's 20-minute segment will include actual footage of the incident, a re-enactment of the life-saving actions of those who attended to McNamara, scenes of McNamara and his parents and friends at the CVPH Medical Center, and, reportedly, interviews with other college staff.

Garrow, Murnane to Co-chair Foundation's Business Drive

The Plattsburgh College Foundation will launch its 1994 Business Campaign on Friday (April 29) at an 8 a.m. breakfast meeting in the Angell Center Centennial Room.

This year's campaign will be led by co-chairpersons Patricia Garrow, associate vice president and branch manager of National Bank and Trust, and Patrick Murnane, president of Murnane Associates, Inc. They will challenge fellow volunteers to spearhead a fund-drive to generate $125,000 in contributions from North Country business over an eight-week period ending on June 24.

According to Garrow and Murnane, the 1994 goal represents a modest increase over the campaign's final tally this past year, when participating businesses contributed $119,100 in support of the Foundation's scholarship and grants-in-aid program. The campaign, they said, will be organized around 14 fellow volunteers who will captain teams consisting of five workers each.

Patricia Garrow

Patrick Murnane

Friday's kick-off meeting will begin with welcoming remarks by SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson. A discussion of campaign strategy will follow, and then the team captains will meet to select businesses to contact for donations.

Before the campaign comes to a close, an estimated 350 North Country business will be contacted personally by a volunteer solicitor and asked to pledge or make an outright gift to the Foundation cause. The chairpersons will convene report meetings of team captains twice in each of May and June.

Garrow's team captains are Robynn Albert, Marie Beemer, Anne Brandell, Gene Chaivin, Michael Kavanaugh, Deena McCullough, and Gerry Sherwin. Murnane will head a group of captains consisting of Craig Cashman, Elizabeth Kelly, Darcy Mousseau, Michael O'Connor, Brenda Tallman, Peter Whitbeck and James Wyand.

Novelist DeBrine-Mascle '87 Discusses Publishing Process

Deanna DeBrine-Mascle, a 1987 SUNY Plattsburgh graduate and newly published novelist, was on hand last Friday to discuss writing and publishing fiction as the featured guest of the "Weekly Reader" program held that afternoon in the Champlain Valley Hall Commons.

DeBrine-Mascle read from her novel, The Golden Century, which was published and released last month by Northwest Publishing. The novel is a historical romance chronicling the story of two settlers from 17th-Century Holland and their life in the New Netherlands.

DeBrine-Mascle also spoke about the process of getting published and offered advice to students considering a writing career.

"Write about what you know, and write the types of stories you like to read," said DeBrine-Mascle. She noted that her life-long interest in the Dutch heritage that she shares, as well as her love of historical romance novels, were the principal factors that motivated her to write The Golden Century.

DeBrine-Mascle, who earned her degree in journalism, has spent the last seven years as a reporter and editor-in-chief of the Webster Post, a weekly newspaper in Rochester. It is a job she enjoys, and she plans to continue a journalism career and does not want to rely on her new success as a novelist.

"When you look at the percentage of people who can actually make a good living just being a novelist, it's really quite small," she said. "Not everyone can be Stephen King or John Grisham." "Still," she added, "if you want to be a writer, be one," adding that it was "a fulfilling experience and a dream come true" to complete a novel and have it published.

DeBrine-Mascle's future plans include a move to Lexington, Kentucky with her husband, where she will continue to write. She has already written a sequel to The Golden Century, and is researching another historical romance to be set in medieval England.

Wechsler Talk on Friday

Robin Wechsler, a nationally prominent authority on environmental assessment and how it relates to the promotion, sale and use of alcohol, will give a public lecture on Friday (April 29) at 8 p.m. in the Angell College Center Warren Ballrooms.

Wechsler's topic will be "Sex, Lies & College Students: What's Alcohol Got to Do With It?" Her visit to campus is being sponsored by the college's Counseling & Psychological Resource Center.

DeBrine-Mascle discusses publishing.

Composer Beeson to Begin DVP Residency Here Next Week

American composer Jack Beeson, professor emeritus at Columbia University and a member of Columbia's Society of Senior Scholars, will be in residence at SUNY Plattsburgh from Tuesday through Friday, May 3-6, as a participant in the college's Distinguished Visiting Professor program.

While on campus, Beeson, who is known widely for his vocal compositions, especially operas, choral works and songs, will meet with students and faculty in classes and informally. He will also work with the College Chorale and Cardinal Singers, which will be rehearsing some of his compositions in preparation for this spring's Choral Festival concert. Highlights of the residency include:

- A public lecture/performance program titled "Composers and Librettists — Marriages of Convenience," to be held at 11 a.m. on Wednesday (May 4) in Hartman Theatre. Soprano Angela Brown, bass-baritone Kellum Smith and Pianist Susan Tusing will assist Beeson.

- "Music and Poetry" — a discussion of works by Beeson, other guest composers and Plattsburgh poets (see related story), with performances of contemporary art song scheduled for Friday (May 6) from 1:30 to 5 p.m. in Hartman Theatre (a reception will follow in the Angell Center Centennial Room).

- The Choral Festival concert at 8 p.m. on Friday in the Angell Center Warren Ballrooms, where the College Chorale and Cardinal Singers, with the Sinfonia, will perform works of Beeson and others under the direction of Richard Banks, lecturer in music.

Wednesday's lecture and performance program and Friday afternoon's Music and Poetry discussion and performance session are free and open to all. Tickets for Friday evening's Choral Concert are $1 for students and $7 for the public, and are available at the Angell Center information desk.

Beeson's best-known operas include Lizzie Borden, My Heart's in the Highlands, Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines, and Doctor Heidegger's Fountain of Youth, and they have been produced throughout the U.S. and in Germany and have been televised by NET and recorded by RCA. His awards include the Rome Prize, conferred by the American Academy in Rome, the Marc Blitzstein Award for Musical Theatre and the National Arts Club's gold medal.

A member of the American Academy and the Institute of Arts and Letters, and a director of ASCAP, Beeson was MacDowell Professor of Music at Columbia and served as chair of that university's music department. He holds Columbia's "Great Teacher's Award."

Some Bus Seats Left for Stratford, Ont. Visit

SUNY Plattsburgh's English Department is planning its fourth trip to Stratford, Ontario's Shakespeare Festival, and a few places on the bus remain open for those wishing to make the October 6-9 excursion.

This year's festival includes two plays by Shakespeare, Othello and Twelfth Night, Rostand's Cyrano de Bergerac, and two one-act plays by Moliere. Admission to all five performances plus transportation, tours post-performance discussion and bed & breakfast accommodations is being offered for $250.

Reservations are being handled first-come, first-served, so those interested should act soon by contacting Harriette Walker (ext. 2420) or Dr. John Shout (ext. 2424).

Jack Beeson

Beeson Visit Attracts Fellow Musicians

Distinguished Visiting Professor Jack Beeson's residency here next week will serve to attract several other guests to campus — composers, vocalists, instrumentalists and poets — to join with SUNY Plattsburgh music faculty in informal discussion and performances of their works. The headline event will be a 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. "Music and Poetry" session on Friday (May 6) in Hartman Theatre that is free and open to all.

The guest artists will be soprano Joellen Miano and composer-pianist David Heinick of SUNY Potsdam's Crane School of Music; soprano Virginia Browning and composer-pianist and Lake George Opera Music Director Joseph Illick; composer Peter Kelsh of New York City, composer Lawrence Kramer of Bard College; baritone-conductor David Neiweem of the University of Vermont; mezzo-soprano Fay Putnam of the University of Virginia; bass-baritone Kellum Smith of Saranac and New York City; SUNY Plattsburgh adjunct music faculty Angela Brown, soprano, and pianist Susan Tusing, and saxophonist, Daniel Gordon, instructor of music. Participating Plattsburgh poets will include Carol Frome, Alexis Levitin and Julie Robinson.

"Jack Beeson is very enthusiastic about this conference of composers and poets we have arranged in conjunction with his visit," commented Plattsburgh's Brown, who is coordinating events. "We hope that collaborations between and among participating composers and poets will come about as a result of their acquaintances, and we would like to see something grow out of this event — possibly an annual or biennial conference on composition or some other aspect of music."

Senior Exhibit a 'Dynamite Show of Talented, Young Artists'

"Senior Art Exhibition 1994," consisting of 103 works by nine graduating seniors, eight of whom are women, has opened in the Myers Fine Art Gallery. The works will be on display through May 14, and the exhibit is free and open to

"My Fish Swims in a Cellulite Lake," a work by Laurel Beaudet in oil, charcoal and wax measuring 60.5" x 73.5".

The exhibition includes sculpture, painting, printmaking, drawing and graphic design. "The senior show exhibits the wide variety of media and styles which are taught at SUNY Plattsburgh," says Edward Brohel, director of the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum. "More importantly," he adds "it exhibits the degree of accomplishment our students attain. It is a dynamite show of terrific and talented young artists."

Richard Mikkelson, chairperson of the art department, considers the works on display to be both visually and thematically exceptional. A number explore socio-political themes, such as gender issues and societal violence. In many the focus is on questions related to perception of self and inner harmony. Others still involve exploration of more formal ideas.

"These students have shared their visions and their concerns," says Mikkelson. "Their spirit and their energy have enriched this college, and the Art Department is proud to sponsor their exhibition." He points out that most art majors go on to graduate studies and careers in the visual arts, so that the works on display may be viewed as the foundation of artistic careers.

The program for the exhibition gives some indication of the depth of reflection behind the works on display. "I am focusing on personal issues of religion, sexuality and the role of women in a patriarchal society," says Laurel Beaudet, one of the students whose work is displayed. "The images in my paintings represent a gaze turned inward and the thoughts and emotions encountered."

Karen DiModugno, another student exhibitor, says, "The concepts within my prints and paintings are about an escape to nature and encompassing inner peace. I have tried to stir a thought, create an emotion, or open a mind."

The other students whose work is on display are Wendy Carey, Michelle Cooper, Stephanie Gerolimos, Christopher Hickman, Dohui Kang, Kimberly Mazur and Michele Molea.

The exhibition is sponsored in part by the Student Association through the Campus Arts Council.

ODK's Annual Student Recognition Event Set for Thursday

The 14th annual Student Recognition Awards Program will be held next Thursday (May 5) at 4 p.m. in the Angell Center Warren Ballrooms.

The event, sponsored by Omicron Delta Kappa, the national leadership honor society, is consistent with ODK's mission "to recognize and honor meritorious leadership and service in extracurricular activities" and to "promote outstanding scholarship and the development of general campus citizenship.

Several students will be honored for service to varied community organizations and agencies, and others will be recognized for service to campus programs and activities. Outstanding members of fraternities and sororities, residence hall groups and service and social action groups also will be honored.

Special achievement awards will be given to students who were nominated to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges; to leading members of ODK, including those to be recognized as the Circle's "outstanding sophomores;" and to several other students who have demonstrated high levels of leadership. Surprise awards include the announcement of the winners of several scholarships.

William Laundry, director of campus life, will preside at the program. ODK President Jill Shea will give the welcome and greetings will be presented by the Hon. Clyde Rabideau, mayor of the city of Plattsburgh; Carrie Harvey, president of the Student Association; and Dr. Eldridge W. Roark Jr., vice president for student affairs.

Remarks by Dr. Horace A. Judson, SUNY Plattsburgh's president, will conclude the program.

Alumni Directors Meet this Weekend

SUNY Plattsburgh's Alumni Association Board of Directors will hold its regular spring meeting on Saturday, April 30 in the Alumni Conference Room in Hawkins Hall, beginning at 9 a.m.

Included on the agenda will be discussion of an alumni awards program and a cooperative career mentoring program under consideration by the Career/Life Planning Office and the Alumni Association.

Dr. Lary Shaffer, professor of psychology, and Cheryl Hogle, associate director of campus life, will report on the Freshman Experience Program. Don Garrant, executive assistant to the president for college relations and development, and senior Greg Moran, will make a presentation on the Alumni Legislative Relations program.

Garrant, Mal Lavery, director of development and alumni affairs, and Carolee Smith, associate director, will discuss 1994 fund-raising projects.

Dr. Stuart J. Baum, SUNY Distinguished Teaching Professor of Chemistry and director of the science education mobile laboratory project funded in 1991 by the National Science Foundation, has been invited by the NSF to attend a national conference of "innovators in undergraduate education" to be held from May 31 to June 3 in Washington, D.C. The conference will bring together more than 250 NSF grant recipients who have been selected to attend "based on the outstanding potential for national adoption of the reforms in undergraduate education they have developed"... Three members of the Theatre Department participated in the "Usitt Conference and Stage Expo" held recently in Nashville. Barry Brown, instructional support assistant, gave a presentation titled "The Application of Mountaineering Equipment in Technical Production;" W. Kim Hartshorn, assistant professor, gave a presentation titled "Navigating the Internet — Adventures in Cyberspace: Electronic Communication Strategies for the Institute: A Discussion;" and Dr. Timothy Palcovic, associate professor, served as a panelist on a discussion of "Should We Use the Exit Standards Document as an Assessment Tool?" ... Three members of the School of Business and Economics' Department of Management and Marketing will present papers at the annual conference of the Administrative Sciences Association of Canada to be held June 25-28 in Halifax, Nova Scotia. The presenters and the titles of the papers they will give are Dr. Nancy Church, associate professor, "The County Fair Phenomenon: An Exploratory Study of Attitudes Toward a County Fair;" Dr. James Csipak, "The Dimensionality of Zaichkowsky's Personal Involvement Inventory Revisited: The Special Case of Air Travel, A Tourism Industry" and "Measurement of Perceived Service Quality in the Purchase of Airline Tickets;" and Dr. Lise Heroux, assistant professor, "Targeting the U.S. Bordertown Resident Market Segment for Canadian Tourism," and "Perceived Barriers by U.S. Bordertown Firms in Trading in Canada" ... Mary Dossin and Marcia Gottschall, writing specialists in the Claude Clark Learning Center and Special Services Project, respectively, gave a presentation titled "Side by Side" at the National Writing Centers Conference held recently in New Orleans. The presentation concerns the use of peer writing tutors in the developmental writing course (English 100). Some of its visual component is on display in the Clark Center ... Dr. William Kelting, associate professor of accounting, presented a paper titled "Leonard Spacek: One Who Made a Difference" at a meeting of the American Accounting Association held recently in Omaha, Neb. ... Dr. Thomas Rumney, professor in the Center for Earth and Environmental Science, presented a paper titled "Northern New York Specialty Crops: Hops in the Nineteenth Century" at the annual meetings of the Association of American Geographers held recently in San Francisco.

Booster Club Picnic Honors Student-Athletes

The SUNY Plattsburgh Cardinal Booster Club's 12th annual, year-end athletic recognition program and picnic will be held Wednesday (May 4) at the Valcour Conference Center.

The highlight of the event will be naming the recipients of the 1994 Booster Club male and female "Senior Achievement" and "Athlete of the Year" awards. The Senior Achievement Award is based on career athletic accomplishments and includes components for academic achievement, leadership, sportsmanship, and campus involvement.

The Athlete of the Year Award is based solely on the athletic accomplishments for the year it is given, with a clear focus on athletic accomplishments such as team leadership, statistical leadership, school records, team impact, and selection to athletic conference and/or All America Teams. Student-athletes from any class year are eligible for Athlete of the Year.

Students Give Papers at Natural History Meeting

Three students of environmental science presented papers recently in Albany at the New York State Natural History Conference.

Neil Gifford of Johnstown, a 1991 graduate of the environmental science program who is a candidate for the Master of Arts in Liberal Studies degree in natural science, summarized his master's thesis research in a paper titled "Habitat Selections by Birds: A Landscape Ecology Approach." Senior environmental science majors Brian Hall of Uncasville, Conn., and Marie Peterson of West Monroe, presented their paper titled "Fire-Structured Pine Communities in Clinton County, New York."

The students completed their research with Dr. Kenneth Adams, professor of ecology in the Center for Earth and Environmental Science. They were supported by grants from the New York State Biological Survey, the W.H. Miner Institute and College Auxiliary Services.

School Records Fall at Albany Invitational Meet

The Plattsburgh State women's outdoor track team finished seventh among 24 teams at last weekend's Albany Outdoor Track and Field Invitational, setting four school records in the meet. Tami Rollins led the team, breaking college records in the hammer throw (117' 8") and the discus (96' 10"). The Cardinals' 4X400 meter relay team of Jen Wiseman, Amy Nutt, Lori Czerw, and Karen Shawdestin placed third in a school record time of 4:15.25. Nutt also set a Plattsburgh

State record in the 400 meter hurdles, placing second in a time of 67.19.

The men's Outdoor Track and Field team finished ninth of 24 teams at the Albany Invitational. Captain Tom Ouellette placed second in the 3,000 meter steeplechase in a time of 9:41.0. Felix Moreno and Dan Derkowski place first and third, respectively, in the 400 meter run. Moreno's time of 49.66 easily outclassed a highly competitive field of 24 runners. Derkowski ran the event in 51.20.

Two Promoted to SUNY Distinguished Rank

Two members of the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty are among 21 professors University-wide who have been promoted to "Distinguished" faculty status — the highest academic rank in the 64-campus State University of New York system.

In action taken at their meeting on Friday (April 29), the SUNY's Board of Trustees conferred the title University Distinguished Teaching Professor on Dr. Naomi McCormick, professor of psychology, and that of Distinguished Service Professor on Dr. Taher Zandi, professor of psychology and director of the campus-based Northeastern New York Alzheimer's Disease Assistance Center (ADAC). Among SUNY's arts and science colleges, only Brockport and Fredonia also had faculty in each category elevated to the distinguished professor rank.

fessorship is awarded for "consistently superb teaching, mastery of teaching skills, scholarship and professional growth, extraordinary service to students and dedication to their intellectual growth, and adherence to the highest standards of academic excellence." The Distinguished Service Professorship honors individuals who have rendered extraordinary service not only to their own campus and the University, but also to the broader community, the state or the nation, by "sustained effort in the application of intellectual skills drawing from his or her research interests to issues of public concern."

"Excellence in teaching and a commitment to serving the community are central to the mission of this college," commented SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson. "Dr. McCormick and Dr. Zandi not only bring credit to themselves but also to

Chancellor's Awards Honor Four from Campus Community

Four members of the SUNY Plattsburgh campus community have been selected to receive Chancellor's Awards for Excellence in professional performance.

The office of interim SUNY Chancellor Joseph C. Burke has notified the college that awards have been approved for Drs. Thomas A. Rumney and Jeanne P. Ryan for excellence in teaching, for Susan R. Spissinger for excellence in professional service, and for Joseph G. Swinyer for excellence in librarianship. Rumney is professor of geography in the Center for Earth and Environmental Science, while Ryan is an assistant professor of psychology. Spissinger is assistant to the vice president for academic affairs and director of sponsored research and programs. Swinyer is head

Thomas A. Rumney

Rumney's nomination materials comment that "One of the key elements of (his) teaching style is his wealth of knowledge and expertise in his subject area," which allows for "classes that are well-designed and organized, but also flexible enough to incorporate the interests of individual students." He combines high expectations with "caring and quiet encouragement," and is known for "the many extra hours he spends working with students individually."

this college, the University system and to New York State."

A member of the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty since 1976, McCormick is also a licensed clinical psychologist and a Fellow in Rational-Emotive therapy. She is noted internationally as a leading scholar in human sexuality.

Her nomination narrative for the promotion comments: "Throughout her career, McCormick has shared what she knows enthusiastically and effectively while empowering students to think for themselves and believe in their own abilities." It adds: "Students regard her as warm, highly sensitive, and intellectually stimulating. In large and small classes alike, she is an energetic instructor, inviting students to challenge her and share ideas and experiences in an atmosphere of complete psychological safety."

McCormick received the 1987-88 Distinguished Faculty Award from the Plattsburgh chapter of Phi Eta Sigma, the Freshman Honor Society, in recognition of her "inspirational undergraduate teaching." She supervises the research and applied work of numerous undergraduate and graduate students, and many of her conference presentations and articles have been co-authored with students.

Letters from colleagues from the U.S. and abroad supporting McCormick's nomination refer to her as "one of the most distinguished researchers in the field of human sexuality at this time," and describe her research in terms such as "cutting edge," "outstanding," "excellent," consistent and prolific." She has an extensive publications record, including Sexual Salvation: Affirming Women's Sexual Rights and Pleasures, a book currently in production.

McCormick is the president of the Society for the Scientific Study of Sex, which has accorded her Fellow status in recognition of her contributions to sex research, and she serves as a member of the International Academy of Sex Research and on the editorial boards of three major journals. She is also does work on behalf of sufferers of Interstitial Cystitis, a painful bladder disease, and has received four separate awards from the Interstitial Cystitis Association in recognition of her contributions.

In supporting Zandi's nomination, a colleague wrote: "It is obvious that he is a leader in moving the direction of services [for dementia sufferers] of the state. It is also obvious that he has become a nationally renowned leader. However the true impact of his service [is most evident when one looks at] the effect his efforts have on the lives of patients with Alzheimer's disease, and their families. Time and time again, I have heard caregivers say they would not know what to do or where to turn if the ADAC was not here."

A member of the Plattsburgh faculty since 1982 and director of ADAC since its establishment in 1987, Zandi has been responsible for the center's funding, programming and operation from the start. Over the years he has authored grant proposals which have provided $1.8 million to fund the services ADAC offers to dementia sufferers and developmentally disabled adults in a six-county region. He was instrumental in establishing links between organizations which provide services to the elderly at the local level. The resulting consortium, consisting of approximately 85 different agencies, is now one of the most powerful agency advocacy groups in the state.

Zandi has provided leadership not only locally but also at the state, national and international levels. He is New York State's co-coordinator of dementia programs for developmentally disabled individuals, and he represents all state-funded ADACs on the Governor's Dementia Task Force. He serves as research consultant to two state and one national agencies and to the United Nations Gerontology Study. In 1992 he was invited by the U.N. to take part in an International Geriatric Program, and in that capacity he helped formulate a demographic data and diagnostic guideline model for Middle Eastern countries.

Zandi continues to teach undergraduate courses, and he involves students in his work and research. Upwards of 90 percent of his more than 80 papers and conference presentations list students as co-authors or co-presenters.

Author, Film maker Fernea Honored

Last Saturday's 11th annual Spring Convocation celebrated student academic accomplishments but also provided the opportunity to recognize scholarship and professional achievement on a SUNY-wide level, specifically, the presentation of the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters on behalf of the University to author and film maker Elizabeth Warnock Fernea (c), shown here with colleague Dr. Patricia Higgins, professor of anthropology and the person who spearheaded Fernea's nomination for the honor, and SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson. The author of the books Guests of the Sheik and A Street in Marrakech and documentary films, including Some Women of Marrakech and A Veiled Revolution, Fernea has devoted her career to promoting understanding between Americans and the peoples of the Middle East.

Kimmage Earns Phi Eta Sigma's Distinguished Faculty Award

Ann Kimmage, lecturer in English, was named the recipient of the 1994 Phi Eta Sigma Distinguished Faculty Award at Saturday's 11th annual Spring Academic Convocation program.

Ann Kimmage (c) returned to campus Monday to accept her Phi Eta Sigma Distinguished Faculty Award from society President Anita Morzillo along with the congratulations of Honors Program Director Dr. David Mowry.

Two firsts marked the occasion: Kimmage became the first adjunct faculty member selected to receive the award as well as the first to be absent for its presentation (until this year, it has been kept a secret from the recipient until its actual conferral). Since she had long ago made plans to be away for the weekend to observe Russian Easter at a monastery in Jordanville, near Herkimer, Kimmage was notified late last week that she had been chosen for the honor — in time for her to designate a stand-in (Dr. Richard Beach, director of the Center for the Study of Canada) and to prepare an acceptance response.

Created by the college's chapter of the national honor society for freshmen, the Phi Eta Sigma Award recognizes the faculty member who, in the past year, "has demonstrated teaching effectiveness in combination with a concern for freshmen and outstanding contributions to the success of freshmen." Students inducted to the society last fall and as recently as a week ago voted on the award.

An adjunct member of the faculty at the college for 16 years, Kimmage has taught and worked in several departments, beginning with English, teaching 100-level courses. She designed a new, four-credit course of English for foreign students; served as a writing skills specialist with the Special Services Project; initiated a beginning Russian language class in the Foreign Languages and Literature Department; and spent several summers teaching composition in the EOP program.

Kimmage developed a series of honors seminars titled, respectively, "The Communist Experience in Literature," "East European and Soviet Dissident Literature," and "Contemporary Autobiographical Literature," and during the current academic year she worked part-time in the college's Honors Center performing administrative tasks.

In 1990 she was accepted at the Hedgebrook Writer's Retreat to work on her memoir, An Un-American Childhood, which will be published next year by the University of Georgia Press, and she recently gave a presentation on autobiographical writing at a National Honors Programs Conference workshop.

Through her surrogate, Dr. Beach, Kimmage accepted the award "with deep gratitude," adding, "The response I received to sharing my knowledge and perceptions with my students has been far greater than I had ever anticipated." She noted that a commitment to family and culture prevented her from accepting the award in person, but pointed out that "(its) significance ... will always be with me."

"It will remind me," she wrote, "of the spiritual need we have to share, to learn, to probe and to question."

Lincoln U. Confers Honorary Degree on Judson

SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson returned to his alma mater last weekend and came back to campus the first part of this week with an addition to his academic credentials.

Judson, who graduated from Lincoln University in 1963 with the A.B. degree in chemistry, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Science from Lincoln on Sunday (May 1) during spring commencement exercises there. The degree citation, read by Lincoln President Niara Sudarkasa, reads:

"Regarded by all as a wise steward, a prudent and creative administrator, an accomplished scholar and an excellent teacher, you are one of the most admired leaders in higher education today. You have received many accolades for your tireless work in advancing the status of African Americans and all Americans in science and technology. As you have encouraged and motivated students, so too have you inspired your colleagues by your high principles, your quiet effectiveness, and your diligent and determined work on behalf of equity and excellence in all aspects of higher education. By your example, you have led the multitude.

"Horace A. Judson, for the honor you have brought to your alma mater by your achievements, by the authority vested in Lincoln University by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and with the consent of the Board of Trustees of the University, I hereby confer upon you the degree of Doctor of Science, honoris causa, with all the rights and privileges pertaining thereto."

Participants in Saturday's EOP 25th anniversary celebration and awards program included (l-r) Ronald Perry, Elizabeth Kim Hathaway '75, Julius Archibald, EOP Director Marlene Fields, Renee Lincoln, and Melva Hussein.

SUNY Plattsburgh seniors highlighted Saturday's (April 30) Educational Opportunity Program's 25th Anniversary Celebration event held in the Angell Center Centennial Room.

The awards, presented to students who will graduate next week with cumulative grade point averages of 3.0 or higher, were presented to Jamel Badrieh, an English major from Flushing; Kimberly Charbonneau, a special education major from Ballston Lake; James Dailey, a psychology major from Cobleskill; James Fernandez, a communication arts major from Brooklyn; Cynthia

Kevin Lang, a biology major from Norfolk; Renee Irma Lincoln, an elementary education major from Plattsburgh; and Lisa Quintavalle, a special education major from Madrid.

Two others were cited during the celebration. Dr. Julius Archibald, professor of computer science, received an award for Distinguished Professional Service to E.O.P. in recognition of many years of service as a Ronald Perry, a senior secondary education-mathematics major from Plattsburgh, was honored for Distinguished Student Service to E.O.P. Perry, who will graduate in December, has served the program for more than two years as a tutor-counselor and walk-in tutor and has taken part in program-related outside activities, including conferences and seminars.

Elizabeth Kim Hathaway, senior researcher with the Cultural Identity Project of the Royal Commission on Aboriginal People in Ottawa, Ont., was the featured speaker at the celebration. A 1975 graduate of the college's program in child and family service, Hathaway was on campus last week as a participant in the Distinguished Visiting Alumni program.

Alumni Board Meets to Welcome New Members; Hears About Plan for Alumni/Student Networking

The Alumni Association's Board of Directors met on campus on Saturday to discuss a range of items.

New members Eunice Holt Jones '71 and Doug McManus '89, both from the Washington, DC area, were welcomed to the board. Rolando Thorne '72 received a Certificate of Appreciation for his five years as president of the Board. Thorne's term ended at the end of 1993.

The Board approved moving to develop an alumni/student networking program. The program, to be developed initially as a pilot program in the metropolitan New York area, is a cooperative venture between the Career/Life Planning Office and the Alumni Office.

The goal of the program is to provide students and alumni who are interested in locating in the New York area with the names and phone numbers of alumni who have volunteered to answer questions about job opportunities, relocation information, etc. If the program is successful in New York, it will eventually be extended to other areas.

The Board also discussed a report presented by a committee comprised of alumni, faculty and students which had proposed several awards to be given by the Association. After much input from board members, the report was returned to the committee to be finalized before the fall board meeting.

Dr. Lary Shaffer and Cheryl Hogle, who coordinate the Freshman Experience Program, outlined the various aspects of that program. The board also heard reports on alumni fundraising and the Alumni Legislative Network.

Mal Lavery, executive director of the Alumni Association, reported on the progress of a number of items, including the new Alumni Directory, which will be published late this year, and the membership card program, also expected to be implemented this year.

The next meeting of the Board will be held in October during the annual Homecoming Weekend.

Next Week's Weekly Semester's Finale

Next Wednesday's (May 11) issue of Weekly will be the last of the spring semester.

News items or suggestions for stories are due in the Office of College Relations and Development by 4:30 p.m. on Friday, May 7. Weekly is scheduled for publication this summer tentatively on June 29 and July 27.

Twelve to be Honored at Retirement Reception on Thursday

Twelve members of the faculty and staff who have amassed nearly 250 years of combined service to SUNY Plattsburgh, and who retired during the past year or will soon retire, will be honored next Thursday (May 12) at a reception to be held at 3:30 p.m. in the Angell Center Cardinal Lounge.

The event is co-sponsored by the college's chapters of the Civil Service Employees Association, United University Professions and the Office of the President. The retirees who are eligible to be honored, their positions and dates of service are: Joanne Boulерice, calculations clerk 2, July 1968 to January 1994; Dr. Caridad P. Buncab, associate professor of nursing, September 1978 to January 1994; Beverly Gillette, keyboard specialist, October 1980 to January 1994; Gordon House, janitor, April 1979 to July 1993; Melissa Lawrence, clerk 1, May 1974 to October 1993; Dr. Miles W. Martin, professor, management and marketing, August 1982 to January 1994.

Also, Dr. Howard C. Miller, Jr., professor of English, September 1955 to June 1994; Thomas Pelletier, general mechanic, July 1969 to July 1993; Nancy Santo, keyboard specialist, January 1969 to January 1994; Kenneth Thayer, cleaner, April 1981 to June 1994; Barbara J. Soper, nurse 1, student health services, September 1966 to June 1994; and Wayne Westover, janitor, November 1972 to June 1993.

College Forensic Team Finishes 4th in Division in National Title Meet

The SUNY Plattsburgh public speaking team turned in an impressive performance at the 1994 National Forensic Championships held recently at Western Kentucky University.

In a field of 113 competing institutions, Plattsburgh finished 31st. Within its own division (the "President's Division"), the Plattsburgh team wound up fourth behind Oregon State, North Dakota State and Heidelberg University, respectively, in events contested by 42 colleges and universities. Harvard, Georgetown, Purdue, Penn State, West Point, West Virginia, Iowa State and Carson Newman were among the "name" schools that trailed Plattsburgh in the standings.

Senior communication major Meg Gossin was tops in individual honors for Plattsburgh, finishing 33rd in the nation (among 257 competitors) in Oral Interpretation of Prose and 31st (in a field of 121) in Rhetorical Criticism. Gossin, of Rochester, has accepted an invitation to serve as a graduate assistant forensic coach at Suffolk University in Boston in the coming academic year, where she will pursue the M.A. degree in communication.

Cardinal Track Standouts Ouellette and Wiseman Shatter Marks at SUNYAC Championship Meet

The Plattsburgh State men's and women's outdoor track and field teams both finished sixth in the seven-team field competing in last weekend's SUNYAC Outdoor Track and Field Championships held at SUNY Geneseo.

Tom Ouellette

In the men's events, Cardinal Captain Tom Ouellette placed first in the 3,000 meter steeplechase in a time of 9:17.88 to set a new Plattsburgh State record, SUNYAC meet record, and stadium record. His time in the 3,000 was also good enough to provisionally qualify for the upcoming NCAA Division III Championships. Ouellette also won the 5000 meter run in a personal best time of 15:22.70.

Jennifer Wiseman

"Tom dominated both fields," said Cardinal head coach Scott Slade. "He's just beginning to show what he is capable of doing at these distances," he added. Stephen Wefer was Plattsburgh's other top performer, finishing fourth in the 3,000 meter steeplechase in 10:05.2.

The Plattsburgh State women's 4X400 meter relay team of Jen Wiseman, Amy Nutt, Lori Czerw, and Karen Shawdestin set the school record in the event for the fifth time this season while placing second overall at the conference championships in 4:13.05. Wiseman, the SUNYAC champion and All-American in the indoor 800 meters, claimed the SUNYAC Championship in the outdoor 800 meter race in 2:20.57.

Czerw was Plattsburgh's other top runner, placing fifth in the 800 meters (2:26.88) and second in the 400 meters in a personal best time of 60.83.

SPOTLIGHT

Janice Beach and Anne Petro of the Special Services Project have reviewed Introductory Algebra, a new book to be published soon by Brown Publishing ... Dr. Francis Bethlen, professor of management and marketing in the School of Business and Economics, has been appointed as a member of the board of the Northern New York Chapter of the Fulbright Association ... "The Sustaining Landscape," an exhibition of photographs by Robin J. Brown, college photographer, will open at the Visitor's Interpretive Center at Paul Smith's on Friday, May 13 and continue through July 8. A 5 to 7 p.m. reception for Brown will mark Friday's opening.

Rumney is an associate of the Center for the Study of Canada, and he coordinates the minor in international studies. He was invited visiting professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in summer 1988, and he will serve the University of Vermont in a similar capacity this summer.

A member of the Plattsburgh faculty since 1984, Rumney has an impressive publishing record. He is co-author of the major reference work A Scholar's Guide to Geographical Writing, which has met with such success in the year since it was published that a second printing is under consideration. He is well known for his bibliographies, and has published 32 of these, and he sits on the editorial boards of two journals. He is the national chair of the Association of American Geographer's Specialty Group on Canadian Studies.

Jeanne Ryan

Ryan, who joined the faculty in 1988, teaches undergraduate courses, notably Introductory Biopsychology (as adjunct to the biology department), and coordinates and teaches courses for the M.A. in School Psychology. Since coming to Plattsburgh she has supervised more than 100 students doing research apprenticeships, independent studies, or teaching practicums. Since last year she has also been Associate Director of the Northeastern New York Alzheimer's Disease Assistance Center.

Supporting documents for Ryan's nomination observe that "one of the most notable aspects of her teaching style is her openness and her approachability," adding, "her personal touch is illustrated by the time she spends advising her students, encouraging them, and supporting their efforts." She is described as an "exemplary role model" and an "extraordinary mentor".

Ryan's students achieve highly; seven of her lab students have entered fully funded Ph.D. programs in neuroscience or related fields, while her students in the graduate program of school psychology have achieved an almost 100% employment rate upon graduation. She has been extremely active in grant writing, receiving grants totaling $24,000 in the past five years, with another $100,000 grant proposal pending at this stage.

Spissinger joined the staff in 1979 and has directed activities in sponsored research and programs since 1983. Her nomination materials comment that she excels "at being mindful of, and protecting the interests of the campus, especially as those interests pertain to the millions of increasingly significant external funds received by the campus each year."

As director of sponsored research and programs, Spissinger is responsible for promoting and developing grant related activity on campus, and for coordinating institutional proposal development. She is known for providing "invaluable assistance" in seeking out potential sources of funding and in helping faculty and staff to prepare applications for grants and other external funding.

Under Spissinger's guidance, grants and related revenues to SUNY Plattsburgh grew from $899,000 in 1982 to $2.4 million in 1992. The success rate on applications increased from 45.4 percent in 1983 to 75 percent during 1993. Over the same period there has been a marked diversification in the sources of funding; in 1983 the college had only 13 non-SUNY funding sources compared to the 49 which it currently has. Spissinger is currently completing a doctorate in education, majoring in educational administration, at the University of Vermont.

Joseph G. Swinyer

A member of the library staff for nearly 30 years, Swinyer assumed full-time responsibility for Special Collections under library reorganization in 1989. He has in fact been in charge of this section since 1982, and from 1978 to 1989 was also head of Government Documents. According to his nominator narrative, he has "extraordinary abilities in organization and interpretation of collections." Under his guidance the documents collection achieved first "excellent", and then "perfect" ratings from the GPO inspection teams.

When Swinyer assumed responsibility for Special Collections, interest in the section was confined to only a small number of local history enthusiasts. It is now recognized as a major resource in the North country, drawing patrons from far and wide, and it has become a focal point for research by students in departments campus wide.

Swinyer has addressed the vital issues of document conservation and disaster planning for the collection, and he has authored grant proposals which garnered nearly $20,000 for work on the organization of two of its major components. His expertise in organization and preservation of materials, in disaster planning, and in advising patrons on the use of materials, is recognized well beyond the bounds of this campus: he gives presentations frequently to professional colleagues and to groups interested in local history or genealogy. Special Collections also houses the college archives, and Swinyer is the first line of inquiry for any question relating to the history of the college. Swinyer is a Plattsburgh alumnus, holding the B.S. and M.S. in education from the college.

'Longevity Luncheon' Salutes Long-term Service to the College

Last Friday's "Longevity Luncheon" honored 53 faculty and staff who have been with SUNY Plattsburgh for at least 25 years and who, collectively, have given more than 1,500 years of service to the college. Following the luncheon, 33 among those saluted posed on the stairway linking the first and second floors of the Angell Center. They are (please refer to the numbers in the silhouette below): 1. William Krueger, 2. Edward Heuston, 3. James Johnson, 4. Ernest Coons, 5. Howard Miller, 6. J. Stallard Waterhouse, 7. Nicholas Mammanno, 8. Young Jang, 9. Martin Lubin, 10. Edwin Hamblet, 11. Nearly 1,000 Poised to Join the Ranks of Plattsburgh Alumni

Nearly 1,000 students will cross the stage during SUNY Plattsburgh's 104th commencement exercises to be held Saturday (May 14) at the college Field House.

The Class of 1994 includes 804 candidates for bachelor's and master's degrees and Certificates of Advanced Study and another 175 who will receive their degrees in August. A full house is expected for the event, which begins at 11 a.m. President Horace A.

Judson will preside at his first SUNY Plattsburgh commencement.

The processional will feature Gabrielli Giovanni's "Canzon duodecimi toni," performed by the College Brass Ensemble, Dr. Marshall Onofrio, assistant professor of music, directing, and Jean Joseph Mouret's "Rondeau," featuring Dr. Susan Tusing, adjunct instructor in music, at the organ. The Rev. Richard H. Hibbert, pastor of the Plattsburgh

United Methodist Church, will give the invocation.

The Cardinal Singers, directed by Richard L. Banks, will sing "The National Anthem" and the college's "Alma Mater." President Judson will recognize faculty and staff who have been honored recently with promotion to the rank of SUNY Distinguished Professor and those named as recipients of SUNY Chancellor's

tion 33 years ago, and as an honorary wing commander since 1971, Lewis has given countless hours working to effect mutual respect and support between the military base and the surrounding community. Lewis was instrumental in the establishment of the Clinton County Area Development Corporation and its objectives to form a county industrial park and bring new businesses to this area — efforts that have resulted in millions of dollars of capital investments and jobs for hundreds of

Two New Honor Societies Debut at Spring Semester's End

One new honor society made its debut on campus recently and another will receive its charter on Friday (May 13).

On April 28, 32 students were inducted as charter members of the Alpha Delta Iota chapter of Sigma Tau Delta, the international honor society in English. According to the chapter sponsor, Dr. Janet Groth, associate professor of English, students must have a 3.0 grade point average to qualify for membership.

At 10 a.m. on Friday in the Mowry Conference Room in Redcay Hall, the School of Business and Economics will host the installation ceremony for charter members of Sigma Beta Delta, the honor society in business. Formed within the last few weeks in association with the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business, the society honors faculty and students who demonstrate the qualities of leadership, scholarship and service. James H. Bearden, national president of Sigma Beta Delta and director of the Center for Leadership Development at East Carolina University, will participate in the chartering ceremony and give brief remarks.

Also, Steven Fretwell, Shawn Fuschetto, Jennifer Gallo, Samy Habib, Heather Haskins, Althea Kay, Richard Kendrick, Michael Marois, James Maskell, Kay

McEvoy, Jeannine McTigue, Stephanie Ottavan, Amy Phelan, Michael Reese, Cherie Snyder, Marc Spicer, Heather Thompson and Alexandra vonHockman.

Four students and five faculty will become charter members of Sigma Beta Delta on Friday. The student inductees are Michael C. Brooks, Carol A. Glaub, Lynn A. Johnson and Tammy R. Peets; those from the faculty include Dr. Prem Gandhi, dean of the School of Business and Economics, Raymond M. Guydosh, associate professor of management and marketing, Dr. Horace A. Judson, president of the college, Dr. Timothy J. McGrath, associate professor of management and marketing, and Dr. Kevin R. O'Neill, assistant professor of management and marketing.

Awards for Excellence in Teaching, Professional Service and Librarianship.

Dr. Naomi McCormick, professor of psychology, will be recognized on the basis of her promotion, by vote of the University's Board of Trustees, to the rank of SUNY Distinguished Teaching Professor, while Dr. Taher Zandi, professor of psychology and director of the campus-based Alzheimer's Disease Assistance Center will be honored for achieving the rank of SUNY Distinguished Service Professor. President Judson will present medallions to Chancellor's Award recipients Dr. Thomas A. Rumney, professor in the Center for Earth and Environmental Science (teaching); Dr. Jeanne P. Ryan, assistant professor of psychology (teaching); Susan R. Spissinger, assistant vice president for academic affairs and director of sponsored research and programs (professional service); and Joseph G. Swinyer, head of special collections, Feinberg Library (librarianship).

The SUNY Plattsburgh Distinguished Service Award, the highest award the college bestows, will be presented by College Council Chairperson Robert M.

Garrow to prominent Plattsburgh attorney and civic leader Clyde A. Lewis and to Gordie Little, news director for WIRY Radio in Plattsburgh (see related story on page 1). The college will confer its Distinguished Alumnus Award upon Dr.

mane Letters). Howarth and Proctor will receive the honor from SUNY Board of Trustees Member Roderick H. G. Chu of New York City, managing partner, government practice, for Anderson Consulting who served as New York State's tax commissioner from 1983-88.

Dr. E. Thomas Moran, vice president for academic affairs, will present the candidates for degrees, and President Judson will confer them. Council Chairperson Garrow and Vice Chairperson Wayne H. Byrne will award the diplomas.

The benediction will be given by Rabbi Carla Freedman of Temple Beth Israel in Plattsburgh. The ceremony will conclude with Reginald de Koven's "Recessional," performed by the College Brass Ensemble and Organ.

A reception hosted by President Judson, the Alumni Association and the Student Association will be held immediately following the ceremony on the Field House grounds (or, in the event of rain, in the ice arena).

The Commencement ceremony is expected to last about two hours.

Canadian Studies Earns $61,833 in New Support from USDE

SUNY Plattsburgh and its Center for the Study of Canada will share in a three-year grant from the U.S. Department of Education in support of the Center's activities as a member of the Northeast National Consortium on Canada along with the University of Vermont and the University of Maine at Orono.

First-year funding of $185,000 to the consortium becomes effective August 15 of this year and continues through August 15 of 1995, and Plattsburgh's share totals $61,833. According to Dr. Jeanne Kissner, associate director of the Center and the Center for International Education, and co-director of the project, USDE funding traditionally increases in the second and third years of the contract.

"This is a meaningful achievement for the consortium and our campus," commented Kissner, "especially since USDE approved only two grant proposals during this cycle — ours and one involving Washington State University and the University of Washington. Proposals submitted by some well-known and prestigious institutions — Duke, for example — weren't successful."

Kissner said the funds will be used, independent of the other two members of the consortium, for programs and activities in the coming academic year that serve to fulfill the general mission of the Center; that is, "to make Canada better known and understood in the United States." They will support faculty travel, guest speakers, library acquisitions, cultural events and conferences.

Specifically, Kissner noted, planning is under way already for Canada Day at SUNY Plattsburgh in the fall and Festival Quebec next spring, and Center staff are working with the college's Art Museum to sponsor a major exhibition of art by native peoples of Canada next fall. The grant will also allow the Center to sustain a Quebec focus initiated with the establishment of Canadian studies at the college more than 25 years ago, and to support student travel, study abroad and internships in Canada.

"Not only our campus but also the North Country community will benefit from many of these activities, because we do our best to open them up to all at no cost or minimal, break-even charges," Kissner said. "Essentially, we feel the USDE award is a reflection on the quality of the college's Canadian studies program and the work of its faculty and staff."

Dr. Richard Beach, director of both the Center for the Study of Canada and the Center for International Education, is co-director of the project.

Student Wins Harvard-based Fellowship for Summer Study

Marcy Collyer has a way of volunteering.

This past semester, her second at SUNY Plattsburgh, she offered her assistance to environmental science Professor Dr.

The Harvard-based Center's fellowships are competitive and are awarded to juniors or seniors (Collyer, a transfer student, is a junior) for research "in an area of science or policy studies which bears on improving understanding of factors which affect the global environment." Undergraduates from 11 northeastern states are eligible for the awards.

"This stipend will enable me to support myself while allowing me to take part in an invaluable research experience," says Collyer. "I'm excited about the opportunity and honored to receive the fellowship."

Adams is equally elated, but he's not surprised by Collyer's success. "I've been very impressed by the quality of Marcy's work," he says. "She is mature and highly motivated."

A review of Collyer's background and experiences clearly supports Adams' assessment.

Nine years ago, fresh out of high school in her native Florida, Collyer was well-qualified academically for college, but instead she enlisted in the U.S. Navy. After five years in the military, where she worked mostly overseas as a mechanical calibration technician, Collyer settled in the Hampton, Va. area where she attended Thomas Nelson Community College, graduating in 1992 with an associates degree in physical and natural science (and with a 3.7 G.P.A.). She spent the next year as a lab technician at Hampton Roads Sanitation District in Virginia Beach, where her primary duties involved analysis of treatment plant and industrial waste samples for biological and chemical oxygen demand.

Collyer enjoyed her work at Hampton Roads, but she wanted to become more involved in field programs and studies. So, she started shopping around for additional education in environmental science, choosing eventually to apply to SUNY Plattsburgh.

"While investigating college and university environmental science programs, I found Plattsburgh to offer more in terms

North Country workers. He serves as counsel to the Clinton County Industrial Development Agency and, for nearly 30 years, as attorney for the Town of Plattsburgh.

Few in the community have demonstrated support for SUNY Plattsburgh on a level equal to Mr. Lewis. An original member of the Board of Directors of the Plattsburgh College Foundation, Lewis helped to launch the Foundation's Annual Giving Program in 1970. He has twice served three-year terms on the Foundation's Board of Directors, and he is past chairperson of its Planned Giving Committee. In 1991 he received the college's Presidential Award of Honor, and that same year he was named an Honorary Director of the College Foundation by unanimous vote of its Board of Directors.

A native of Moira, Mr. Little began his radio career in Plattsburgh in the 1950s, a short while after receiving his degree with the first graduating class from an institution known today as the State University of New York at Stony Brook. It is part of the folklore of the region that Gordie Little was dismissed from his first position in the broadcasting field, told by his employer, a seasoned station owner, that "You will never be a radio man."

Little joined WIRY Radio in Plattsburgh in 1961, and he has remained there ever since. It was during this early period that WIRY adopted a pro-active policy of getting behind local, regional and national projects and causes, and Little became their willing and skillful champion.

According to the DSA nomination narrative, "Successful campaigns in support of the March of Dimes opened the door for others, and for the past 30 years, with Gordie Little leading the way, WIRY has been in the forefront in promoting virtually every worthwhile

Little is being recognized also for his professional skills: "He is adept at gathering, writing and interpreting the news, and accurate and fair in reporting it. Indeed, when handling controversial or sensitive news stories, Gordie Little always goes the extra mile to check on facts and to permit sources to clarify matters and to respond to statements and reports. At the same time, Mr. Little is unabashedly supportive of groups, organizations, businesses, agencies and public and private institutions that contribute to the community in any way, and he frequently takes the initiative to file news stories that, for their own sake, are positive."

of academic depth and field research opportunities," says Collyer. "The environmental science major here has an excellent reputation, and over the past year I've been discovering why."

From July 1 through August, Collyer will work at a field station established by Adams more than two years ago near the Adirondack Park Interpretive Center at Paul Smiths. The wetland and forested bog sites there, he says, are ideal for evaluating gas emission under a variety of environmental conditions.

"We have complete support from the Adirondack Park Agency for our activities," says Adams. He pointed out that the APA's Adirondack Park Institute, a non-profit friends groups for the Visitor Centers at Paul Smiths and Newcomb, has provided financial support for his research project in each of the past two years.

Lewis, Little Latest on Long List of Luminaries Selected to Receive College's DSA Recognition

Plattsburgh attorney Clyde A. Lewis and WIRY Radio news director Gordie Little join an impressive list of local, state and federal political figures, educators and college and community leaders selected to receive the college's Distinguished Service Award since its creation in 1965.

The award has been presented 33 times over the past 29 years (not counting 1994) although not in consecutive years (it was not given in 1973, 1976, 1981, 1984, 1986, 1988, or from 1990 through 1992). The first recipient was the late Robert F. Kennedy, then U.S. Senator from New York. The DSA has been conferred often to more than one person in a given year, but never to more than three on any one occasion.

Besides Sen. Kennedy, SUNY Plattsburgh DSA recipients from the political scene include U.S. Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan, former Vermont Governor Madeleine Kunin, Congresswoman Geraldine Ferraro, Canadian Minister of External Affairs Dr. Kenneth Burbridge, former White House Press Secretary Roger W. Tubby, and New York State Senator Ronald B. Stafford of Plattsburgh.

Regional business and civic leaders and supporters of the college who have received the honor include the late James A. Fitzpatrick, who was chairman of the New York State Power Authority at the time, past Plattsburgh College Foundation Presidents Fred P. Merrihew, E. Glenn Giltz and Curtis E. Shipman, and Sally Kent Gorton and George and Nina Winkel, leading benefactors of the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum.

Noted educators who have received the DSA include former SUNY Chancellors Ernest L. Boyer and Clifton R. Wharton, Dr. Samuel D. Proctor (who returns to campus this weekend to receive an honorary degree), former lieutenant governor, comptroller and SUNY Board of Trustees Chairman Frank C. Moore, and Dr. Herman Cooper, former executive dean for teacher education for SUNY.

Several members of the college family have received the Distinguished Service Award, and they include the late Dr. Edward E. Redcay, Dr. Earl Harlan and former President George W. Angell and Professor Emeritus Hans E. Hirsch, Vice President for Student Affairs Emeritus Willard C. Flynt, Judith L. Duken, a 1959 Plattsburgh graduate who serves currently as a member of the SUNY Board of Trustees, the Rev. Daniel T. Keefe, former pastor of John XXIII College-Community Parish, and, last year, then President Charles and Nancy Warren.

Gossin, Campisi Win Prized Graduate School Scholarships

Meg Gossin and Peter Campisi, both graduating communication majors and both well known for their outstanding performances on the Plattsburgh forensic team, have each been awarded fully supporting graduate scholarships, each valued at upward of $18,000, to pursue their studies in communications.

Gossin will study for the master's in public relations at Suffolk University in Boston, where she has been awarded a forensic scholarship (her commitment involves being assistant coach for the Suffolk forensics team). Campisi will study for the master's in public relations and advertising at the University of Wisconsin, Stevens Point, where he has been awarded a teaching assistantship.

Dr. Albert Montanaro, chair of the communications department and coach of the forensic team says, "I am sure they will both excel in graduate school." Both will be studying with former students of Montanaro, and former presidents of the Plattsburgh forensics union: Gossin will work with Dr. Ed Harris, 74, currently chair of the communications department at Suffolk University, while Campisi will work with Dr. Chris Saddler, 78.

Gossin is the first out-of-state recipient of the Suffolk forensic scholarship. She says that her performance at forensic tournaments was a major factor in being chosen to receive the scholarship (the Plattsburgh team competes in the same division as the Suffolk University team). Gossin has been on the Plattsburgh forensics team for her four years at Plattsburgh, and over that period has brought home upwards of 80 trophies. Last fall she won both the Plattsburgh and Northeastern forensics championships. She has also achieved very highly in National championships (in particular placing 13th for Persuasive Speaking in the 1993 championships). Her interest in forensics started in her last two years of high school.

"I chose Plattsburgh from the possible SUNY colleges for my undergraduate studies because it had a forensic team," says Gossin. "Public speaking has made my confidence level soar. I would recommend it to every student!"

Meg Gossin

Peter Campisi

As a long term career goal, Gossin would like to link her public relations skills to her long-time fascination with the communications of whales and dolphins. With resources such as the Woods Hall marine biology institute, the Boston area provides rich opportunity for her to begin to establish such a link.

Campisi is a transfer student from Suffolk County Community College, LI, where he was again a member of the forensic team. He too has achieved very highly in competitions. His route to Plattsburgh was influenced by the renown of the Plattsburgh team; he had noted its level of performance at competitions in which he participated, and his coach at Suffolk Community College encouraged him to pursue his work at Plattsburgh.

Campisi is also well known for his broadcasting on WPLT, and was named Best Executive Board Member (as sports director) at last Thursday's Omicron Delta Kappa-sponsored Student Recognition Program. His long-term career goals are to do sports or entertainment related PR work.

Both Campisi and Gossin have the highest praise for the coaches of the Plattsburgh forensics team. (In addition to Dr. Albert Montanaro, associate professor of communication Dr. Justin Gustainus and lecturer in communications and educational studies Nora Montanaro work with the team.) Both pay tribute to Montanaro for the assistance he has given them in finding direction in their careers.

Gossin comments "I have the highest respect for Al Montanaro ... he is the reason why I have done so well. I look at the photos posted of his past graduates, and hope that one day my photo will be there, and that I will be one the past students he speaks about to current undergraduates."

Campisi adds: "I often wonder where I would be now were it not for my forensics coaches, both here and at Suffolk County College."

As a final footnote, both Campisi and Gossin chose poems written by Elliot Richman, adjunct in the communications department, for their poetry entry in the oral interpretation section of the most recent national tournament. Gossin is the outgoing president of the Plattsburgh forensics union, while Campisi is stepping down as vice president.

Council Meets Saturday

The SUNY Plattsburgh College Council will hold its annual pre-commencement meeting at 9 a.m. on Saturday, May 14 in the Sibley Hall Cafetorium.

The agenda consists of routine reports from the Council chairperson, the president of the college, the president of the Student Association, the presiding officer of the faculty, and Council liaisons to varied programs and offices.

CORRECTION

Susan R. Spissinger, recipient of the SUNY Chancellor's Award for excellence in professional service, is assistant vice president for academic affairs, not as reported in last week's Weekly.

110 to Received Degrees with Honors at Commencement

One-hundred ten degree candidates will receive their degrees with honors during commencement exercises scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday in the college Field House.

The 1994 printed program lists the names of eight students who will receive degrees Summa Cum Laude (with highest honors, or grade point average between 3.9 and 4.0); 39 who will graduate Magna Cum Laude (with high honors, with GPAs in the range of 3.7 to 3.89); and 71 who have earned Cum Laude (with honors, having GPAs between 3.4 and 3.69) distinction. The honors graduates, their majors and hometowns, are:

Record-High Four Students Named ODK's Top Sophs of '94

They are sociology/criminology major Raymond Ballou, psychology major Robin Kent, speech and hearing handicapped choir. He is an active participant in Circle K international and the Newman Association, and serves as the secretary of the Historical Society.

Kent, from Alexandria Bay, is treasurer of the Honors Student Association, a delegate to the National Collegiate Honors

Council, a Presidential Scholar, and a member of Phi Eta Sigma, the freshman honor society. She is an EOP tutor and worked for the '93 science van project. A member of the cross country, track and field teams, Kent was on the SUNYAC commissioner's list for fall '93 and obtained PEARS all-academic honorable mention. She served Legge, of Warwick, is also an honors program student, a presidential scholar, and a member of Phi Eta Sigma. She has been awarded two Redcay Honors Fellowship grants, and the SSP Sohan Sign Award Scholarship. A member of the indoor and outdoor track teams, she was on the SUNYAC commissioner's list, is a member of the SUNYAC all-academic team, and obtained honorable mention for the PEARS all-academic team. Legge is an SSP tutor, and participated in this year's Alternative Spring Break Program. Yaeger, of hometown Spencerport, is the president of El Pueblo and a member of the college Multicultural Affairs Committee. She is also an active member of both AKEBA and Women of Ethnicity. For the past academic year she was a resident assistant and a mentor and teaching assistant for the Freshman Experience program. For the past two years Yaeger has been a member of both the swim and rugby teams. She was a participant in the Alternative Spring Break Program. Yaeger will study in England next fall and in Chile during the spring of 1995.

education major Jennifer Legge, and biology major Alicia Yaeger. The four received the honor at last Thursday's 14th annual Student Recognition Program sponsored by the SUNY Plattsburgh circle of ODK, the national leadership honor society. All four have GPA's of 3.5 or higher.

Cheryl Hogle, associate director of Campus Life and secretary of ODK comments, "When we looked at these four nominations, we felt that they were all such strong candidates that we could not eliminate any of them. Consequently, we voted to waive the rule that a maximum of three awards be given."

Ballou, from South Royalton, Vt., is a member of the service fraternity Alpha Phi Omega. He does volunteer work for the American cancer society, the Plattsburgh Public Library, the Association of Retarded Children, YMCA, and Clinton County Mental health. He also worked for campus cleanup, and was a participant in the Alternative Spring Break program. Ballou is secretary of the Honors Student Association and a delegate to the National Collegiate Honors Council. He is a member of the Student Association Finance Board. Ballou belongs to both the symphonic band and the saxophone as a scholar weekend host and an admissions tour guide. Kent will study in Australia during the 1994-95 academic year.

Museum Director Ed Brohel Elected Senate Chair; Believed to be 1st Staff Member to Hold That Post

Edward Brohel, director of the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum, has been elected as chairperson of the 1994-95 Faculty Senate in Senate elections held last week. It is believed that Brohel is the first from the (non-teaching) professional staff to hold that Senate office.

Dr. John Myers, professor of history, was re-elected as Senate vice chairperson. Dr. Cathleen Whittier, associate professor in the Center for Educational Studies and Services, will serve the next Senate as secretary, and Patricia Hoffman, lecturer and program writing assistant in the School of Business and Economics, and Gordon Muir, senior assistant librarian, will serve as senators at large.

Elected or re-elected to serve as Senate committee chairpersons during 1994-95 (and their posts) were:

Edward Brohel

Leith Bardon, associate professor in the Department of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreational Sports, College Services; Dr. George Flynn, professor of Physics, Academic Policies; Dr. Mohamed Gaber, associate professor of accounting, Resources and Planning; Dr. Craig Sample, associate professor in the Department of Foreign Languages and Literature, Curriculum and Programs; Dr. William Teter, associate professor of computer science, General Education; and Dr. Daniel Vogt, associate professor of biology, Faculty Affairs.

Wiseman and Pereira Garner 1994 Athlete of the Year Award

Junior Jennifer Wiseman (soccer & track) and senior Lenny Pereira (ice hockey) were named Athlete's of the Year at last Wednesday's Cardinal Booster Club-sponsored end-of-the-year picnic and awards ceremony at the Valcour Educational Conference Center Boathouse. At the same event, seniors Rachael Wilcox (soccer) and Chris Fess (ice hockey) received the college's first Senior Achievement Awards at the May 4, 1994 event held at the Valcour Conference Center.

tributions this year as a member of the indoor and outdoor track and field teams. She became Plattsburgh's fifth female track All-American with a fifth place finish in the 800 meter run at the 1994 NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships.

Athletes of the Year and Senior Achievement Award recipients are selected by a committee representing the Cardinal Booster Club, the Physical Education, Athletic and Recreational Sports Department, and the Student Association. The Athlete of the Year Award is based solely on the athletic accomplishments for the year it is given, with a clear focus on athletic accomplishments, and student-athletes from any class year are eligible to receive it. The Senior Achievement Award is based on career athletic accomplishments.

Wiseman, a starting midfielder for the 1993 women soccer Cardinals and captain-elect of the 1994 team, contributed five points to a squad that set school records for wins (14), goals (57), and shut-outs (12). Her team advanced to the finals of the NYSWCAA and ECAC play-offs in their most successful season ever.

A junior majoring in Business Management, Wiseman made her greatest contributions this year as a member of the indoor and outdoor track and field teams. She became Plattsburgh's fifth female track All-American with a fifth place finish in the 800 meter run at the 1994 NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships.

Pereira, co-captain of the 1993/94 Cardinal hockey team, led the team in scoring for the third straight season with 30 goals and 24 assists for 54 points. Playing in all 30 games, Pereira registered at least a point in 21 of 30 games, 16 multiple point games, and in six games he scored four or more points. He also led this year's team with 10 power play goals, 2 short handed goals, and 3 hat tricks. Pereira surpassed the 100 career goal mark this season, finishing his career with 105 goals, third on the Cardinals' all-time list.

For the second year in a row, Pereira was named a first team All-American. He was also named to the SUNYAC All-Tournament team and first Team All-SUNYAC for leading his team to the finals of the SUNYAC Championship.

Since Wilcox's arrival as a freshman in 1990, the Plattsburgh women's soccer team has registered four straight winning seasons, four straight appearances in the NYSWCAA tournament, while compiling a 44-25-9 record. At the conclusion of this past season, Wilcox was tied for the team lead in goals with nine and led the team with four game-winning goals. Her point total of 20 points nearly doubled her output of her first three years. She earned team awards as the Most Valuable Offensive Player and the Coaches Award for athletic sportsmanship. A fierce competitor, Wilcox always played with class and never received a red or yellow card during her career.

Wilcox's performance in the classroom has been equally impressive as her play on the field. A Health and Recreation Services major, she received PEARS All-Academic Team honors in 1991, 1992, and 1993, and this past season she carried a G.P.A. of 3.575, earning her dean's list and SUNYAC All-Academic Team honors. Wilcox has been heavily involved in campus and local activities during her four years at Plattsburgh, serving a two-year term as a member of the Intercollegiate Athletic Board. She has worked with local youth soccer players while completing a soccer internship at the Plattsburgh State Soccer Camp and she served as day program supervisor for the City of Plattsburgh Recreation Department.

Fess, a two year captain for the Cardinal Ice Hockey team, is a speech communication major at Plattsburgh State. Since his arrival in 1990, the Cardinals have compiled a 95-24-7 record, winning an NCAA Championship, an ECAC Championship, and two SUNYAC Championships along the way. For his career, Fess averaged 1.5 points per game, finishing with 87 goals and 92 assists for 179 points.

A highly recognizable figure around campus and in the city of Plattsburgh, Fess has been an influential role model for the youth of the community. In more than 30 motivational speaking engagements in local schools, Fess served the area's youth by showing them the importance of school, remaining drug and alcohol free, and family orientation. His community involvement also included organizing clinics for Plattsburgh Youth Hockey, volunteer work for the Plattsburgh Community Beautification Project, and he fulfilled speaking engagements at the Lions Club, Rotary A.M., and the Special Olympics Awards Banquet.

$1 Million-plus Added to College's Budget for Fiscal '94-95 for Lake Champlain Institute, Other Projects and Initiatives

Additional funding totaling more than $1 million is included in the 1994-95 budget for SUNY Plattsburgh, approved by the New York State Legislature earlier this month. The added appropriation will be used for projects, programs and initiatives designed to enhance the educational, research and public service missions of the college.

SUNY Plattsburgh officials report that the special allocations, secured through the efforts of Sen. Ronald B. Stafford (R-Plattsburgh), will fund establishment of a Lake Champlain Research Institute (LCRI), support a campus technology initiative and allow the college to offer a summer institute for New York State high school students during 1995. More than two-thirds of the special allocations total, or $750,000, will fund the LCRI; $250,000 is marked for the technology initiative; and $75,000 will be appropriated for next summer's program for high school students.

"This is wonderful news for SUNY Plattsburgh, particularly for our students and faculty," commented Dr. Horace A. Judson, president of the college. "We are truly grateful to Senator Stafford. He listened attentively to our proposals, saw their value, and worked hard for their approval.

"The Lake Champlain Research Institute especially is a significant development," he said. "It has implications not only for residents of our region but also for citizens throughout New York who share our concern for Lake Champlain and the quality of its waters. The technology initiatives will strengthen our academic programs and services, and the summer institute will make outstanding college-level instruction available to bright and highly motivated high school students from around the state."

Funding for the LCRI will be expended for equipment and for improvement and expansion of about 5,000 square feet of laboratory space in Hudson Hall. It will allow the college to purchase and outfit a 32-foot research vessel to collect lake samples, and to acquire a smaller boat to take water samples from rivers and lakes in the Lake Champlain Basin.

July 11 Event to Celebrate Centennial Campaign Success

SUNY Plattsburgh will celebrate the successful conclusion of the Plattsburgh College Foundation's five-year, mini-capital fund drive known as the Centennial Campaign in a special ceremony scheduled for 11:30 a.m. on July 11 in Hawkins Hall lobby.

The campaign was initiated in 1989, the year marking the 100th anniversary of the founding of the college, with a goal of $500,000. It was created to establish an endowment fund whose income would fund "special student, faculty and administrative initiatives designed to promote excellence across the college throughout its future."

Although the Centennial Campaign goal was achieved in 1991, three years ahead of schedule, by the time it came to a close officially this past spring, gifts had been received from 820 SUNY Plattsburgh faculty and staff, alumni, businesses, organizations and friends in the community totaling $643,852.08, and the goal had been surpassed by 29 percent. Invitations to the July 11 celebration ceremony have been to all who contributed to the campaign.

Following welcoming remarks from SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson, retired North Country business executive Harry E. Mowry and Sen. Ronald B. Stafford will co-present a final report on the campaign and acknowledge those who efforts and generosity ensured its successful conclusion. Mowry and Stafford served as Centennial Campaign chairperson and honorary chairperson, respectively.

Other program participants include Dr. Charles O. Warren Jr., who was president when the campaign was conceived and launched, and Clifford P. Calongne, president of the College Foundation. Warren and Calongne will discuss the significance of achieving successful results from their perspectives.

Mowry and Sen. Stafford will return to center stage to unveil a plaque containing the names of those who made leadership contributions ($5,000 or more) to the campaign along with a framed citation listing all others who made gifts to the drive. President Judson will give closing remarks.

The Research Institute appropriation will also enable the college to build and equip a small field station at the college's Educational Conference Center at Valcour, where faculty and students will process samples before bringing them to campus for further study. The research focus will include studies of toxic chemicals, nutrient levels and zebra mussels in Lake Champlain, and it will involve faculty and students in SUNY Plattsburgh's Center for Earth and Environmental Science and colleagues in other natural science disciplines.

The technology initiative will impact three separate areas. Foremost, perhaps, will be implementation of an on-line, decentralized registration process that will radically transform this experience for students—viewed often as the most frustrating experience college students encounter—by giving them greater freedom in planning their academic programs.

The on-line system will allow students to request courses directly, check course availability and make course adjustments at their convenience—and from any computer, on- or off-campus. Not only will the system provide students with greater flexibility during registration, it will also relieve staff from routine tasks, allowing them to redirect their efforts to help students.

The initiative also supports a research computing network upgrade, providing funding to enhance the technical infrastructure of the college's current network and to transform desktop personal computers into scholar workstations. Additionally, it includes an allocation to upgrade classroom media equipment.

The computing network upgrade will enable faculty to correspond with colleagues around the world, give them access to all kinds of data and to hundreds of libraries, permit them and their students to conduct on-line "conversations," and enhance opportunities for course redesign and presentation. The classroom media upgrade will permit installation of up-to-date equipment in one of the largest lecture halls on campus and provide for permanent placement of media support equipment in 40 classrooms most heavily used.

The allocation for the summer institute will support an instructional program a year from now for talented high school students. A final determination has not been made; however, the likely academic focus of the institute will be environmental science.

Stafford Named to Ranks of Alumni

New York State Senator Ronald B. Stafford (seen above with Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson) will become a member of SUNY Plattsburgh's Class of 1994 during this fall's Homecoming ceremonies. The Alumni Association Board of Directors voted unanimously during its spring meeting in April to confer the status of "Honorary Alumnus" upon Stafford. "This honor is not bestowed lightly," said Association President Susan Rauscher '75. "However, we have long been aware of Senator Stafford's support of SUNY Plattsburgh, both personally and as a member of the New York State Senate. His belief in the college's mission has proven beneficial in many ways. For example, he was instrumental in securing state funding for the college's new electronic classroom and for equipment for the mass media program, which have allowed the college to keep pace with the latest educational technology. Other exciting and innovative projects that Sen. Stafford has championed include the Lake Champlain Institute, which will be established at the college in the near future. The Institute will not only greatly enhance educational opportunities for students, but also provide outstanding service to the citizens of New York State." In the 105-year history of the college, only six people have been given the title of "Honorary Alumnus." They are Dr. George W. Angell, Dr. Edward E. Redcay, Willard C. Flynt, Dr. and Mrs. Charles O. Warren, and, now, Sen. Stafford. The distinction is given as a means for the Alumni Association to pay tribute to very special persons who have served the college in extraordinary fashion over a sustained period of time.

Ceremony Unveiling Warren Portrait Scheduled for July 11

Former President Charles O. Warren Jr. will return to campus in July to participate in a ceremony in which his portrait will be unveiled to hang with likenesses of his predecessors in the "Presidential Rotunda" surrounding the main stairway in Feinberg Library.

Former President Charles O. Warren (r) with SUNY Plattsburgh College Council Chairperson Robert M. Garrow following Warren's installation as president of Lynchburg College during April 16 inauguration ceremony in Lynchburg.

The event is scheduled for 10 a.m. on Monday, July 11, and the entire SUNY Plattsburgh campus community has been invited to attend. It will be followed by a reception for Warren, now president of Lynchburg (Va.) College, and for Mrs. Nancy Warren, to be held in the Feinberg lobby area.

SUNY Plattsburgh President Horace A. Judson will preside at the unveiling and deliver welcoming remarks. Three other members of the college community will recall highlights of the Warren presidency. They are Robert M. Garrow '52, chairperson of the College Council; Edward R. Brohel, chairperson of the Faculty Senate and director of the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum; and senior Carrie Harvey, president of the Student Association.

Warren will uncover the portrait, painted by Marjorie Millea, a 1991 graduate of the college, where she majored in art, and respond to the honor.

Warren was appointed as SUNY

Plattsburgh's eighth president by the State University of New York Board of Trustees in April of 1987, and he assumed the post three months later, succeeding Dr. Joseph C. Burke, currently interim chancellor of the SUNY system. Highlights of his term in office included conduct of a successful 100th anniversary celebration during 1989-90 and, the following year, renewal of accreditation — accompanied by high commendation — by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools.

Prior to joining Plattsburgh, Warren spent five years as provost and vice president for academic affairs at SUNY Cortland, and from 1979 to 1982 he was dean of the Faculty of Arts and Science at Plattsburgh. He previously held several positions at Southwestern at Memphis (now Rhodes College) and he had been a research biologist at Memorial University of Newfoundland, Buckman Laboratories in Memphis and at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. He holds the Ph.D. in biology from the University of Florida.

Hobson Returns from Hungary, Consulting Stint in 'TQM'

When one country breaks away from the tradition and systems of another, many challenges unfold, including restructuring the economy.

Ronald Hobson, assistant director of the Center for Lifelong Learning and assistant dean of the School of Business and Economics, recently found out firsthand how difficult they can be. He has just returned from Hungary, where he spent the 1993-1994 academic year helping to set up a Total Quality Management (TQM) Center at the Technical University of Budapest.

TQM, he explains, is a combination of customer focus, continuous improvement, and employee empowerment. This means, he says, that companies are more aware of to whom they are selling their products. They are striving toward better and better products, and they are starting to give employees more say in the decision-making process.

According to Hobson, the Hungarians are very interested in changing their emphasis from quantity to quality because, under the Communist system, their products were shipped to market whether or not they were any good. However, now that they have to compete on the open market, they have to show that their products are as good as or better than their competitors'. Hobson helped in this regard by training factory managers in TQM and helping them implement these ideas with workers in their plants.

"It is difficult for Hungarian manufacturers to implement the ideas of TQM," says Hobson, "because they have lived for so long under Communist rule. Some of the larger problems include lack of leadership, poor methods of communication, a crying need for human resource management, and a basic distrust for employee empowerment.

"Many of these problems are related to fear among workers. They don't want to get in trouble. Under the old system it was better just to keep your head down and do what you were told, where now they are expected to be more involved."

Despite these difficulties, Hobson continues, Hungary is in a better position than many post-Communist countries because it functioned under a gulag economy which allowed for some business with the West. Now, many foreign companies have taken control of Hungarian companies so changes are occurring a little more easily. "There's not as much hardship in Hungary as in Russia," says Hobson. "I had an apartment with a phone and a TV, and I was able to do my shopping in the markets."

While the idea of TQM seems common to us, in Hungary it is strange and the changes will happen slowly. Hobson was one of many SUNY faculty chosen to participate in this important project under sponsorship of the U.S. Agency for International Development. However, his efforts will stand out because of their importance to the success of Hungary's new economy.

After 39 Years, Professor Howard Miller Calls It a Career

by Jeremy Agor
Student Intern

In 1955, when Howard Miller first came to SUNY Plattsburgh to teach English, the institution's physical plant consisted of Hawkins Hall and McDonough Hall. Dr. George W. Angell was in the second year of his two-decade-long presidency, and the college academically was organized in three divisions (teacher education, home economics and nursing). The library in Hawkins Hall was bursting with

Dr. Howard Miller, SUNY Plattsburgh's most senior member of the faculty, carries the college's mace for the last time at spring commencement ceremonies on May 14.

Witness to change

Over the next 39 years, Professor Miller would see the campus expand to include 35 buildings. He would work with three full-time successors to Angell and with three others who occupied the President's Office on an interim basis. SUNY Plattsburgh's curriculum would grow to include nearly 60 degree programs and options arranged organizationally in one of two "Faculties" or in an academic unit that didn't exist until nearly three decades later — the School of Business and Economics. The college library would outgrow two buildings to where Feinberg Library today houses more than 300,000 volumes, and, over the years, Governors Rockefeller, Carey and Cuomo successively would also visit the campus for official or ceremonial purposes.

Dr. Howard Miller has been more than a witness to change; as a faculty leader and full participant in the college governance process he was an agent for change. Now, he is retiring — on record as the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty member with the longest term of continuous full-time service. He leaves the college with a treasure chest of memories.

"I'm a master reminiscer," Miller says, "and most of my memories go back to when the college was smaller. I really liked the family feeling that was here then."

Miller fondly recalls the library move from the second floor of Hawkins to the building known today as Redcay Hall. A day was set aside for the undertaking, and students and faculty alike joined forces, forming a "bucket brigade" of sorts to pass the books along. "I remember the weather was simply awful, but everyone worked together, and it was loads of fun," Miller says.

Basketball at the base

When Plattsburgh was still small, basketball was really big, and almost everyone associated with the college went to the games. In Miller's early days, the college's gym was also located in Hawkins Hall. It was tiny and cramped, so arrangements were made to play the games at the old Air Base gym. "It was great," Miller says. "It seemed to be always freezing cold, and we had to shovel snow before leaving for the base, but we always managed to have an enjoyable time. I still think about those games when I drive by the base."

Miller's memories aren't all of happy times, however. In May of 1970, the day after four students had been killed by National Guard troops during anti-war protests at Kent State, he arrived on campus and noticed a lack of classroom activity. He soon learned of a backlash to the Kent State incident on the Plattsburgh campus. Students were hurt and angry; they had marched through the city streets in large numbers, disrupting services and alarming community residents. They had joined with students coast to coast who were demanding an end to the conflict in Vietnam and for then-President Nixon's impeachment. A vocal minority was determined to shut down the campus.

Defusing a volatile situation

"It was the only time I ever felt afraid here. The students were lashing out at those in authority because they opposed the war, and although the college had nothing to do with it, it fit the mold as an establishment institution. Of course, this put the faculty in a difficult position, because most of us were sympathetic with the students' point of view. We were frustrated, too, but what could we do?"

The campus returned to near normal within a few days, largely, Miller says, because of the leadership exhibited by President Angell. He defused the situation by creating opportunities for open communication and by appealing to students to behave rationally in responding to the Kent State tragedy. "I remember he was always in control and he was very fair. He wrote a letter to the faculty telling us essentially to do what we thought was right as far as how we would run our classes and do our grading, and he supported students' positions as well. I think the best thing about the whole affair is that we were able to get through it without any violence and with no damage to the college. Not even one window was smashed."

Loss of intimacy

With all of the changes in the physical layout of the campus and with more students being admitted, Miller observes, the atmosphere of the university has changed as well. The most obvious difference, he feels, is a lack of the intimacy that characterizes a smaller college. "I really miss the family feeling," Miller said. "I used to be able to go to graduation and know every student, but now I only know a few. That's really too bad."

He also notes that with Plattsburgh offering so much more academically, some of today's students seem to be some-

Council OKs Naming Angell Center Facility for Willard Flynt

The roomy Angell College Center space known as the Blue Room since the building opened in the early 1970s has been renamed to honor a retired SUNY Plattsburgh administrator in student affairs.

During its pre-commencement meeting on May 14,, the College Council active as a special assistant to New York State Sen. Ronald B. Stafford, served SUNY Plattsburgh for nearly 20 years, most notably as Dean of Students and later, from 1969 through his retirement in 1974, as the college's first vice president for student affairs.

"It is appropriate that we name this particular room — a popular and widely used gathering place for students — for Bill Flynt," commented Council Chairperson Robert M. Garrow. "As noted in the resolution recommending the change, the name Willard C. Flynt is synonymous with leadership and integrity in student affairs at this college.

"Throughout his career," Garrow continued, "Bill Flynt possessed and demonstrated a rare combination of uncompromising interest in students with the charac-

needs. His dedication to this college as well as to its students earned for him the admiration and respect of faculty and professional colleagues of his era, and the lasting gratitude of thousands of Plattsburgh alumni."

The facility naming is the third significant, college community honor recognizing Flynt. During spring commencement exercises in 1974, he received the highest award the institution bestows — the Distinguished Service Award. In 1991, as a highlight of Homecoming Weekend festivities at the college, he was named an "honorary alumnus" of SUNY Plattsburgh by the Plattsburgh Alumni Association, becoming the third person to win that designation (the others honored earlier were the late Dr. George W. Angell, for whom the college center building is named, and the late Dr. Edward E. "Doc" Redcay, and the status since then has been conferred on former President and Mrs. Charles O. Warren and, recently (see page 2), on Senator Ronald B. Stafford).

what more confused. They can delay choosing a major until they're half way through college, or they can change majors several times, so some have a hard time keeping track of what they need to do to graduate on time. "This isn't all bad though," Dr. Miller says. "In fact, I'm all for going to college to mature and find yourself. As long as young people are making progress toward a degree and they're growing somehow — meeting new types of people or experiencing new ideas and classes — then they're getting something out of college. They should be having fun too — they've got 40 years afterwards to work. I have to remind my students of that sometimes. I have to tell them they're too serious!"

Shift in students' ages

The change Dr. Miller views most positively is the wider range in the age of students. When he first began teaching all of his students were between 18 and 22, and none had children. Today, thanks to the GI Bill and shifting societal demands and values, SUNY Plattsburgh's student clientele includes 30-year olds with families. "They're great, because they're so motivated and they have so many life experiences they can lend to discussions," Miller says.

Miller has no plans for retirement. "I don't want to plan," he exclaims. "When I first talked about retirement, people kept asking what I was going to do, telling me I'd go crazy with no plans. That kind of scared me for awhile, but then I thought about it and realized that I'll have all the time in the world to do what I want, and I don't have to do anything at all. I'm teaching one class in the fall at nine in the morning because I didn't want to go cold turkey, but then I can come home and spend time with my wife and family."

A professor's reward

Howard Miller has touched a great many students over the past 39 years. Many have learned from him silently, most likely benefiting from his knowledge, but not acknowledging it. However, Miller reaches into his jacket pocket and pulls out a card. It's a note from a student, thanking him for taking the time to listen to her when she was upset and for being a friend to her as well as a professor.

"That's what it's all about," he says softly. "You don't get many of these — maybe one a year — but it makes you feel good to know you've helped. This young woman probably wouldn't still be here if I hadn't taken the time to talk to her. This is the best reward I could ask for."

Garrow and Parnass Reappointed to Full Council Terms

Governor Cuomo has announced the reappointment of two members of SUNY Plattsburgh's College Council.

The two are Robert M. Garrow of Morrisonville, the current Council chairperson, and Barbara

Robert Garrow

Barbara Parnass

Parnass of Saranac Lake. They were appointed originally in June of 1986 and September of 1991, respectively, as replacements for Council members who had resigned their posts. Their new terms continue through June 30, 2000.

During his tenure on the Council, Garrow, a 1952 SUNY Plattsburgh graduate, has chaired the Search Committees that produced the college's last two presidents. Now retired from professional life, he taught for five years in North Country schools and served as an administrator in the Plattsburgh

City School District for three decades.

Garrow has compiled a lengthy record of service in civic and political activities in the region as a coach and youth sports program director and coordinator and as a volunteer fund-raiser and board and committee member of varied community and nationally affiliated human service agencies. He was a member of the Council for the Town of Plattsburgh from 1953 to 1972, then was elected to eight consecutive, two-year terms as a Clinton County legislator.

Besides his alma mater, Garrow currently serves as chairperson of the Board of Directors of the Plattsburgh Y.M.C.A. and he chairs the Clinton County Industrial Development Agency. An outstanding performer in baseball, basketball and soccer while an undergraduate, he was selected in 1984 as a charter member of the SUNY Plattsburgh Sports Hall of Fame.

Parnass has served as a consultant photographer for the Saranac Lake Free Library since 1978, where she has received grants from the New York State Council on the Arts to maintain, archivally preserve, print and exhibit glass plate negatives in the Adirondack Collection. She held a similar post previously at the Trudeau Institute in that community, and since 1981 she has been chief photographer for Historic Saranac Lake.

Photographs by Parnass have been exhibited widely over the past 15 years in a variety of juried, individual and group shows held throughout New York State, including in the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum. Her works include Unlocking the Wilderness, a three-projector slide presentation shown at the Visitors Interpretive Center at Paul Smiths and later recorded on video cassette, and The Pictured Past, three sets of 30 prints each, selected and printed from the Saranac Lake Free Library's historical collection as a limited edition portfolio.

Parnass has served on numerous boards and committees in Saranac Lake and other North Country communities. She holds the A.B. degree from Mount Holyoke College, and from 1974-78 she studied photography at the Lake Placid School of Art.

College Chosen for Federal Direct Student Loan Program

SUNY Plattsburgh has been selected to participate in the Federal Direct Student Loan Program, effective in academic 1995-96.

According to U.S. Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley, Plattsburgh is among 983 institutions nationwide chosen to take part in this new, streamlined system to restructure the nation's student loan programs.

More than 6,500 public, private, four-year, two-year and proprietary schools meet program eligibility requirements.

"We were invited to participate because SUNY Plattsburgh measures up to Department of Education criteria," commented Suzanne Sokolowski, director of financial aid.

"Among other things, that means the default rate among Plattsburgh students who held federal loans for education during fiscal 1991 and 1992 is comparatively low. It also means this college has demonstrated administrative and financial responsibility."

Under the new program, the federal government provides loans directly to students through their schools. By eliminating brokers — guaranty agencies, secondary markets, banks and other private lenders — direct lending is designed to reduce administrative burden.

At the same time, the program is expected to increase efficiency, thereby making borrowing easier for students while eliminating excess profits.

Secretary Riley maintains that, by taking advantage of the federal government's ability to borrow money at a lower interest rate, direct lending will save taxpayers billions of dollars.

The new program, he said, also offers students a repayment option that tailors monthly payments to the borrower's income.

'Odyssey' Offered as a New Feature of Summer Orientation

by Jeremy Agor
Student Intern

SUNY Plattsburgh's annual summer orientation program has added a new twist.

Called Odyssey, the innovative venture is a three-day, optional outdoor experience for freshmen and transfer students that takes place at the college's Twin Valleys outdoor education center in the heart of the Adirondacks. To this point in the orientation schedule, three groups of students (two consisting of freshmen and the other exclusively transfers) have signed-on for the activity.

Odyssey happens at the end of the traditional orientation session. Its objective is to augment the adjustment-to-college-life aspects of orientation for Plattsburgh's newest students by placing them in an environment where they must adapt quickly to situations requiring them to live and work together.

Ideally, says Bryan Hartman, assistant director of Campus Life, Odyssey participants will learn a lot about themselves and their peers. He notes that many of the activities are designed to give the students the opportunity to look at themselves, see what they have to give to others and chart their course for personal growth during their undergraduate years at Plattsburgh.

Exercise and recreation are part of the program. These components include the Twin Valleys "ropes course," which is designed to challenge the students mentally as well as physically, and on the final full day of the program they climb one of the peaks in the Adirondacks, giving them yet another opportunity to enjoy the beauty of northern New York.

Hartman says that Odyssey students are also learning about giving their time and effort to serving others by taking part in a community service project. One project will involve cooking food and performing odd jobs at a senior citizens' hoe-down event in Essex County. Others being planned include volunteer work at an Essex County nursing home and at a youth center.

"One of my overall goals as a member of the Campus Life staff," says Hartman, "is to give students some experience in community service and make them want to do more. There are so many people in need, with the economy being the way it is, that we can all give in some way, even though we do have our own personal limitations.

"The Odyssey program will allow students to come to Plattsburgh this fall with confidence in themselves and their peers," adds Hartman. "We also hope it instills in them a sense of pride that, through service, they can make their mark on this area."

Alumni Association to Host July Picnic

The SUNY Plattsburgh Alumni Association will host an Alumni Picnic on Sunday, July 31 at the Valcour Conference Center. The picnic is scheduled for 2-6 p.m., with traditional picnic fare to be served from 3-5 p.m.

Paul Berry '86, who chairs the committee planning the picnic, said, "There are more than 3,000 Plattsburgh alumni living in Clinton, Essex and Franklin counties and we hope many of them will join us for an entertaining afternoon and to meet President and Mrs. Horace Judson. We'll have a DJ on hand and we've planned games and face painting for the children. The Valcour Conference Center is certainly a wonderful place to have an event like this because there's room for everyone. In case it rains, we'll have access to the boat-house and the carriage house."

Berry added, "We'd like to extend a particular invitation to faculty and staff members. We know many alumni would like to see their former teachers and friends at the picnic."

Tickets are $8.75 for adults and $5 for children 5-12. Children under 5 may attend free. Reservations may be made by July 27 at the Alumni Office on the eighth floor of the Kehoe Building.

Committee members also include Ron Allen '63, Maceo Dubose '81, Karen Froehlich '65, Maryjane Loucy '70, John Mahoney '66, Art Momot '55, and Mary Lou Zaferakis '72.

President and Mrs. Horace A. Judson spent a weekend in New York City and on Long Island in mid-June meeting with alumni. They attended a New York City reunion aboard a Circle Line cruise ship, along with about 100 area alumni, then spent two days on Long Island. One of the events they hosted was a dinner for New York State Senator Kenneth LaValle, who chairs the Senate's Higher Education Committee. Among those in attendance were (l. to r.) Dr. Xenophon Damianos '51 and Alumni Association Board Member Virginia Damianos '50 (who graciously invited the SUNY Plattsburgh contingent to stay at their home), Gail Judson, President Judson, Senator LaValle, Cathy Watkins and Board Member Bernard "Ace" Watkins '54.

Randorf Exhibit, 'Celebration of Wildness,' Opens July 15

"Celebration of Wildness," a retrospective of the best 75 works over the past 30 years by the widely acclaimed North Country photographer-conservationist-preservationist Gary to 7 p.m. on the opening day in the Myers Gallery.

For nearly three decades, Randorf has paddled the rivers and lakes in the Adirondacks, climbed both low and high peaks, and skied many mountains and trails to photography wild and scenic spaces and places. His focus goes beyond places populated by tourists, hikers and sight-seers to hidden spots seen only through the eye of the camera of a person dedicated to conservation and preservation.

According to the artist, "Wilderness preserved began in the Adirondacks when New York lawmakers established the Adirondack Forest Preserve in 1885. Though Yellowstone Park had been established in 1872, its primary focus was as a 'pleasuring ground' for people rather than to maintain an area as a wilderness forever, as in the case of the public forests of the Adirondacks."

Randorf's photos have appeared in Adirondack Life, Sports Illustrated, Outside Magazine, Audubon Magazine and Wilderness Magazine, and his work is featured on postcards and publications of the Adirondack Nature Conservancy. His work has been exhibited widely.

A 20-page color catalog of Randorf's publications has been published and will be available at the exhibition. In a preface to the catalog, Art Museum Director Edward Brohel writes: "In reading and viewing Mr. Randorf's annotations and visions, we get a sense of the love, the adventure, the critical observation which has gone into their making. Our response, hopefully empathetic, will satisfy a deep need within and move us to serious action."

The Randorf exhibit has several sponsors. They include the Champlain National Bank, the Adirondack Council, Ms. Sally Johnson, Niagara Mohawk Power Corp., International Paper (Imaging Products Division), Portland Photographics, Mountain View, the Plattsburgh College Foundation (Winkel Trust Fund), and SUNY Plattsburgh's College Auxiliary Services..

"Celebration of Wildness" includes this Gary Randorf photograph, titled "Elk Lake."

Randorf, will open on Friday, July 15 in the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum's Myers Fine Arts Gallery and continue through September 11.

A reception for the artist, who is a senior counselor for the Adirondack Council, a private, non-profit organization dedicated to protecting the natural open spaces of the Adirondack Park, will be held from 5

Survey Results: '93 Graduates Fare Well in Job Market

The results are in on the "alumni career survey" for SUNY Plattsburgh's class of 1993, and they indicate that year's graduates fared very well in the job market in spite of the dismal condition of the economy in New York State and nationally.

"It's clear that our graduates maintained a high level of employment while contending with a very difficult job market," said Patrick Lennahan, director of the college's Career/Life Planning Center. "Most of the statistics show an improvement in comparison with the previous year's data."

The Center's report is based on responses to a survey of Plattsburgh's newest alumni taken six months following their graduation and collected during the spring semester of this year. Survey forms were mailed to more than 1,500 alumni, and 700-plus returned them — yielding a respectable 46.6 percent response rate.

Lennahan pointed out that the percentage reporting employment in full-time positions (70.2%) was virtually the same as the previous year, while the portion "unemployed and seeking employment" declined (from 5.8 percent in the 1992 sample to 5.1 percent this past year). He noted also that more and more graduates are pursuing additional education.

"The percentage (15.9%) attending graduate school on a full-time basis is at the highest level recorded since

200-plus Turn Out for Ceremony Unveiling Warren Portrait

More than 200 former colleagues and community friends turned out on a glorious North Country morning on Monday, July 11 to salute Dr.

Charles O. Warren, SUNY Plattsburgh's immediate past president, at the unveiling of Warren's portrait in the college's "Presidential Rotunda" in Feinberg Library.

The event celebrated Warren's impact on the campus community and the region during his tenure at the college (1987-93). During a brief ceremony preceding the unveiling, members of SUNY Plattsburgh's key constituencies paid tribute to the college's eighth president, recalling Warren's personal as well as professional attributes and the special brand of leadership he brought to his post in an era characterized as "extremely challenging" financially.

"Your portrait will remind us ... of the fondness we all hold for you," commented College Council Chairperson Robert M. Garrow '52, "and of the significant contributions you made during your term of service to SUNY Plattsburgh — not only to the college but also to the greater North Country community. We will always be indebted to you for providing out-

Fall Semester Enrollment Picture Brightens

A mid-summer admissions report indicates that SUNY Plattsburgh will probably exceed its fall '94 freshman enrollment goal and is fast approaching its transfer enrollment target.

According to Richard Higgins, director of admissions, the college has received 951 freshman admission deposits and is on track toward a goal of 825 first-time students, and it is closing in on the goal of 725 new transfers with 699 deposits returned to date. He noted that quality indicators are likely to keep pace with recent years (solid B average and upper 900 SATs for freshmen, and 2.9 cumulative GPAs for transfers).

The admissions picture for SUNY Plattsburgh compares favorably with that at other University colleges, Higgins said. Also, it appears that 10 percent of this fall's new freshman class claim multicultural backgrounds.

"We're coming off an extremely challenging recruitment year," said Higgins. "We had to contend with the combined effects of a declining pool of high school students, New York's stagnant economy, and the ever-increasing competition from the state's private as well as public colleges and universities."

Higgins credits the apparently successful new student recruitment campaign to the efforts of colleagues throughout the college community. He pointed out that faculty, staff and currently enrolled students all pitched-in when asked to call or write to students, host visitors or participate in special weekend programs designed for specific student groups.

"However," he continued, "it was your genuine interest in and concern for all members of the college community, your personal warmth, and your commitment to maintaining quality that earned for you our last-chair and director of the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum, spoke for the college's faculty and staff. He, too, reflected in part on the financial turmoil ("a time of great trouble and crisis, eight budget cuts in five years") of the Warren presidency.

"While in many institutions the needs of individual faculty, staff and particularly students were being lost to the constraints of tightening ledgers," said Brohel, "at Plattsburgh there was a growing sense of the worth and the value of each individual. A sense of community and contribution prevailed among the majority of the 7,300 people who made up the college; honesty and straight answers were a policy.

"The college became smaller under Charles Warren, not in numbers, value, services or achievements," Brohel continued, "but in the spaces between people, in the shorter route an idea or memo would have to travel before being acted upon. In these five years (of the Warren presidency), rhetoric became reality."

To Student Association President Carrie Harvey, a senior special education major from Chazy, Warren ranks as the most "unique and caring individual" she has met. She recalled listening to President Warren's welcoming remarks during freshman orientation ("I was taken by his enthusiasm and dedication to this institution.") and thereafter ("To this day I remember the feeling of camaraderie when meeting Dr. Warren in the hallway or on the street ... in having someone you admire, respect and look up to greet you by name and take the time to converse about professional and personal issues.").

"You left us your spirit," Harvey declared in closing, "which makes Plattsburgh so friendly and welcoming. Many have adopted your spirit, your love and dedication to this institution. We're proud to have your portrait hang on our campus walls — a campus that will always reflect your spirit."

Warren was gracious in response, thanking the community for "the quality of life and outstanding family environment" it provides, and for fostering "substantial, varied and productive relationships with SUNY Plattsburgh."

"There is no adequate way to express the depth and breadth of our appreciation to all of our students, faculty and staff, alumni and friends who made the years we spent among you extremely important in the lives of all of the Warrens," said the former president. Directing attention to his portrait, which he had unveiled before stepping to the podium, Warren remarked: "What should have been behind that red, velvet cloth is a photograph of the hundreds and hundreds of really dedicated and caring students, faculty, alumni and friends of this institution, because that's what the history of this college is all about."

Warren was appointed as SUNY Plattsburgh president in April of 1987 and assumed the post three months later, succeeding Dr. Joseph C. Burke, now the University system's interim chancellor. He left the college last July to assume the presidency of Lynchburg (Va.) College.

1980," he said, "and the rate continuing their studies part time (20.7%) is at the third highest level over that span."

Graduates' average salaries continued to grow. Wages for those employed full time average $23,980, up from $23,906, with men graduates commanding higher average salaries than their women counterparts — $26,309 versus $22,525, respectively. The reported average wage for women actually shows a decline (down from $23,027 for 1992 graduates), Lennahan said, and that represents a first-time occurrence.

Meanwhile, satisfaction with career potential (71.6 percent), salary and benefits (58.8 percent) and type of work (79.9 percent) not only showed improvement but also climbed to the highest levels since 1989. Also, the rate (82.8 percent) of those reporting that an academically related field experience helped them land a job reached its highest level since the question was added to the form in 1982.

Centennial Campaign Success Celebrated in Grand Fashion

The Plattsburgh College Foundation's Centennial Campaign — its first mini-capital fund drive — is in the record books and logged as a resounding success, but it went into SUNY Plattsburgh history with a flourish.

The campaign came to an official and ceremonial end on July 11 in Hawkins hall lobby before an assembly of about 100 persons invited to celebrate its achievement. The audience included many representing the 820 faculty and staff, alumni, businesses, organizations and community friends who contributed more than $643,850 to the campaign (29 percent over goal) over its five-year time frame, beginning in 1989, the college's centennial year.

"Well, we did it!" declared Harry E. Mowry, retired North Country business executive, who chaired the campaign. "It's been a great five years and it's time to celebrate."

leaders asked to participate in the ceremony, traced the progress of the effort, beginning with how he was courted to head it, the selection of volunteers, its kick-off on Founders Day on June 15 of 1989, and continuing through its auspicious conclusion. He lauded the "incredible response" to requests to support establishment of an endowment fund to create a public-private partnership for excellence for SUNY Plattsburgh into the 21st century, and thanked various groups for their generosity.

"The Student Association, College Auxiliary Services and the SUNY Plattsburgh Federal Credit Union came aboard very early on in the campaign," said Mowry, "all with leadership gifts ($5,000 minimum). Alumni responded enthusiastically and so did faculty and staff. And so did the community."

Mowry said the campaign leadership team was "overwhelmed" by the many people who stepped forward to support the effort. "We were also very pleased by the number of people who understood the need to continue their contributions to the Annual Giving Campaign," he said, "and who generously supported both during the five years."

Sen. Ronald B. Stafford, who served as honorary chair of the Centennial Campaign, thanked those who contributed to "this important fund," adding, "I consider it a privilege and a duty to support an institution of such high quality." Stafford's remarks were directed generally to SUNY Plattsburgh's strengths and the educational, research and public service activities that make the college a leading regional asset.

"Not too long ago, the college published a study showing how it impacts on our area," said Stafford. "The study shows that in Clinton County the college (has) a direct economic impact of $25 million.

"But the impact of SUNY Plattsburgh goes well beyond money," he added. "North Country citizens have access to the Alzheimer's Disease Assistance Center, a reading clinic, a speech and hearing clinic and the Technical Assistance Center, none of which would exist without the college, and the college enriches the community culturally through its art museum, concerts and theatre productions."

College Foundation President Clifford P. Calongne expressed his appreciation to those who supported the campaign, noting that the endowment it created "will continue to provide for the Future of SUNY Plattsburgh into the next century." He then called attention to "a singular man,"

2nd Year Funding to Allow Telenursing Project Expansion

SUNY Plattsburgh and its Department of Nursing have received the second installment in its five-year, $1 million grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The new funding, totaling $348,274, will allow the department to proceed with a plan to expand its innovative "Telenursing Education in Rural New York State" project.

Effective this fall, the nursing education outreach program will be serving students in nine North Country counties — four more than in 1993-94, the project's initial year — through a dial-up, visual communication system originating from the Plattsburgh campus. Sites will be established in Potsdam and Watertown to augment those in Glens Falls, Malone and Saranac Lake, adding Franklin, St. Lawrence, Jefferson and Lewis counties to those already being served — namely, Clinton, Essex, Warren, Washington and Saratoga counties.

"We'll be offering three nursing courses and a library course to students in these counties — registered nurses seeking the bachelor's degree — who live a great distance from Plattsburgh but find it possible to travel to one of the satellite locations three evenings per week," said Dr. Virginia Barker, dean of professional studies and co-director of the project. "We expect to have 85 students in the telenursing program by the end of the 1994-95 academic year, and to increase enrollment to more than 180 by the fifth year of the project."

Barker said that the project's second-year work plan calls for development of articulation agreements between SUNY Plattsburgh and Jefferson Community College, SUNY Potsdam, Canton College of Technology and 15 other health care facilities in the service area. It also provides for establishment of library services at all sites and for a staff development program for faculty and adjunct faculty at the off-campus sites.

Osborn Invited to Curate '94 ART/OMI Invitational Exhibition

It has been a productive summer for Don Osborn.

Eight large sculptures and six monotype prints by Osborn, professor of art, have been on display at the Schweinfurth Memorial Art Center in Auburn since June 29, and that solo exhibit will continue through August. This past weekend he traveled to the northern Hudson Valley region for the opening of the ART/OMI Invitational Exhibition 1994 — an event that attracted roughly 2,000 art enthusiasts and patrons, held in conjunction with opening day activities for the ART/OMI International Artist's Workshop.

Osborn is not only among the 10 artists whose works are part of the full-scale show covering 10 acres of rural farmland at Omi, near Ghent in Columbia County, he is also serving as its curator. Moreover, he says, this year's exhibition has a slant that is distinctively SUNY Plattsburgh-oriented.

"One of the exhibitors," he says, "is Andrew Ludke of Brooklyn, a former student of mine who graduated from Plattsburgh in '91 and recently completed graduate work at Hunter College. A second is Berry Matthews, formerly of the Penn State faculty, who will join our faculty this fall. Her specialty is ceramics. Besides New York State, the remaining seven exhibitors come from New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and Vermont."

It was two years ago that Osborn was invited to join a group of 20 professional artists from seven different countries in that summer's Artist's Workshop at Omi. During his three-week stay there, he had his predecessor as Foundation president, the late Curtis E. Shipman, a prominent North Country banking executive who was at the helm when the Centennial Campaign was conceived and launched.

Acknowledging that Shipman's widow, Carolyn Shipman, was present at the ceremony, Calongne related how the Shipmans perceived the campaign to be a great cause, how they pledged and fulfilled a leadership gift and how Curtis Shipman "made sure" that his employer, Keeseville National Bank, followed suit.

"Curt knew the campaign was successful before he died," said Calongne, "and he was delighted with the response from alumni, faculty and staff, businesses and community friends alike. It is for him that I say thank you on behalf of the Plattsburgh College Foundation."

Near the end of the ceremony, Mowry and Sen. Stafford unveiled plaques mounted on the wall near the entrance to Giltz Auditorium that contain the names of leadership contributors and all others who made gifts to the campaign.

and well-known visiting artists and established art dealers and gallery curators from nearby New York City — which he calls "the art capital of the world."

Later, Osborn was appointed to the ART/OMI Advisory Board. The request to curate the 1994 invitational exhibition came from this board.
